The Fair's Fairest

A great diorama depicting the drama of electricity, from its source in mountain rivers to its use in a modernistic city, which will be one of the spectacular features of the World's Fair, is described by James O'Donnell Bennett. Page 5.

The World's Fair machinery has been thrown into high speed in order to have all in readiness for President Roosevelt's official opening of the international exposition on Saturday, May 27. Yesterday the exposition grounds presented a picture of feverish activity, with throngs of visitors gazing on in wonderment as the sprawling buildings of the fair seemed to grow like flowers after a spring rain.

After receiving reports from his assistants Maj. Lenox Lohr, general manager of the exposition, announced that all the major exhibit buildings stand completed, all roads and avenues are in use and the utilities necessary for operation have been installed. Maj. Lohr declared that every project sponsored by the exposition itself will be ready when the gates are officially opened.

Mr. Boyle and the Skyride.

Promoters of the Skyride, which will be the supreme thrill at A Century of Progress as the Ferris wheel was at the Columbian exposition in 1893, announced that the rocket cars would whiz over the lagoon on the opening day, unless difficulties arise. The difficulties, it was explained, might be caused by labor unions with members at work on the project.

The Skyride managers had already selected a crew of twenty-five pilots to operate the rocket cars when Mike Boyle, czar of the electrical workers' union, paid them a visit a few days ago.

"You must have electrical workers operate those cars," said Boyle, smiling, "or I am very much afraid that I'll have to pull off my men who are doing your electrical work now."

After a hurried conference the managers assured Mr. Boyle that his workers would be employed as pilots, and work on the Skyride continued as before.

These Buildings Completed.

Among the exposition structures that are completed are the Administration building, Court of Honor, Hall of Science, five buildings of the general exhibits group, Hall of Religion, Travel and Transport building, Agricultural group, Dairy building, Hall of Social Science, Radio building, and Communications and Electrical building.

Old Fort Dearborn, the Lincoln replica group, and the Chinese Golden Temple of Jehol have been open for several months. The Federal building, Illinois Host building and the Hall of States have been completed, as well as the Swedish and Czechoslovakian pavilions.

Buildings of a more commercial nature that are ready for visitors include: Sears-Roebuck, American Radion, Sinclair Prehistoric building, the World a Millions Years Ago, Firestone, infant incubator, Penland Weavers and Potters' cabin, General Motors, Chrysler, Domestic Animal Show and the Alaskan cabin.

Cafes Already in Operation.

The Old Heidelburg inn, Rutledge tavern, Mueller-Pabst cafe, and Edwards' Adobe rancho are already doing business on the grounds.

The Dance ship, an entertainment structure on the style of a trans-Atlantic liner, will be ready for a luncheon for 600 persons on May 27, its promoters reported.

The coops are up for the international egg laying contest but the contestants—scores of ambitious hens—will not be ready to start until May 15.

Scarlet banners have blossomed out on modernistic metal poles along the avenue of flags, which is the drive from the Administration building to the Hall of Science, but they will be changed because their color isn't the right shade of red. The exterior of Streets of Paris has been completed

PUT 3 MILLION BACK TO WORK, INDUSTRY PLAN

Roosevelt Expected to Ease Trust Law.

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—A gigantic plan designed to put at least 3,000,000 men back to work in private industry on a specified date was revealed here today, reported as having the backing of 25 chosen representatives of 56,000 manufacturers.

Meanwhile friends of the administration had almost completed the draft of a bill to be presented to President Roosevelt next week for relaxing the anti-trust laws so that private enterprise, by regulating itself, could throw its combined strength against the walls of the depression.

Far Reaching Measure.

This far reaching measure, described by its supporters as embodying a long stride from individual to coöperative effort on the part of industry, was asserted to have two major principles:

1. Industry would have every chance to regulate itself under close government supervision, with complete flexibility of the anti-trust laws, but with safeguards against monopoly.

2. A concerted movement would be provided against unemployment, with concessions being granted to industry in return for the employment of additional working forces.

A Supplementary Attack.

While not integrally a part of this legislation, the program for calling upon industry voluntarily to put at least 3,000,000 persons back on their jobs is intended as a supplementary attack on the present economic conditions which would move alongside of the government's public works program.

The plan has been approved by a steering committee representing the Association of National Manufacturers, and in addition received endorsement by a 9 to 1 vote from the Committee of the Nation, composed of more than 700 leaders of the national life, banded together to chart a way upward from the depression.

On Steering Committee.

Among those of the steering committee of the Manufacturers' association are J. H. Rand Jr., New York manufacturer; Lammot du Pont of Wilmington, Del.; Robert P. Lamont, former secretary of commerce and now head of the Steel institute, and former Gov. O. Max Gardner of North Carolina. The association last week resolved in favor of reviving the council of national defense, but Mr. Rand said today the committee now had approved the plan for putting men back to work and manufacturers over the country were being notified of the action.

Rand, who is chairman of the steering committee and also of the committee of the nation, said that industry believed that if given the legislation to work out its own problems on a coöperative basis it should be willing to anticipate and aid recovery by putting men back to work.

"This legislation, if approved, would be the greatest step forward for industry in the last 40 years," he said, predicting that the manufacturers of the country would stand back of the committee's action.

Headed by Senator Wagner.

The bill itself is being drafted by friends of the administration headed by Senator Wagner of New York. A subcommittee of Assistant Secretary John Dickinson of the commerce department and David L. Podell of New York, a nationally known expert on the anti-trust laws, is whipping it into final shape for presentation to the full committee and probably to the President early next week.

Its supporters, including Senator Wagner, are hopeful that the chief executive will give the measure his approval so that the legislation may be introduced at this session of congress. Mr. Roosevelt as yet, however, has not viewed even an outline of the proposals.

One of the points to be cleared up in the program is how the new setup would be administered. The administration in other similar matters, including the railroad bill, has leaned toward a single directing head or coordinator. Some members of the committee, however, favor a separate agency composed of perhaps five men, intimate with the problems of industry.

Upon this agency would fall the responsibility for approving agreements within the various major industries, including steel, textiles, mining and the like, and for watching over operation of the laws so that in any relaxing of the Sherman and Clayton acts there would be no monopolies created or violation of the rights of labor.

Ann Harding Quits Cuba; Dodges Court

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 6.—Ann Harding and Alexander Kirkland, film players, and Marie Lombard, the former's secretary, left Havana today. They flew to Miami, thus avoiding an appearance in court Monday in connection with the investigation into the death in shark infested waters last Wednesday of Majin Alvarez. Alvarez was the skipper of a sailboat in which the three Americans were riding and which capsized three miles from shore. He disappeared while attempting to swim to shore for aid.

Police this morning ordered the three Americans and other eyewitnesses and rescuers to appear Monday before Judge Luis Maria Cowley in Marianao court of instruction to be indicted or exonerated of responsibility for Alvarez' death.

When asked this morning whether the party could leave Cuba, Judge Cowley replied: "They ought not to leave. They should comply fully with the law. There is no criminal indication so far in the case, and it probably will be ruled accidental."

Miss Harding Refuses to Talk.

Miss Harding refused to make a statement on the case at the airport.

"I knew we would not be able to avoid meeting you reporters even if we departed unexpectedly and secretly," she said. "If the Cuban newspapers wish to continue publishing untrue things about us, let them go right ahead."

All members of the party refused to pose for pictures.

Miss Harding waited in a closed car until Kirkland had complied with all customs formalities and the plane was ready to leave. She showed signs of nervous strain and fatigue as Kirkland helped her into the plane. She was dressed in white velvet and a thick blue veil covered her face.

Miss Harding before leaving today arranged through attorneys here to pay a $25 monthly pension for ten years to Alvarez' widow. The widow was given $50 immediately, representing the first two payments. The pension will go to Alvarez' two children or trustees should the widow die while the pension is effective.

Smiles at Miami Crowd.

Miami, Fla., May 6.—(AP)—Ann Harding arrived here tonight by plane from Havana and waved smilingly at crowds about the landing base as she hurried to a waiting automobile. She was accompanied by Alexander Kirkland, the actor, and her secretary, Marie Lombard.

Kirkland and Miss Harding declined to be interviewed. Her secretary said she was nervous as a result of shock and exposure. The party went to a hotel tonight and planned to leave probably tomorrow by plane for Hollywood.

ROOSEVELT WILL ADDRESS NATION TONIGHT ON AIR

President Roosevelt will speak to the people of the United States over W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station, and the Columbia Broadcasting system tonight from 9:45 to 10 o'clock, Chicago daylight saving time.

The President was to have been heard on Thursday over W-G-N and Columbia when he addressed the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington. He felt, however, that the radio audience then would be listening to a talk to a special group. He is going on the air tonight for the express purpose of reporting to the people on the accomplishments of his administration since March 4 and to tell them what further action may be expected from the special session of congress.

LINDBERGHS STOP TO VISIT FRIEND AND CAUSE A STIR

Kansas City, May 7 [Sunday]—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were flying eastward from Moriarity, N. M., early today after a 6-hour stop there for a visit with a friend, a rancher named Howard. Because he was not heard from for several hours, some uneasiness was felt at various airports.

Transcontinental and western air officers here were advised by telephone that the colonel took off from Moriarity at 12 midnight [mountain standard time] for Amarillo, Tex., on his flight from Glendale, Cal., to Washington.

Kills Farmer, Compels Girl to Slay Him

A hired hand shot and killed his farmer employer in Plato Center, 8 miles west of Elgin, early this morning, and then, according to police, compelled his victim's 17 year old daughter to shoot and fatally wound himself.

The principals in this strange tragedy were John Schmitz, 50 years old, wealthy Kane county dairy farmer and veteran township clerk of Kane county; Loretta Schmitz, his 17 year old daughter, and Oliver Day, 45, the hired man.

Halts Girl and Escort.

The prologue to the double slaying took place late last night when Miss Schmitz and her escort, Donald Fitchie, 18 years old, also of Plato Center, were returning to the former's home. They were met in the yard by Day, who was said to be drunk and carrying a shotgun. He ordered them out. From a neighbor's house, Miss Schmitz summoned her father, who was attending a school board meeting.

Schmitz returned home immediately and calmed Day. The family retired. About an hour later, while all were asleep, Day stole into Schmitz's room. He fired a charge from his shotgun into Schmitz's head, killing him. The farmer's wife, Mamie, awoke, screaming, and fled into Loretta's room. Loretta also was aroused, as was another child, John, 9 years old.

Forces Girl to Shoot Him.

What happened there, as told to State Highway Policeman Herman W. Nofs by the hysterical girl later, was that the crazed hired hand followed Mrs. Schmitz into the bedroom.

"He put his shotgun into Loretta's hand and ordered her to shoot him, or else he would kill all of them," related Policeman Nofs. "She obeyed him."

Day, shot in the abdomen, died later in St. Joseph's hospital, Elgin.

Find Winkler Guilty; Gets Year in Jail

Gus Winkler, north side gang chief, was convicted of carrying a concealed weapon by a jury in Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten's court last night. He was sentenced to one year in the house of correction and fined $300. The verdict of guilty, coming after 7 hours 15 minutes of deliberation, constituted the second surprise of the day. The first was when one of the state's principal witnesses repudiated his sworn statements.

The verdict was particularly surprising to the dapper Winkler, who had smiled with assurance and tapped a cigaret on his tortoise shell case when the jury retired after hearing the testimony of Policeman George Conrad Kurzwelly, the witness who changed his story. Winkler's substantial jaw dropped when he heard the word "guilty," and he took out another cigaret.

Allman Plans Action.

As a result of Kurzwelly's testimony that he could not "remember" having seen a gun removed from Winkler's person, Police Commissioner James P. Allman announced last night that he would "take action immediately" against the officer. Prosecutor Dougherty said he also would prefer charges against the witness for repudiating his sworn statements. Kurzwelly, former lockup keeper at the Town Hall station, is now detailed at the county treasurer's office.

In overruling a motion of Defense Attorney W. W. Smith for a new trial, Judge Hasten said he believed the defendant had been fairly and impartially tried.

"Men who carry guns are potential murderers," said the judge in fixing the maximum penalty. "The good citizens of Chicago are incensed about these hoodlums who walk the streets with concealed weapons. Good citizens don't have to carry guns."

His Bond Is Increased.

The defense was given a 30 day stay of mittimus in which to prepare their appeal, but Winkler's bond of $2,500 was increased to $5,000.

The long absence of the jury and conflicting reports emanating from the jury room had made the outcome uncertain in the minds of the spectators. When the jury retired it was generally expected that a not guilty verdict would be returned, because of Kurzwelly's testimony. Even Prosecutor Dougherty intimated that a disagreement was the best he could hope for.

"This makes three convictions in a row and we hope to get another next week," said Mr. Dougherty after the verdict. "We have convicted Murray Humphries, Charles Fischetti, cousin of Al Capone, and Winkler. Next week we hope to convict another Capone hoodlum, 'Three Fingered Jack' White."

Expected by State.

The testimony of Policeman Kurzwelly was no surprise to the prosecutors, who learned Friday that he was under subpoena by the defense and was not going to repeat his sworn statements of seeing the gun taken from Winkler. For that reason he was called as a court witness, so he could be cross examined and his testimony impeached by the state.

Prosecutor Dougherty first read the sworn statement attributed to Kurzwelly, wherein he described the pistol and its holster and told of seeing Sergt. William Drury find it under Winkler's belt on the night of April 1, in the Town Hall station. Drury had arrested Winkler and his paymaster, Benny Goldblatt, at Broadway and Grace street. Drury corroborated the statement in his testimony on Friday, and so had Policeman Oscar Munson, for 22 years a wagonman at the station.

Defense Shouts Objections.

Defense Attorneys Smith and Harold Levy shouted objections to the reading of references to the gun, whereupon

BROTHERS HELD AFTER ONE TRIES EXTORTION PLOT

$60,000 Ransom Is Recovered.

Harwichport, Mass., May 6.—[Special.]—The great McMath kidnaping mystery was brought to a swift solution this afternoon with the arrest of two brothers, a detailed confession by one of them and the recovery of the $60,000 ransom that had been paid for the little girl's return. The maximum penalty for kidnaping for ransom under Massachusetts law is 25 years in prison.

The prisoners are Cyril Buck, 38, who operates an old barn in West Harwich as a garage, and his brother, Kenneth, 35, sometime chauffeur and odd jobs about town man. Kenneth, who lost his last regular job some weeks ago, was the confessed author of the crime.

Tells Details of Kidnaping.

In a detailed statement given out by Brig. Gen. Daniel Needham, state commissioner of public safety, the ex-chauffeur told of how he had "thought" of a scheme to get money by kidnaping 10 year old Margaret [Peggy] McMath, daughter of Neil McMath, son of a retired Detroit steel man, from the grammar school she attends here. He told of how he had blackened his face and otherwise disguised himself as a Negro chauffeur and had driven to the school. He had arranged for the child's release by two fake telephone calls, one to her home and the other to the school. He told of how he had held her captive until the ransom money had been arranged for and paid.

Calls for Own Boy.

The younger Buck told the astonished police with little show of emotion of how he had bound his little charge, left her in a shack and returned to the school to get his own little boy, 10 years old, who is a pupil there, and of how later in the afternoon he had gone out for a game of golf on a nearby course.

A fire started near the shack that afternoon and Kenneth Buck said he got a big scare for fear the firemen who went out to fight the blaze would find the girl and upset his plans.

Kenneth shouldered the major responsibility for the crime throughout and insisted that the only part his brother played in it was to act as intermediary in obtaining the ransom, which he originally fixed at $250,000, but later reduced to $60,000.

Says Conscience Hurt Him.

After the money had been paid over and the little girl returned to her father Buck insisted he had become conscience stricken, gone to a priest, made a confession and resolved to return all the money. By that time the state police were at his heels and it was too late.

Kenneth Buck had been doing chores here and McMath was one of his employers. Kenneth has a six year old son, Kenneth Buck Jr., and his wife and mother-in-law live at his home.

Ransom Money Recovered.

The sedan in which Peggy was taken from the Harwichport schoolhouse early Tuesday afternoon is registered to Cyril Buck.

Of the sum of $60,000 paid for Peggy's release $50,000 was found in a wall cabinet in a bedroom closet at Kenneth Buck's home and $10,000 was surrendered by Kenneth's wife.

The older brother, Cyril, broke under questioning by investigators aboard the coast guard training ship Wyanda at Woods Hole today. His information led to the two arrests. He refused to accept $10,000 from McMath, with the idea that his refusal would be interpreted as proof that he was acting in good faith, but he charged his younger brother with having accepted $10,000 and said the kidnap plot was the work of two other men who had hired them as go-betweens. That they acted without assistance was proved, however, before they were arrested. Gen. Needham said no others were involved.

On Board Lee Yacht.

Cyril Buck was on board the yacht Bob, owned by William D. Lee, Harwichport boat builder and business associate of McMath, when the coast guard found the boat with the girl aboard yesterday at 5:30 p. m. in Wychmere harbor, in front of the McMath home.

Cyril was taken to Woods Hole on board a coast guard boat with McMath, the kidnaped girl, Lee, and Harold Sawyer of Harwich, who was also aboard the Bob.

After hours of questioning Cyril wept.

"I didn't take any money," he said.

"Then who did?" demanded Gen. Needham.

"Kenneth," he replied.

Since the other brother had not been under suspicion, it was necessary to ask Cyril whom he meant.

"My brother," he said.

Cyril Buck then told his version of the kidnaping, which he said was conceived by two men who employed him and his brother at $10,000 each to take the girl. He was allowed to go home.

Several autoloads of state police went to the Bucks' homes and seized them.

Both brothers were taken at once to the Barnstable county courthouse under arrest. They were questioned further and Kenneth confessed.

To Be Arraigned Monday.

The Buck brothers probably will be arraigned on Monday before Judge Robert Welsh, young attorney recently appointed to the bench of the Provincetown District court. They are the sons of a former coast guard surfman who died in 1918, leaving his widow, Mrs. Bertha Buck, who took her son, Kenneth, his wife and their son to live with her when he lost his position last fall.

Mr. McMath said late today:

"One cannot imagine how happy this family is tonight. Again and again I wish to thank with all my heart Gov. Ely, the state and local police, federal officers, coast guard, press and public for their sympathy and understanding of first our grief and now our joy. All we want now from every one is the privilege of returning to our quiet and normal life with our friends."

Peggy Tells Her Story.

Peggy had a vivid recollection of everything that occurred at her school on the afternoon of her abduction and described some of the events in detail to Gen. Needham and other troopers. She recalled that her classmates were singing "Rain" as she left the room that afternoon, supposedly to return to her home in response to a telephone call received by the teacher a few minutes earlier. The informant, representing himself to be Mr. McMath, the child's father told the teacher that a car would be sent for Peggy and asked that she be excused ahead of time.

Upon emerging from the door Peggy said that she saw the sedan "a little ways from the door," with a Negro in chauffeur's livery at the wheel.

Came to "Take Her Home."

"I've come to take you home because there are friends there that want to see you," she quoted the supposed chauffeur as saying to her.

She got into the car and the man drove off—in an easterly direction, Peggy thought. After a few minutes of rapid travel the machine turned into a side road leading into the woods and some distance on stopped near a cranberry bog. Peggy said she had never seen the place before.

Before getting out the man threw a black cloth over the little girl's face, she said, tied it so as to form a blindfold and forced her to lie down on the back seat. He then tied her arms to her body, put handcuffs on her and warned her that if she made any outcry she would be chloroformed.

Starts to Gag Her.

"He started to stuff rags into my mouth but I asked him not to do that," she told Gen. Needham. "I told him I wouldn't make any noise. He didn't stuff any more rags in, but got back into the front seat and backed the car up."

After that, Peggy said, the car rumbled over roads of varying degrees of roughness "for a long time"—about an hour, she guessed.

"We finally stopped," the little girl went on, "and another man came out to the car. He picked me up and carried me into a little one room shack and put me down on the floor. He covered me with an overcoat.

"I knew we were in a shack because I worked the blindfold up and could see that there was no furniture in the room. The floor was rough and light came in through the cracks on all four sides.

"Thursday night he put me in the automobile again. He told me my father was in the back seat. After we had driven for awhile he took the blindfold off.

"Well, I got in the back seat with my father. Cyril Buck, who owns a garage near us, was driving."

KENNETH BUCK TELLS KIDNAPING OF PEGGY M'MATH

Fire Once Menaced the Child's Prison.

Harwichport, Mass., May 6.—[Special.]—Brig. Gen. Daniel Needham, state commissioner of public safety, tonight gave out the following detailed account of Kenneth Buck's confession to him and his detectives in the McMath kidnaping:

"None of us was satisfied with Buck's story at first, although it purported to be a complete confession. Lieut. Ferrari took him along with his brother Cyril and after considerable more questioning, obtained a willingness to make a complete disclosure of everything.

"He then appeared before Detectives Ferrari and Stokes and myself and was examined at length and told following story of the kidnaping.

"About two days before the kidnaping, he thought of this. He had no grudge against the McMaths, or any of that family, but he knew that there was considerable wealth. His motive was purely a desire to get money.

Perfect Kidnaping Plan.

"He worked out his plan without assistance from anybody. He left his brother's garage about 1 p. m. on Tuesday—the garage is in West Harwich—went home, got some cork stoppers, went into the woods in back of his home and blackened his face.

"He put on white gloves. He then went to the South Chatham postoffice and made two telephone calls, one to Miss Holmes at the school, saying he was Mr. McMath and wanted Peggy dismissed early and that a car would call for her, and one to the McMath home, saying that there was trouble on the line and would they please leave the receiver off the hook for 10 minutes.

Gets Girl at School.

"He then went to the school, got the girl, went down Parallel street and then to Bank street, from Bank street to Long road, a distance of about a half mile, where he turned to the right into a small wood road which comes out on Gorham road.

"After going a short distance down this road, he stopped, bound Peggy, put her in the back seat, and then went through to Gorham road and back to Bank street, and then to a small house, not very far away, near a cranberry bog, the exact location of which he will show us, but which is difficult to describe. He left her there, returned to his brother's garage and left there at 10 minutes of three to get his own little boy at the schoolhouse.

Washes Cork Off Face.

"Somewhere along the line, we did not ask him, he washed the cork off his face. The car which he used was his own Hupmobile, a black sedan, with 1927 registration number, 165,-068. After he returned home he had a bad fright because a grass fire started not far from the little house in which the girl lay and the fire department went down there to put out the fire. In fact, he thought that they must stumble across the little girl. He then had in his pocket a note to Mr. McMath telling Mr. McMath not to report the kidnaping to the police or to the press. Because of the fire incident and the belief that the girl was undoubtedly discovered he tore up the note and threw it away.

"In an effort to determine whether the child was there, he then went out and played golf because the eighth fairway goes very near to the small building where Peggy was. This is the Harwichport golf course.

"However, he did not learn anything because he did not dare go near the small building. He did go near the building after dark and took her to the house almost opposite of where he lived. This house is unoccupied. She was at no time gagged, because she had promised him that she would not make any noise and he believed her. He could not figure out how to contact Mr. McMath. Finally he decided to appeal to his brother, Cyril, to act as intermediary. Peggy stayed in this unoccupied house somewhere in the basement.

"The following morning after placing the child there he approached his brother. That was the first time the brother, Cyril, had any knowledge of Kenneth's connection with the kidnaping. Cyril from there on acted as the intermediary. The child was kept in the house until taken to the boat Thursday night.

Father Is Blindfolded.

"Mr. McMath was blindfolded when he went to get the child. Kenneth Buck at no time was armed and didn't own a gun.

"Kenneth Buck corroborated Peggy's story in regard to the note. He has identified one note which I have as one of the notes which he caused her to send. He also identified a paper in my possession as being in his handwriting, this paper being used on the boat in connection with his conversation with Mr. McMath.

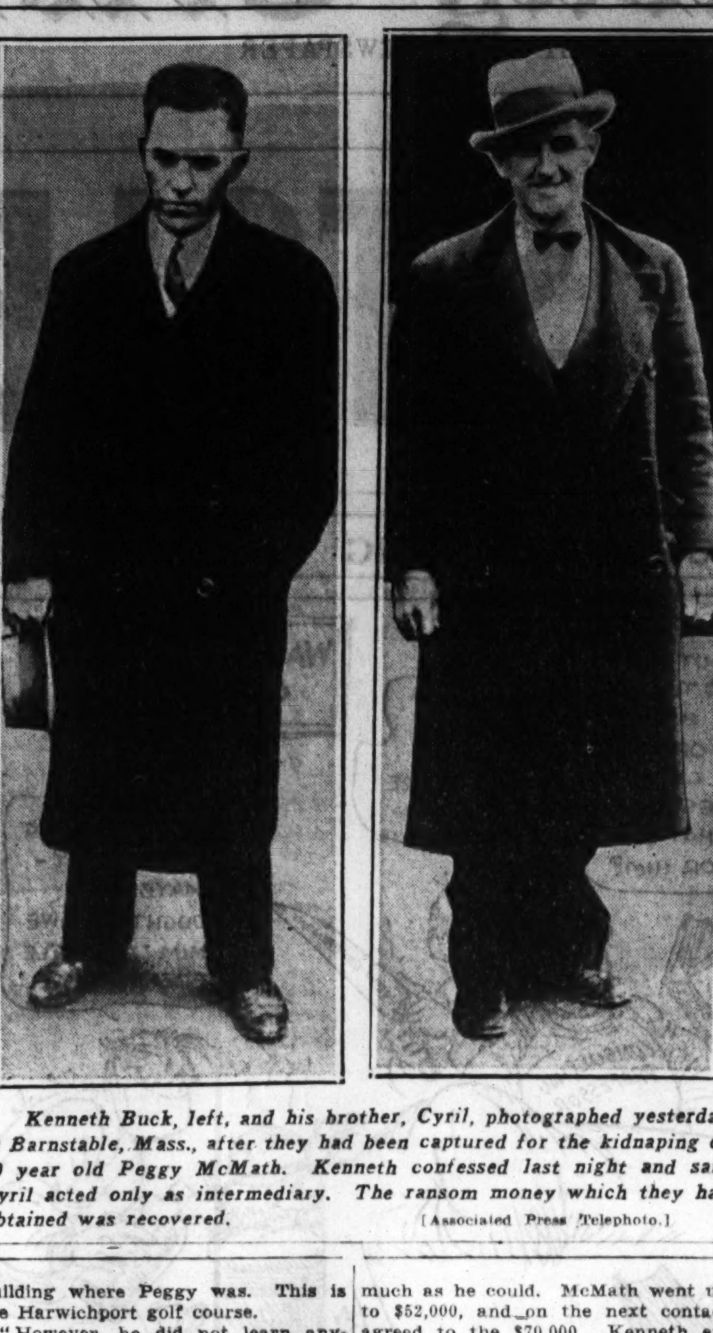
"In his conversation on the boat Kenneth Buck did not at any time speak, so that his answers to questions asked by Mr. McMath were written. This paper has been in our possession since Friday.

"Kenneth said his wife knew nothing about it. His original demand was $250,000. Mr. McMath offered $25,000. Kenneth then told Cyril to get as much as he could. McMath went up to $52,000, and on the next contact agreed to the $70,000. Kenneth expected that Cyril had received $10,000 of that $70,000, but has, of course, since learned that Cyril in fact did not take the $10,000. He asked for it in bills. He mentioned no denominations. That was arranged by the bank. Kenneth accepted it as it came.

"Kenneth broke down time and again so he couldn't talk for periods, and continually said, 'I'm ashamed of myself.' He had great sympathy for Peggy, which was why he was good to her. He has been very frank in everything he has said.

"He got very much worried and says that on Friday he became tremendously conscious stricken and decided to go to Father Moran and tell him all about it, return all the money, and hope to be forgiven."

CHILD'S KIDNAPERS CAUGHT



Kenneth Buck, left, and his brother, Cyril, photographed yesterday at Barnstable, Mass., after they had been captured for the kidnaping of 10 year old Peggy McMath. Kenneth confessed last night and said Cyril acted only as intermediary. The ransom money which they had obtained was recovered.

10 Year Old Girl Confesses She Wrote Extortion Note

San Francisco, Cal., May 6.—(AP)—Police said 10 year old Geraldine Planchon confessed she and two other "little girls" left a $10,000 extortion note at the home of Bernard Jensen, a janitor, threatening kidnaping of his 4 year old son. The girl was quoted as saying she wrote the note because "Bernie," the Jensen child, "had a fight with my little brother."

the prosecutor began questioning Kurzwelly.

Q.—Did you see anything unusual that night? A.—Sergt. Drury brought in two prisoners. They were searched for valuables and locked up.

Q.—Did you notice anything else unusual? [Kurzwelly scratched his head, looked up at the ceiling, glanced at the intent visage of Winkler.] A.—No.

Q.—Didn't you see a gun? A.—A gun? No, I didn't see any gun.

Mr. Dougherty leaped up and waved the statement in Kurzwelly's face. "You made a sworn statement that you saw Drury remove the gun. Why have you changed your story?"

Something Looking Like Gun.

"I didn't say I saw a gun. I said I saw something that looked like a gun," said Kurzwelly. The defense attorneys were shouting "frameup," and there ensued an altercation among counsel, followed by the exclusion of the jury. The court instructed Mr. Dougherty not to pursue the examination about the gun.

On cross-examination of Kurzwelly Mr. Smith took Winkler's tortoise shell cigaret case, eight inches long, very thin and expensive looking.

Q.—When you saw something that looked like a gun, could it have been this? A.—Yes, it could have.

Q.—Did you receive any threats from the state that you would lose your job if you didn't testify that you saw the gun? A.—Lots of them. Capt. Gilbert [chief investigator for the state's attorney's office] said I'd get a good trimming if I didn't say I saw it. He said I ought to be hung. But I wouldn't perjure myself for anybody. I always tell the truth.

Goldblatt Stifles a Snicker.

This sally brought an outburst of laughter from the spectators, and Goldblatt, sitting behind Winkler, covered his mouth with a handkerchief to stifle a snicker. The state rested and the defense put only Goldblatt on the stand. He also saw no gun, he testified.

Winkler, a former bank robber pal of Fred [Killer] Burke and successor to the late Ted Newberry as boss of the northside rackets, kept up his record of wearing a different ensemble on each court appearance. He was resplendent yesterday in vivid blue.

3 Men in Auto Rob 2 Sisters and Escorts

The victims were Helen Bartowicz, 22 years old, and her sister, Margaret, 18 years old; Robert J. Steward, 1347 Grace street, and Arthur W. Ludka, 2602 Clinton street, River Grove. The robbers took $3.70 from the four.

ATTORNEY FOR CAPONE FILES A BRIEF ASKING THAT HE BE RELEASED

New Orleans, La., May 6.—(AP)—Counsel for Al Capone, former Chicago gangster, filed a supplementary brief today in their appeal before the United States Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in an effort to obtain Capone's release from the Atlanta penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus.

The court heard oral arguments of counsel for Capone and government attorneys here ten days ago and at that time granted the request to file the additional brief. The government's answer to this brief is expected to be filed next week.

The supplementary brief cites scores of cases in reference to claims that Capone should be released because the indictment charging him with evasion of income taxes in 1925, 1926, and 1927 was returned more than three years after the offenses for which he was convicted had occurred.

The present appeal, which is now under advisement of the Appellate court, was taken from a decision of the Atlanta federal District court which several months ago dismissed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

GUNMEN BLACKEN FACES; ROB 28 IN CHURCH MEETING

Two gunmen, their faces blackened with paint as a disguise, held up a meeting of business men in the hall of the Russian Evangelical Baptist church at 2127 Crystal street last night. They lined up the twenty-eight present, and searched them, taking from $1 to $35 from each. The heaviest loser was Alex Kradyzich, 12527 South Marshfield avenue, president of the Business Men's club. Leo Lukes, 1828 North Marshfield avenue, lost cash and a topcoat.

TEAMSTER UNION VOTES TODAY ON WHO'LL BE BOSS

Rule of Anti-Racketeer Leader Faces Test.

Members of the coal teamsters' union have been summoned to a mass meeting at 2 p. m. today in the headquarters at 637 South Ashland avenue to approve or reject the action of an insurgent leader, George Roy Baker, who with ten followers marched into the place last Monday and ousted two union officers, Jack Sheridan Jr. and Milton Booth Jr.

Sheridan and Booth, Baker claims, were held in office only by the power of Sheridan's father, John Sheridan Sr., and his reputed gang allies, William [Klondike] O'Donnell and Willie [Three Fingered Jack] White. The ousted leaders are now petitioning Superior Judge William J. Lindsay to renew an injunction he granted them twenty months ago, restraining Baker and his men from removing them.

Baker Refused Injunction.

Baker had previously sought, without success, an injunction from Judge Denis E. Sullivan to restrain the Sheridans from conducting the affairs of the union. His contention was that the Sheridans took control of the Chicago Teamsters' union and its subsidiary coal teamsters' local by force. The Sheridan unions are not connected with the American Federation of Labor.

In granting the Sheridans their injunction, Judge Lindsay held that possession of a union was an inherent property right, subject to all the safeguards surrounding property. The appellate court overruled him and dismissed the injunction, but Baker refrained from acting until the explosion of a number of bombs and the kidnaping of two of the Sheridan satellites, Fred Sass and Morris Goldberg, focused public attention on racket ramifications in the teamster unions last week.

Bomb Quiz in Waukegan.

James Farmer of Maywood, head of the Lake county affiliate of the Sheridan unions, called on State's Attorney Charles E. Mason in Waukegan yesterday for questioning regarding a bomb exploded last Monday night at the Lake Forest home of Arthur Metzger, business agent of the Lake county local of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. The executive committee of this local, which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, was meeting in Metzger's basement at the time of the bombing.

Taken to task by the state's attorney for his tardiness in appearing, Farmer said he was afraid to enter Lake county lest he be "killed."

He was escorted to Waukegan by Benjamin Barsema, chief of the Oak Park police.

Farmer branded Metzger's story that he was responsible for the bombing as "preposterous." He admitted offering Metzger a job with his union some time ago, as Metzger alleged, but denied Metzger's assertion that when Metzger refused the offer he had told him to "pin your ears back, because you're going for a ride."

Mr. Mason dismissed Farmer with a warning to stay out of Lake county.

RESCUE US FROM POVERTY! CUBANS APPEAL TO U. S.

Foes of Machado Regime Ask for Intervention.

BY ELLIOTT TARBELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 6.—When Ambassador Sumner Welles arrives here tomorrow he will find himself welcomed as the "miracle man" of Cuba's destiny. For it is to him that a large majority of Cubans are looking to restore Cuba economically.

The strained situation confronting Welles was reëmphasized by the bombing early this morning of the plant of the Heraldo de Cuba, official organ of the government. It is owned by Orestes Ferrara, secretary of state, and President Machado's first lieutenant.

It is believed the bomb was placed at the door of the plant by two woman agents of the A. B. C. terrorist organization. A policeman picked up the package and was killed when the missile exploded. Several bystanders were injured. Nearly a dozen suspects were arrested.

What Will U. S. Do?

I have just returned from a trip over the entire island between Havana and Santiago. One thing impresses the observer above all others. When a Cuban finds that he is talking to an American who is "safe," the first question he is likely to ask is: "What do you think Welles will do? He'll help us, won't he?"

This is no isolated expression. I have talked with business men, lawyers, manufacturers, and newspaper men. All ask the same thing. At all costs they want American action quickly. The depression amounts to destitution. The people hope for a lowering of the sugar tariff wall by the United States. Some hope for intervention by the United States.

Some years ago mere mention of intervention by the United States would have had most of the Cubans up in arms. They could have no "foreign meddling." But many elements now agree that situation is changed.

Protest Tax Burden.

The anti-administration element holds it is impossible to arrive at a solution of their difficulties under Machado—that his continuance in office means only further repression, a constantly climbing tax burden. They prophesy a continuation of the warfare of guerrilla bands against the government, which would keep the island unsettled and aggravate an economic situation already desperate.

Many among the anti-Machado element now have little faith in the ability of the opposition to set up a stable government even if they were to succeed in ousting Machado. There is a lack of leadership and in the event of opposition success the antis would soon be fighting each other, in the opinion of well informed men. They want to prevent this and feel that the only way to do it is through intervention by the United States.

Some are even convinced American intervention should not be of short duration, believing it better for it to be maintained a number of years until it is certain that Cuba is definitely on the upgrade economically and that the political situation has cleared sufficiently for the island to take its affairs in its own hands and establish a sound government.

Guerrillas Roam Hills.

In spite of the power and ability of Machado's régime there is a continuing disorder. Various small bands of guerrillas are roaming the hills in Oriente, Camaguey, and Santa Clara provinces, ready to snipe at isolated detachments of soldiers. These scattered and virtually leaderless rebels have little or no chance of defeating Cuba's well equipped army, which, with the national, provincial, and municipal police, numbers about 18,000.

But the rebels can carry on terrorism as they did against Spain before the Cuban liberation. Already many of these irregulars in the Oriente hills north of Santiago and near Holguin have prepared for a campaign of terror by burning bridges, blasting railways, burning plantations, raiding villages for food supplies, and taking such toll as they can in skirmishes with troops.

Similar groups are working in Camaguey and Santa Clara provinces but their number is fewer. The uprising at San Luis, Oriente province, in which nineteen were killed a week ago, is revealed as the result of a break between two revolutionist leaders. As a consequence a band of hotheads attacked the town's military guard.

Oppositionists in Exile.

All the important leaders, of whom Mario Menocal, former president, is the most outstanding, are now exiles in the United States. Menocal is ill at Miami and the rest of the opposition junta seems unable to raise sufficient equipment or to get organized efficiently enough for successful combat.

Dissatisfaction is expressed in the opposition's ranks about the junta, the feeling being that the leaders are living comfortably in exile and doing little to help at the scene of the trouble while the plight of the people here becomes constantly worse. Seizure of suspected foes of the government continues, despite the liberation of many political prisoners.

To summarize, all Cubans hope for a cut in the United States sugar tariff as regards Cuba, to enable the marketing of the crop. The view is that with a living price for the island's chief crop, the depression would lighten and the opposition would fade out. Many believe the only salvation would be in American intervention—a third attempt to bring order to a politics-ridden island.

FUNDS TO PAY SCHOOL EMPLOYES ARE WITHIN $38,000 OF THE GOAL

Sales of tax anticipation warrants to finance a pay day for 14,000 teachers and 4,000 other school employés reached a total of $2,362,000 yesterday. Attorney Henry P. Chandler, head of the drive, expressed the hope that enough cash would be obtained on Monday and Tuesday to complete the September pay roll of $3,400,000.

The school board now has available a total of $3,180,000, which includes: $2,362,000 from warrant sales, $750,000 from the state distributive fund, $48,000 in a sale of warrants to Mayor Kelly by the Studebaker Sales corporation, and $20,000 in cash on hand.

Among the subscribers that purchased warrants yesterday was the Chicago National League Ball club. The Cubs bought $1,000 worth.

PSEUDO PRIEST SETS UP ALIBI IN GIRL'S MURDER

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—Brought back by airplane from Philadelphia where his fondness for posing as a priest got him into trouble with the authorities James Gavagan, 23, convinced the Nassau county police tonight that he was innocent of the murder of Mary Helen O'Connor, a student at the Bishop McDonnell high school in Brooklyn, whose body was found in Massapequa Feb. 2.

After giving the police an alibi which they checked to their satisfaction, Gavagan was held at Mineola for questioning into the disappearance about three weeks ago of a 12 year old son of a Queens policeman.

News of that boy's disappearance was discovered for the first time, Inspector Harold R. King explaining that a confidential alarm had been sent out for him at the time. According to Inspector King, the bogus priest had been living at the home of the Queens policeman, whose name also is Gavagan. King said the prisoner had convinced the policeman that he was a relative.

Inspector John J. Gallagher and Capt. Edward Burke of the Queens police and Assistant District Attorneys James Conroy and Joseph Voscalzo, also of Queens, were summoned to Inspector King's office to take part in questioning the prisoner in connection with the disappearance of the boy.

PERU WARSHIPS USE U. S. CANAL; LEAGUE STIRRED

Nation Told to Explain Naval Maneuver.

GENEVA, May 6.—(AP)—The league of nations today asked Peru to explain why a Peruvian naval squadron has been sent from the Pacific waters through the Panama canal to the Atlantic ocean, whence access is possible by the Amazon river to the Leticia area, site of Peru's warlike dispute with Colombia.

The league also, through its advisory committee on the Leticia dispute, requested neighboring countries to furnish any information which might throw light upon the purpose of this Peruvian naval maneuver.

League Is Alarmed.

Officials of the league are concerned lest the movement of the Peruvian ships, one cruiser and two submarines, may be directed against Colombian forces now attempting to regulate the Leticia situation. Peru's policy in Leticia has been condemned by the league council which is continuing its efforts to bring about a settlement of the trouble by peaceful means.

The Leticia committee, presided over by the Irish Free State delegate, Sean Lester, was hurriedly summoned to meet today when French authorities reported the Peruvian maneuver. Hugh L. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, who is coöperating with the committee, immediately asked for full instructions from Washington.

The rights of belligerents or reputed belligerents in the Panama canal area and adjacent waters were discussed by the committee. The French member reported that the warships already had been refused the right to revictual in the Canal Zone.

Cuba to Order Ships On.

HAVANA, May 6.—(AP)—The Cuban government will not permit the Peruvian squadron, which is believed to be headed for Havana after passing through the Panama canal, to remain longer than 24 hours in a Cuban port, Secretary of State Ferrara said today. The Peruvian warships, moreover, the secretary said, may not take on more supplies than are necessary for their continuance to some "very near port."

Bolivian Planes Bomb Hospital.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, May 6.—(AP)—The Paraguayan ministry of war announced today that five Bolivian airplanes had bombarded the hospital for infectious diseases at Casanillo, near Nanawa. The damages were reported to be slight, but flying debris resulted in some injuries.

AIR LINE OPENS WEATHER BUREAU ON TOP OF ANDES

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MENDOZA, Argentina, May 6.—The Pan-American airways today inaugurated what is believed to be the highest weather observatory in South America. It is about 100 feet from the famous Christ of Andes monument on the summit of Uspallata pass, at an altitude of 12,500 feet.

The station will maintain constant telegraphic communication with Mendoza and Santiago, Chile, from where weather reports are to be raidioed to planes in flight.

The station will receive reports every few minutes from Linesmen patrolling the American and British transandean telegraphic lines, enabling the pilots to receive reports of weather conditions at fifteen-mile intervals between Santiago and Mendoza.

500 MILLION DOLLAR FEDERAL HIGHWAY PROGRAM IS URGED

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—A 500 million dollar emergency highway program for this year to be financed by a federal public works bond issue was advocated today by the National Association of State Highway officials. It proposed that 400 million be expended as an aid to state highway programs with no provisions for "dollar matching," and that 100 million be used for constructing "feeder" roads connecting with state highway systems.

FIRST 10 'QUEENS' OF THE FAIR ARE PICTURED TODAY

You Will Find Them in Tribune Rotogravure.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

The first ten of the fifty-one lucky girls chosen for the court of the Queen of A Century of Progress are pictured this morning in the rotogravure section of THE TRIBUNE. Photographs of the others will appear on succeeding Sundays.

The fifty-one young women are winners out of a total entry of approximately 100,000 candidates from this country and from many lands beyond the seas. The first ten, by report of couriers who are scurrying through many states and cities interviewing the nominees, measure up fully to the standards of charm and personality established for the court. They come from varying social strata and represent practically all types of beauty, yet they will meet on common ground of intelligence and interests.

They'll Be Here May 25.

Down from skyscraper offices, in from the tennis courts, up from the swimming pool, out of the classrooms, the fifty-one winners will arrive in the loop on May 25. They will congregate in seven loop hotels for a ten day program that will eclipse any interval of social diversion any of them can boast.

Messages concerning the winning girls chosen some days ago by the board of eight judges are winging their way back into Chicago from all points of the compass, enthusiastically indorsing the final verdict of the board members. This group of young women, the consensus is, will do the exposition proud.

Clear eyed, fresh skinned, athletic, artistic, musical, some wistful and demure, others dashing and animated, the fifty-one are individually and collectively representative of all that is most commendable and refreshing in the younger generation.

Two Candidates from Europe.

From Europe two candidates have been summoned to compete with the American entrants in the final, personal review of the judges, which will be held on May 26 in the Bal Tabarin of the Hotel Sherman. Both the foreign contenders are highly commended by the correspondents who told them of their success.

Blonde or brunette, tall or petite, small town girl or big city nominee, the entire court will appear before the judges attired in identical frocks, to discount the possible advantage of a glamorous costume. The girls will wear dinner dresses of white organdy of a smart and simple design, fitted to their measure after their arrival. No variation from this uniform garb will be permitted.

Out of the ensemble, the judges will select the Queen of the Fair. Five thousand dollars goes with the crown. To the second and third choice in the order named will go $3,000 and $2,000, and posts of maid of honor to the queen. Robes of white satin will be substituted for the snowy organdy, and the trio will be fêted immediately after their selection, at a coronation dinner at which the judges will break bread with the royal court.

Members of the Jury.

Artists and art patrons making up the jury include John T. McCutcheon, Mrs. R. R. McCormick, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Howard Ellis, Mrs. Pauline Palmer, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, and Wallace Kirk.

Each of the candidates arriving in Chicago from other cities or from abroad will be assigned to one of the official hotels of the contest—the Drake, Palmer House, Congress, Allerton, Stevens, Chicago Beach, and the Sherman. The girls will be divided into groups, each group to be attended by a chaperon.

Every phase of a well rounded program is considered in the calendar of their ten day visit. Their major activities will consist of their participation in the final review in which the Queen of the Fair will be identified, and in the inaugural parade and opening of the exposition itself.

First Winners Described.

This morning's pictured group of ten winners illustrates the widely divergent paths and backgrounds of the girls. From the Chicago area comes an unsophisticated, diffident little high school graduate whose one year of stenography has been followed by another year of idleness. Her father is a railroad man.

From the suburban section comes a graduate student at Northwestern university, daughter of a Texas banker, niece of the late John Harrison of Danville, Ill., widely known publisher. She will take a master's degree in sociology next month. Her home is in Evanston at present and her ambition is to become a social service worker.

Georgia presents a student nurse now living in New York, whose home town of Thomasville knows her aristocratic ancestors by heart. Supreme court justice, governor of Georgia, officer of civil war troops, all are listed among her forbears, and the genealogical record goes back to Pocohontas.

There's a girl from Indianapolis, widely popular for her pleasant manner and friendly way, who is one of the outstanding members of the junior class at St. Mary's college, Notre Dame.

Chicago's south shore district contributes a former student at Ogontz finishing school, tall, blonde, and brown eyed, whose father is a manufacturer and whose leisurely days are occupied only with her music and her social activities.

The west side of the city has a candidate whose charm of face and manner is enhanced by a voice of exquisite texture and dramatic quality. She is the daughter of a policeman, now dead, at whose wish she gave up a theatrical career.

NOTES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR

The Chinese pavilion was dedicated yesterday on the World's Fair grounds. Nearly 300 of Chicago's Chinese population gathered to watch the flag of the Chinese republic hauled up the mast. A 12 foot string of firecrackers was exploded in celebration of the occasion.

Canada's participation in the World's Fair, as described to the house of commons at Ottawa by H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, will include displays showing tourist possibilities in the dominion, traveling accommodations, national resources, and some of the leading industries such as agriculture, mining, and lumbering. Canada will have a site 70 by 80 feet in the Travel and Transport building. A huge map of the country will furnish the background of the exhibit.

Flying Turns, a thrill ride on the Midway of the World's Fair, will be dedicated and placed in operation this afternoon. The ride is constructed to simulate airplane stunting.

All of the eleven model homes, which will be exhibited near Home Planning hall, will contain air conditioning units. The kitchens will have automatic refrigeration, either electric or gas operated ovens controlled as to heat and time; dishwashing machines; electric toasters, percolators, mixers, and other electric utensils.

A Century of Progress station of the Chicago postoffice will be dedicated on the fair grounds Tuesday morning. Postmaster Arthur C. Lueder will be among the speakers. The station will open with eight employés, according to O. Van Winter, assistant superintendent of delivery. About 60 collection boxes will be placed in the grounds at intervals of 600 feet.

The production of Firestone tires will be shown at A Century of Progress in a completely equipped factory in the Firestone building. All the steps in the manufacture of tires, from the mixing mill which takes the crude rubber to the vulcanization process which engraves the tread, will be exhibited.

NO MATTER HOW YOU FIGURE IT, THE PUBLIC PAYS

Otto Carony and Max Ferrello will continue to live for some time at public expense, but not from relief furnished by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. Judge McGarry made this decision yesterday when he fined Ferrello $200 and Carony $100 and ordered them to the Bridewell to work out the penalties.

They were arraigned on charges of robbing Anthony Broell, 53 West Ohio street, on May 4. They were later arrested by Policeman Neil Begley of the Central station. When Judge McGarry was informed that both defendants were on the relief rolls he promptly imposed sentence.

Carony gave his address to the police as 714 Bunker street. Ferrello said his was 2237 Taylor street.

KISS GIVEN TO EARL MEANINGLESS, AVERS MISS SALLY BLANE

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Sally Blane, the movie actress who recently got herself reported engaged to an earl by kissing him goodby at a Hollywood airport, let it be known today that a kiss is just a kiss as far as she is concerned.

Sailing for Europe aboard the French liner Lafayette, she said:

"I am not in love with the Earl of Warwick and he is not in love with me. That kiss didn't mean anything. I kiss all my friends."

She said she and the earl became friends—"and that's all"—while he was visiting the movie colony. She added that he felt the same way about it and purposely had canceled his passage on the same boat in order to put a stop to the rumors.

Miss Blane was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. James Hanley of London, whose house guest she will be.

Model House Christened in Evanston Ceremony

A model house, complete in every detail, was mounted on a truck and transported through the streets of Evanston yesterday. The traveling home, which is sponsored by 27 national manufacturers to demonstrate methods of improving houses, was christened at Church street and Orrington avenue. Mayor Charles H. Bartlett presided, and Diana Sawyer, 5 years old, 730 Clark street, Evanston, broke a bottle of water on the front of the truck.

Six posters were chosen, three painted posters and three cut out and paste posters. The prizes in each class were $5, $3, and $1 for first, second, and third, the money in each case to be deposited in a bank as the beginning of a savings account.

The paint poster winners were Margaret Oakes of the Cleveland school at Niles Center, first; Amber O'Connor of Palos Park school, second; and Florence Fischer of the Oak Lawn school. The cut out and paste contest was won by Donna Bethke of the Wilson school, Bellwood; Ida Ruiter of the Lansing school second; and Lorraine Wright of the Justice Park school third.

MORTON SENIOR WINS FIRST IN SPEECH CONTEST

Stephen Mueller, 5133 West 22nd avenue, Cicero, a senior in the J. Sterling Morton high school, won first prize yesterday in the extemporaneous speaking contest at the Western State Teachers' college in Macomb, Ill. The Illinois State High School Music and Literary association sponsored the contests, in which more than 1,000 high school students from all parts of the state participated.

Woodrow Jonda, 2340 South Harvey avenue, Berwyn, a sophomore at Morton, won third place in the humorous declamation contest. The leaders in the music contest were the Mount Morris, Watseka, and Mendota high schools.

The Part Wives Play

THE part wives play was the subject of a survey made by the School of Finance of a Prominent University.

The survey showed that a wife who does not live within her husband's income actually lowers that man's earning power. He can not do his best. His wages are soon lowered.

We realize what a hard time some wives have to manage at all. It isn't easy to feed and clothe a family, and at the same time save money for the insurance.

But hats off to the wonderful women who can.

These women tell us that buying their family's food at A & P is a great help to them. They say they get the best food obtainable; that they pay less for it; and that at the end of the month they know exactly where they stand because they've paid cash.

The part wives play in their husbands' success is tremendous. Back of every man stands a woman who determines to some extent the measure of his prosperity.

ELECTRICITY: ITS LIFE AND WORKS! A DRAMA OF FAIR

95 Foot Diorama Depicts the Story of Power.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The drama of electricity from its generation amid bleak mountain crags to its utilization in a modernistic city was revealed last night in a heroic diorama that will be one of the supreme spectacular features of the World's Fair.

The work of 110 artists and artisans who have been toiling for eight months on this $60,000 animated picture was crowned at 9 o'clock when Miss Barbara Graf, daughter of Robert J. Graf, vice president of the Byllesby corporation, poured into the diorama's low-head hydro-electric station a pitcher of water from the site on the Fox river near Appleton, Wis., of the first hydro-electric station built in the United States, just half a century ago.

Diorama Goes Into Action.

Instantly the 95 foot tableau broke into light and movement. Reservoirs in mountain fastnesses sparkled with sudden fire. The drama of light and movement flung itself upon the dark plains far below the crags, and the turbines in open cross-section models of hydro-electric stations began to turn.

Swiftly the drama marched across pastoral to industrial America. Electrically equipped ranches where cattle grazed, and electrically equipped quarries and steel mills were disclosed. Transmission towers sentineled the valleys and the plains. Cranes were swinging against the horizon.

The twinkling lights crossed green stretches of woodland to cozy model farms where electricity had taken the weariness and dreariness out of toil. Light glided into the suburbs of a great city, searching out the dustless circumference of the interiors of circular apartment houses, all the outer walls of which were of glass. It touched with a mellow glow the church towers, theaters, skyscrapers, gleaming subways, and elevated highways of what the voice of a concealed lecturer was calling "a modernistic Utopia—a model city of a quarter of a century hence."

Perhaps Nearer than That.

"Who knows?" mused the voice. "Perhaps we shall achieve it far sooner, for the story of the distribution and utilization of electricity is little more than half a century old."

The pageant of light moved across the city, revealing the workings of a steam electric-generating station with switch yards leading into it. Trains were running and entire cars were turning over to dump coal. In the background rose an airport, completely elevated—as if the stadium of Soldiers' field were filled with earth to its topmost cornice and then sodded over.

Light marched on, illuminating elevated highways leading to the next city. America, from the serpentine penstocks on the tawny mountain sides to the most delicate mechanisms in the low-head and the high-head hydro-electric stations, the America of farm and flat and mine and quarry and executive office, was electrically at work, and life seemed very clean and expeditious.

From the River to the City.

In a few entrancing minutes the lookers-on, standing before what is said to be the world's largest diorama, had seen all the prodigious drama from the moving waters in the sluices of dammed rivers to the latest word in community convenience.

That is what the diorama is—a drama of the efficiency and convenience which electricity hath wrought.

This three-dimensional picture is 95 feet long and its scale is three sixteenths of an inch to one foot in diminishing perspective. From its front edge the spectator looks upon a depth of twenty miles of mountain, valley, plain, and city to the horizon line. Its purpose is to show at a glance—and it does—the generation, transmission, distribution and utilization of electricity. It was built in thirteen sections, and today those sections will be taken apart and moved from the studio at 3669 South Michigan avenue to the World's Fair grounds, where they will be set up as the central feature of a special exhibit called "Electricity at Work" that will occupy 8,000 square feet.

Designed by Charles G. Beersman.

The magnificent tableau was the design of a man of genius—Charles G. Beersman, who was associated with the design and construction of such notable American buildings as the Scottish Rite temple, Washington, D. C.; the Missouri state capitol, the new Cleveland Union station, and, in Chicago, the Continental Illinois bank, the Straus building and the Wrigley building. The material used by the architect, engineers and sculptors who executed his diorama—some of them from the ranks of the idle—was a preparation of paper pulp, plaster and wire mesh called dextrine—hard as marble when it sets.

"Take this," said Mr. Beersman, "as a compact definition of a diorama: A pictorial representation in three dimensions with height and depth and with the modeling made in perspective in such a way that it blends into a painted background. And let me add that in normal times this one would have cost not sixty thousand, but a hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

The Origin of Dioramas.

The original dioramic idea goes way back to Louis Daguerre—1789-1851—who also invented the daguerreotype.

Among the electrical magnates who saw last night's preview of the cross-country drama of electricity were B. E. Sunny of the Illinois Bell Telephone company, Edward W. Lloyd of the Commonwealth Edison company, W. O. Batchelder of the General Electric company, S. T. Whiting of the Westinghouse company, and John J. O'Brien, president of the Standard Gas and Electric company.

And they were charmed by the vast lesson and entertainment.

10 CO-EDS AT N. U. PICK A CAREER: THEY'LL BE WED

Soon After Graduation, Too, They Say.

Ten girls, members of the graduating class at Northwestern university, are in no doubt as to the careers they will follow after receiving their diplomas in June.

They will enter, quite soon after the baccalaureate sermon has been preached, into matrimony.

Miss Juliana Bollen of Denison, Ia., is to be married on June 19 to James Chapman of Evanston. Of the remaining nine, none would set a definite date for the ceremony, although all asserted plans had been made for the summer or early autumn.

Miss Ilg Bride-to-Be.

Miss Marguerite Ilg, 1100 North Dearborn parkway, is to be wed to Herbert Keefe of 648 Sheridan road, and Miss Elizabeth Sackett, 2430 Orrington avenue, Evanston, is to march to the altar with Reginald David Crocker of Evanston.

Sometime in the fall Miss Frances Johnson of Cambridge, Ill., and Jack M. Willem Jr. of Milwaukee will be married. Miss Virginia Stone, 718 Columbian avenue, Oak Park, is the bride to be of Kirk Holland of Evanston. Miss Mitzi Severin, 5625 North Spaulding avenue, is to be married to Walter Y. Cox, son of a professor at Northwestern.

Miss Dorothy Gantzel, 527 Linden avenue, Wilmette, has announced her engagement to Fred Arthur Stuck of Racine, Wis., and Miss Helen Blackburn of Fairfield, Ill., is betrothed to Jack Gibson of San Antonio, Tex.

Wyneken-Hardy Nuptials Set.

The remaining brides are Miss Jean Wyneken, 1910 Sherman avenue, Evanston, who will wed Vaughn Hardy of Evanston, and Miss Lucy Stifler, 5648 Dorchester avenue, who is to marry Benjamin M. Philbrick of Evanston.

Another Body Is Found in Canal at Lockport

The body of an unidentified man about 55 years old was found near the sanitary canal dam at Lockport yesterday. An empty cartridge wrapped in a woman's handkerchief was found in the man's pocket. The body had been in the water about five or six weeks, the police estimated. Sergt. Frank Starshak of the missing persons bureau of the Chicago police was asked to aid in the identification. Two other bodies were taken from the canal near Lockport last week.

TWO BRIDES OF CHICAGO SOCIETY BERMUDA BOUND

Hunter and Love Weddings in Afternoon.

BY JUDITH CASS.

Two Chicago brides are Bermuda bound today. They are Anne Schuttler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schuttler, who wed Norris Love yesterday at the country home of her parents in Wheaton, and Ruth Hunter, daughter of Mrs. Robert Hunter of 1500 Lake Shore drive, who became the bride of Harding Wilbur in a ceremony at the Fortnightly club.

Both of the weddings were performed at 4:30 o'clock before improvised altars banked with wild cherry and apple blossoms.

The cherry blossoms, illuminated only by the soft glow of white tapers, were the background for the Schuttler-Love nuptials in the living room of the Schuttlers' Wheaton house on the edge of the Chicago Golf club grounds. Wearing a pearl wreath around her head and a three and a half yard satin train, the bride repeated her vows after the Rev. Dudley Stark of St. Chrysostom's church.

Her dress was of the purest white satin, fashioned with a cowl neck, a twisted girdle of satin, and long close fitting sleeves. Over it floated a short tulle veil. The bridal bouquet was gardenias and valley lilies.

Sister Only Attendant.

Miss Jane Schuttler was her sister's only attendant. George R. Beach Jr. of Montclair, N. J., served as best man for Mr. Love, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin M. Love of Riverside.

After the ceremony there was a reception for the hundred relatives and friends who witnessed the ceremony. Among those from out of town were Mr. Schuttler's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Myron A. Wick of Cleveland, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Horace Keeler, also of Cleveland. Upon their return from Bermuda Mr. Love and his bride are to occupy the Schuttler's town apartment at 2355 Commonwealth avenue.

For her wedding yesterday afternoon to Harding Wilbur, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Wilbur, Miss Hunter wore a medieval gown of deep ivory satin, fashioned with a train of rosepoint lace and satin. A long tulle veil swept out gracefully from a tiny French cap, also of rosepoint lace. In her right hand she carried the white satin bound New Testament that her mother purchased a number of years ago in Jerusalem. From the Bible hung white satin streamers tied with valley lilies.

Given Away by Uncle.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Thomas E. Wilson, before an altar of green flanked on either side by apple blossoms in the ballroom of the Fortnightly club. Dr. Alfred Lee Wilson of the Kenwood church performed the ceremony.

Mr. Wilbur was served by Richard Knight of New York as best man.

After the ceremony there was a reception for the 200 guests in the other rooms of the Fortnightly club, banked for the occasion with stock and snapdragons, white lilacs and white roses.

Guests who came from out of town for the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hervey Cabell of London, England; Mrs. Louis Clyde Sherwood of Detroit, Mrs. Merlin Cudlip of Grosse Point, Mich., Mrs. Edouard Petrequin and Miss Jean Petrequin of Shaker Heights, Cleveland, O., and Mrs. Willard Morse of Beverly Hills, Cal.

The bride and groom are to reside with Mrs. Hunter at 1500 Lake Shore drive after their return from Bermuda. In the fall they will take an apartment in Evanston.

Another wedding of interest to many Chicagoans was solemnized Friday in Roslyn, Long Island, when Mrs. Potter Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Potter of Chicago and Winter Park, Fla., was married to William Stuart Forbee of Boston. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Potter Jr.

MISS LOUISE MILLER AND ROOSEVELT KIN WED AT OYSTER BAY

Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 6.—(AP)—In a colonial mansion on a Long Island hill, Miss Louise Miller, one of the seven daughters of former Gov. and Mrs. Nathan L. Miller, became the bride today of Douglas Robinson, son of former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson and a prominent member of the Roosevelt family.

Relatives of both the late President Theodore Roosevelt and President Franklin D. Roosevelt were among the guests.

Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson, grandmother of the bridegroom and only sister of the late President, had asked before her death recently that plans for the wedding should go ahead as scheduled, but they were made more simple in her memory.

Both the father and mother of the bridegroom are members of the Roosevelt family. His mother is a daughter of the late James Roosevelt, half-brother of the present White House occupant, and his father is the son of the late Mrs. Corinne Robinson.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the late President, and Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the present President, were among the guests.

The couple plan to spend a honeymoon in Bermuda and live in North Branch, N. J.

BRITAIN PRESSED BY U. S. TO AGREE TO TARIFF TRUCE

Roosevelt Orders Envoy to Stay in London.

LONDON, May 6.—(AP)—After he had packed his bags to go to Geneva, Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's special ambassador, received new instructions today to stay in London and do his utmost to impel Britain to agree to an immediate tariff truce.

Davis faces a difficult task, as a powerful Conservative bloc in the cabinet opposes the armistice. It was reliably reported that the Washington government was willing to go far, however, in meeting any objections.

Want British to Clarify Stand.

The new instructions came as Davis was preparing to leave for the disarmament conference at Geneva. He probably will stay in England several days and if the Geneva situation becomes critical he may make a flying visit there.

Short of British adherence to the American truce proposal, the Washington government would like to obtain a definite declaration of the British position. This entails amplification of Prime Minister MacDonald's statement that Britain cannot participate in the agreement unless its own tariff position is protected by "safeguards."

Particular importance was attached to Britain's attitude because it was taken for granted that other nations were delaying their decisions because they expected to follow the British lead.

Little Hope for Truce.

For the most part, American quarters here held little hope that Britain would participate in a truce before the opening of the world economic conference June 12, and there has been considerable doubt about its adherence after the conference sessions have started.

Davis' task was further complicated today by the fact that Downing street was deserted, government officials having gone to the country for the weekend. Both Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon were away, but the American envoy used the telephone in carrying out his new instructions.

Political circles believed no announcement of the British policy will be made before the middle of next week. Support of the American plan may be expected after the cabinet has decided upon its reservations, it was said. This was believed to be made the more certain by an announcement from Tokio today that Japan had accepted the plan with reservations.

TWO NEW TRADE PACTS SIGNED BY ITALY, RUSSIA

ROME, May 6.—(AP)—Two trade agreements, which were hailed by the press as "important evidence of notable stimulation in trade between Italy and Russia," were signed today by Premier Mussolini and M. Levenson, Russian commercial representative.

A commercial accord contained a clause for mutual guarantees of credits. A customs agreement included a most-favored-nation clause. The commercial agreement was officially described as modeled on Il Duce's principle that there must be equal giving and taking in commercial relations to restore the world economic balance. Mussolini has been insisting on the necessity of revising many existing trade agreements to eliminate exaggerated unilateral profiting.

The new pact sets the minimum annual commercial movement of the two countries at 300,000,000 lire [$17,100,000] and provides for mutual credit guarantees, amounting on the Italian side to 75 per cent.

NAB U. S. WOMAN IN CANADA; HELD IN $100,000 THEFT

EDMONTON, Alta., May 6.—(AP)—Ethel Duggan, 25, was taken in technical custody today by a United States federal officer on charges that she participated in a $100,000 theft at Coffeyville, Kas.

She will be taken tonight to Calgary where the party will be joined by C. C. Todd, also sought in connection with the Coffeyville case. Both agreed to give up voluntarily, American officials said.

Todd formerly headed the Todd Furniture company of Coffeyville and Miss Duggan was secretary-treasurer. American authorities said the theft took place while the company was in bankruptcy proceedings. Two years ago Miss Duggan defeated extradition proceedings in connection with the same case.

TWO NEW YORK FIRMS RAISE WAGES 10 PCT., THEY WIRE ROOSEVELT

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's request before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States that employers raise wages already has brought results.

Two large New York firms today telegraphed him they were increasing employés' pay immediately.

Jacobson & Sons, manufacturers of shirts and clothing, through its president, Joseph C. Jacobson, placed the increase at 10 per cent.

The Simplicity Pattern company, through its president, J. M. Shapiro, told the President it had been decided to restore employés and wages "immediately to the point where they were before necessary reduction was made."

Detroit Plant Increases Pay.

Detroit, Mich., May 6.—(AP)—About 400 employés of the American Store Equipment corporation will benefit by a 10 per cent wage increase announced today by Ira Copeland, president.

The increase will go to all employés of the Detroit, Muskegon, and New York branches of the corporation and its subsidiary, the American Bar Equipment company.

"We feel it is the logical move to increase wages and spur on business recovery, now that it has started," Copeland said, "instead of letting wages wait until everything else has been cared for."

250,000 BRITONS TO DEMONSTRATE AGAINST FASCISM

Big Meeting Due in London Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—The vast open spaces of Hyde Park are expected to be jammed tomorrow in a joint Socialist demonstration against Fascism. Strong squads of police have been summoned for duty. The direction of traffic will be left in the hands of civilian specials.

The trade unions and the Labor party will coöperate in the demonstration, in which thousands of marchers are expected to pour into the park. These will be joined by groups of communists and members of the Independent Labor party.

Lansbury to Speak.

Altogether 250,000 demonstrators are expected to assemble. A long list of speakers, headed by George Lansbury, Labor party leader, will address the huge assembly. A network of loud speakers will carry the speeches.

A resolution which will be proposed at the end of the speeches will call on the world for "working class solidarity."

"We record our strong condemnation of the ruthless attacks which capitalism, in a desperate effort to avert its own downfall, has launched throughout the world against the workers, their organizations and their standards of life," the resolution reads.

Assails Fascist Movement.

"We protest against the suppression of democratic rights and institutions, practical freedom, civil liberties and racial and religious equality which has followed the rise of dictatorship.

"We view with the utmost detestation the increasing evidence of the growth of a spirit of Fascism, militarism and imperialism which has manifested itself in political unsettlement, economic rivalry, trade embargoes, military aggression and threats of war."

NEW AIR FLEET THRILLS RUSSIA AT MOSCOW, FETE

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, May 6.—Thousands of Russians today ecelebrated the formation of the air squadron Maxim Gorky at the Moscow airport. The workers listened passively to speeches by aviation and communist leaders, but began to show interest when three pursuit planes roared upward and performed stunts over their heads.

One autogiro of soviet construction started its horizontal propellor revolving lazily, but never did go up. The greatest excitement was caused by the unexpected descent of six men in parachutes in a high wind. They landed on the field, but were dragged hundreds of feet before they could close their parachutes. None was injured.

The new squadron will tour Russia in a publicity campaign to collect funds for a new airplane, to be named Maxim Gorky. It will be a giant seven motored land plane, twice as big as the famous ANT-14, and will be used exclusively for soviet publicity purposes. It will be equipped with loud speakers, radio, printing presses, and sleeping accommodations.

ROOSEVELT TO TREAT WOMEN AS EQUAL TO MEN AS DIPLOMATS

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—The policy of President Roosevelt in regard to women in the diplomatic and consular services is to treat them as entirely equal to men, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, minister to Denmark, indicated today at a luncheon in her honor given by the American-Scandinavian Foundation.

Mrs. Owen, who is to sail next Thursday for her post as first American woman minister abroad, did not quote the President directly, but said that she had been told by "a secretary who heard a colloquy between a member of the state department and the President."

"What is to be your attitude toward the promotion of women in the consular service, Mr. President?" she quoted the state department member as asking. The reply, she said, was:

"Why should I have a policy especially for women? My policy is to promote as rapidly as possible all officials who are deserving."

IRVING HOOVER ON WHITE HOUSE JOB 42 YEARS

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Irving H. Hoover, known familiarly to thousands as "Ike" Hoover, today celebrated his forty-second anniversary of service at the White House, where he is chief usher.

In addition to felicitations from President Roosevelt, Mr. Hoover received hundreds of congratulatory messages from friends who have come to know him through their contacts with the White House during the terms of ten Presidents.

The head usher, or major domo, of the White House entered the executive mansion under President Harrison as an electrical worker.

After that job was completed, President Harrison had frequent trouble with the electric push buttons and finally decided that it would be wise to employ an electrician regularly. Accordingly, young "Ike" brought his kit to the White House to stay. Through the years since then he advanced to the highest position in the household.

FEAR EUROPEAN ECONOMIC 'PLOT' AGAINST AMERICA

Paris May Cancel Surtax on British Goods.

Report U. S. Debt Plan

PARIS, May 7.—[Sunday.]—(AP)—The newspaper Petit Parisien said today it understood an American plan for a general adjustment of war debts had been submitted to France. The plan, it is understood, provided for cancellation of interest, with a lump sum settlement, the principal payable in a single annuity in three ways: One-third in gold, one-third in certificates to be issued immediately, and one-third in certificates to be issued later through the Bank for International Settlements.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 6.—American suspicions that the recent $100,000,000 loan contracted by the French treasury through the British treasury veiled a secret understanding of vital importance to the United States were given new fuel today, though it cannot yet be said they were confirmed.

The opposition evening newspaper, Liberte, following up hints dropped yesterday, categorically announced that in return for the loan the French government promised to withdraw the 15 per cent surtax now applied to British goods as a special measure of protection to compensate for depreciation of the pound. This is the same surtax which, it is generally expected, the government will apply on imports from America.

Story Called "Inaccurate."

A highly placed spokesman for the government, when questioned today by THE TRIBUNE correspondent, insisted that the Liberte story is inaccurate. He strenuously denied the implication that Georges Bonnet, finance minister, in order to secure new sources for a depleted treasury had sacrificed economic or financial interests of France, as Liberte charged, but he admitted that withdrawal of the surtax is a possibility.

At the same time he said that while the government has not yet taken a decision regarding American products, it is not likely that a surtax would be applied to them unless the dollar fell "heavily." The impression still prevails here, however, that if information brought by French currency experts from Washington convinces the government that the dollar will drop to 80 cents in relation to the franc, this fall will be considered sufficiently heavy to justify application of the surtax.

See United Front to U. S.

The Franco-British treasury accord has already proved a valuable weapon to the pound in the submarine duel with the dollar, in the opinion of financial observers here, and has considerably reinforced the British position.

If the alleged tariff accord between the two countries really exists, France will be in the paradoxical position of defending the gold standard while helping to make the abandonment of the gold standard more profitable for the British.

Further, this defensive and offensive alliance will present a formidable united front to the United States in the world economic conference, the more so as suspicion has exisited in some quarterc since last December that the French and British are in secret agreement on their war debt policy.

France in Desperate Spot.

The accusation was openly made in nationalist opposition organs that the position of the French treasury has become so desperate that the government is obliged to sacrifice political independence in order to obtain British support. According to these allegations the fate of the franc is in the hands of the London financiers and to save its currency the French government has to obey whenever London cracks the whip.

That the treasury is broke is undeniable. The latest report of the senate finance committee reveals that the treasury has obligations outstanding to the amount of nearly $1,200,000,000 and assets of only a trifle over $368,000,000. Of these assets there is only a trifle over $4,000,000 in francs, the rest representing silver and foreign currencies and more or less frozen credits to banks and foreign governments.

It does not follow, however, that the government could not have refloated the treasury with an internal loan or even that the treasury situation is the chief factor in the maintenance of the franc on the gold standard. Hence, it is considered that opponents of the present government greatly exaggerate the supposed power the British have acquired over French finance.

Herriot Reports to Premier.

Although former Premier Herriot spent the entire day closeted with Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour reporting on his Washington trip, nothing is yet known regarding the results of his recent conversations with President Roosevelt. In any case no decision will be taken until the cabinet meeting early next week.

Inspired press comment reveals clearly two things:

First, the French are looking forward with no great confidence to the economic conference.

Second, French intransigence on the war debts remains unshaken.

Leon Blum, Socialist leader, and Andre Tardieu, former premier, joined in declaring today that there is no chance of the chamber of deputies going back on its decision last December to default on the payment of $19,261,432 due America unless the latter takes the initiative by declaring a new moratorium for the June payment and offers promises of more serious revision than it has yet done.

Mexican Treasury Head on Way to Roosevelt

San Diego, Cal., May 6.—(AP)—Alberto J. Pani, Mexican secretary of the treasury, left here tonight for Washington for a conference on economic subjects with President Roosevelt after a stopover of two days.

LLOYD GEORGE RENOUNCES JOB AS LIBERAL CHIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 6.—Definite renunciation of leadership of the Liberal party was voiced in no uncertain terms by David Lloyd George in a typical fighting speech at the Welsh Liberal convention at Llandrindod Wells today.

Following an appeal to the veteran statesman from delegates to "lead us back to the right course," Lloyd George delivered a slashing attack on official Liberalism.

Reviewing events in the United States, Lloyd George declared that six months ago Liberalism swept across America. President Roosevelt, he said, adopted a strong Liberal policy, "and told the financiers of Wall street to go to Fundy Bay." High financiers, Lloyd George maintained, have been in control of England for years. He had warned the country in 1922, he said, but the warning was unheeded. Had it been otherwise, he concluded, the American debt problem would have been solved.

HITLER FINISHES REICH BISMARCK BEGAN TO BUILD

Smashes Sovereignty of German States.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 6.—Hero worship is the order of the day in Germany and Chancellor Adolf Hitler is that hero at the moment. This worshiping of Hitler answers a racial craving, suppressed in the years of humiliation which defeat in the world war and harsh peace treaties imposed upon the young republic.

Hitler and his Nazi lieutenants are struggling feverishly to justify this faith of the great portion of 65,000,000 German people.

The Nazi chancellor, who wields greater powers than Dictator Josef Stalin of Russia and Premier Mussolini of Italy, is lashing right and left to place all Germans—friend and foe—under his thumb. Last Monday he staged a gigantic May day show for those German workers who still stood aloof in order to win them over to his side. Then his words were honeyed.

Seizes Free Trade Unions.

On the following day he sent his energetic Nazi storm troopers into every town of the nation, seizing Socialist free trade unions and labor banks. With a shrug of his shoulder, the frail chancellor ordered the arrest of 3,000 union leaders.

"Trade unions, henceforth, will be national instead of international in character," was his order. "We must draw the entire labor world into our ranks because our way is the only right way."

When Hitler became chancellor his first spectacular step was to "complete the reich of Bismarck." In long years of hard work Hitler and his aids had carefully prepared for this constitutional change. His Nazi "state within the state" was ready to take over the reins on the shortest notice. When he took office his elaborate organization was moved into government quarters. The men controlling them enabled Hitler to smash the old machinery of German states which had proved too much for Bismarck. Hitler's men automatically took over what power was left in these staes.

Holds Entire Power.

For the present Germany's entire power is vested in Hitler's hands.

He draws up and enforces the laws his cabinet considers necessary. The signature of President von Hindenburg is not even needed to promulgate the laws.

He appoints "governors" for the republic's 17 states. The appointments are signed by the president, but the appointees are chosen by Hitler.

Hitler's governors nominate the premier of their state. The premier submits the names of the members of his cabinet to the governor, who thus has the final word in the state cabinets.

The state governments, like the national government, are not responsible to a parliament; they are responsible to Hitler, who will hold power until April 1, 1937, or "until the present government resigns," according to a law voted by more than two-thirds of the reichstag.

Town and country get their officials from Hitler's state minister of the interior, who appoints mayors or approves of local elections, if they suit him.

Have Nothing to Say.

The parliamentary bodies—reichstag, state diets, municipal, county parliaments—still exist, but they have nothing to say. The reichstag, the Prussian diet and municipal governments were elected on March 5. All other state parliaments were ordered to reorganize so that their membership corresponds exactly to the local votes cast for the reichstag on March 5. All these bodies do is to approve the decisions of the "commissars" appointed by Hitler.

New duties are being prepared for these bodies. Hitler's legal specialists are working on plans to turn them into professional parliaments in which all professional groups would be represented—carpenters, cobblers, farmers, electricians, doctors, professors, and scientists.

Each group would have its own parliament, each parliament would choose its ablest men for a national parliament. But Hitler is in no hurry, since he is quite satisfied with the way the present system works.

The army and navy remains under Von Hindenburg's orders. But Hitler has been able to win the president's confidence. If he lost it, he still would be the strongest man in Germany, even from a military point of view.

Police Under His Orders.

The police are under his orders, or to be exact under his right hand man, the militant Capt. Hermann Goering. The police forces have been reorganized on lines drawn up by Hitler's lieutenants. The chancellor, too, has his own black uniformed guards and his storm troops. The only other important semi-military organization—the highly trained Steel Helmet war veterans—now also takes its orders from Hitler. He merged them with his storm troops.

The nation's judicial system is under Hitler's control. He demotes and appoints judges to suit his own wishes.

The foreign office is in the hands of Baron Konstantin von Neurath, a Nationalist. Hitler and Von Neurath do not get along. Yet Hitler dominates. Hitler wanted the anti-Jewish boycott. Neurath did not. The boycott was enforced.

The chancellor has prepared a special organization, a subsidiary foreign office, which works under his orders. It is the "foreign department" of the National Socialist. Alfred Rosenberg is the chief. It has four departments—skeletons for the future departments in the foreign office when the time comes for Hitler to dismiss Von Neurath.

Propaganda Department.

Propaganda once was a department of the foreign office. Under Hitler it has become an independent body, firmly held in the hand of Hitler's "master drummer," Dr. Joseph Goebbels.

The ministry of economics is directed by a Nationalist leader, Dr. Alfred Hugenberg. Hugenberg at first worked reluctantly with Hitler. They became fast friends, when Hitler revealed to Hugenberg how his own men were plotting against him. But Hitler is ready to dismiss him.

The men Hitler has appointed are busy simplifying the administration of the states, towns, and all offices intrusted to them. Plans are under way to combine several small states, and thus simultaneously further the unification of Germany and the reduction of the cost of administration. The state of Anhalt, for instance, formerly boasted a cabinet of two ministers. Now it only has one.

The salaries of thousands of officials can be saved, Hitler and his associates contend. Jews and republicans are being fired by the wholesale, but to date they have always been replaced by a member of Hitler's party or an occasional Nationalist.

Now the "ousting wave" is receding. The newest Hitlerite publications stress that "nobody will be dismissed for the sake of political or religious creeds, but only on the strength of inefficiency or disloyalty."

"Those who remain at their posts must be blindly devoted to the cause of Germany's reconstruction as desired by Hitler," the articles conclude.

Fealty to a leader and discipline have been instilled into the blood of serfs and free men alike, drilled into soldier and officer ever since Germany was born. At this moment fealty has crystallized around Hitler, the "people's chancellor," and his aid, Capt. Goering, world war ace and premier of Prussia. Von Hindenburg has receded into the background. The man in the street thinks only of Hitler and Goering.

Stepped Lightly 14 Years.

For fourteen years Germany's leaders stepped softly, always in deadly fear of breaking this or that egg in the international political basket. With painstaking care, unstinting devotion, idealism, and courage they slowly restored Germany—restored her relations with the world's nations, wove anew threads of friendship where a war had raged.

Now come Hitler, Goering, and their lieutenants proudly stepping ahead and crying out Germany's wishes, not caring a rap what the others think or do. The days of softstepping seem over and the masses are jubilant.

Forgotten are the men who did the work to restore Germany as a member of the family of nations—and glad if they are forgotten. Many are in jail, others spend each night in different refuges to escape gangs of young Nazis anxious to vent their power, crazed with the idea of the "revolution." The masses think of the former leaders only as "traitors" or "weaklings," as they are being denounced daily by Hitlerite leaders.

Catholics Swing to Hitler; Seek Posts in Cabinet

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 6.—Former Chancellor Heinrich Bruening was elected chairman of the Catholic Centrist party today. He immediately offered to coöperate with Chancellor Hitler's government.

The Centrists, formerly the most fervent republicans in Germany, have adopted the Nazi "leadership principle." They requested Dr. Bruening to appoint all party officials, thereby surrendering their right to a free vote.

Offers to Coöperate.

"I am extending my hand to other groups in the nation, not out of weakness but for love of my country and to save it from useless struggle," the former chancellor said. "I am ready to coöperate in a national front of fighters for Germany's honor, liberty, and equal rights among nations."

Bruening's associates anticipate his statement will lead to a reconciliation with Hitler. The Centrists hope such a political alliance will enable them to replace the Nationalists in influential cabinet posts. Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist party leader and minister of economics and agriculture, steadily has been losing favor with the Nazi leader, because of his determination to restore the monarchy.

Earlier in the day students of the University of Berlin heard Bernhard Rust, Prussian minister of culture, announce new student legislation which welds them into a unit firmly entrenched behind the government.

New Authors in Academy.

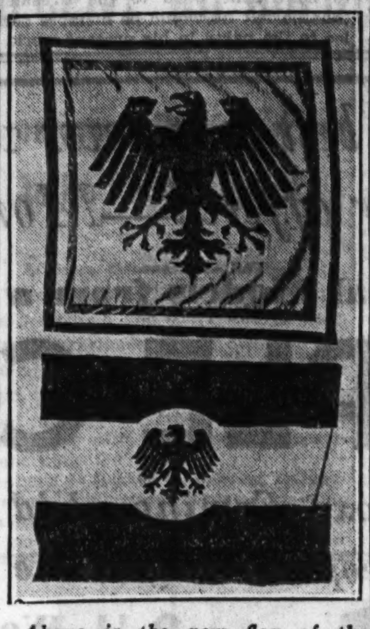
"I must exclude part of Germany's professors because German students refuse to submit to the leadership of professors of a foreign race," Rust said, referring to the wholesale dismissal of Jewish educators.

The minister of culture announced the names of 14 new members of the authors' section of the Prussian academy. He said that the world is not acquainted with the real German writers. The new members replace such writers as Thomas and Heinrich Mann, Emil Ludwig, Jacob Wassermann, and Bernhard Kellerman.

Meanwhile, other writers and professors were blacklisted by the Nazi committee appointed to "purify state libraries." Truckloads of books were collected. They will be burned in front of the University of Berlin on Wednesday.

Students of the school of physical culture of the University of Berlin today stormed Prof. Magnus Hirschfeld's institute for sexual research. They seized books and posters, smashed a statue and padlocked the institute while they sang national hymns. Works of Freud, Marx, and Einstein were destroyed.

The Prussian ministry of justice today announced that Berlin's Jewish lawyers, who can prove they are world war veterans or sons of men killed in action and are not communists, will be allowed to resume practice from May 9 until May 15. On May 15 an official interpretation of Hitler's decree disbarring Jewish lawyers will be handed down.



Above is the new flag of the president of Germany, shown with the new black, white and red colors and with the black eagle in the middle, to be flown on German public buildings.

NAZIS YIELD TO PROTESTANTS IN CHURCH FIGHT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, May 6.—Chancellor Hitler's National Socialists have gained a measure of unification in the Protestant churches under an agreement just reached by church leaders, but domination of these churches by the Nazis has, at least temporarily, been postponed.

The Nazis have agreed that the Lutheran and reformed churches, and the so-called free churches, such as those of the Methodists, Baptists, Congregationalist, and Evangelical association, are to be preserved, but all that they have in common is to be emphasized to such an extent that a virtually unified Protestant church will result from the reform.

It was agreed to submit a draft of this plan to the members of the churches. Church elections will thus be avoided, for the present at least. Seizure of the churches by the state is prevented by this development.

FIX STATE POLICE QUOTA IN ARMED STRENGTH IN U. S.

GENEVA, May 6.—(AP)—Despite the protest of Col. George Strong, American delegate, the army committee of the general disarmament conference voted today that the state police forces in the United States should be given a military value of 1,000 soldiers in computing the strength of the American army. The vote was 7 to 6.

The delegates of France and the little entente—Czechoslovakia, Jugo-Slavia, and Rumania—were among those who voted affirmatively. They held that possession of machine guns justified the decision to give them a percentage of militray character.

It is estimated the American state police total 80,000.

SAAR COMMISSION ACTS TO SUPPRESS NAZI-FRENCH CLASHES

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, May 6.—The league of nation's governing commission of the Saar basin took steps today for a stricter policy and measures in an effort to suppress the irritating incidents that have been so frequent lately between the Hitlerites and the French in the region. The text of three ordinances has been placed before the landesrat, the Saar's consultative chamber elected by the people, according to dispatches from Saarbruecken tonight.

The first gives the commission the right to forbid meetings and parades and the wearing of political uniforms, as well as power to dissolve political associations and suppress newspapers. It also guarantees full religious rights to the populace and attempts to pave the way for a fair plebiscite in 1935.

The second ordinance gives the commission the right to assume police duties with the aid of the local police. The third permits the commission to dismiss police officials who neglect their duty.

Return Suicide Verdict in Death of Suitor

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of suicide at an inquest into the death of Frank Harrington, 36 years old, 1331 Touhy avenue, an unemployed radio credit man. Harrington shot and killed himself in front of his home after a quarrel with Miss Catherine Tierney of the same address, whom he had been courting. Miss Tierney is under a doctor's care and did not testify.

U. S. TAXES GOING UP, IS REPORT ON CAPITOL HILL

See Increase if Building Program Goes Through.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—The time is coming to ante up for the new deal, and the taxpayer is to pay for the chips. New taxes ahead was the word passing around today on Capitol hill.

President Roosevelt to date has been able to finance the series of new acts which congress has been steadily grinding out by cutting expenditures in other fields and by increasing and drawing on the credit of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

But congressional leaders close to the administration predicted today that the era of coasting along on momentum would have to cease with the passage of the proposed public works bill.

The bill itself was in process of preparation. More accurately, several bills were in process of preparation by as many different authors. President Roosevelt, it was said, has not yet decided what the final policy on the public works program is to be.

Wagner Drafts Works Bill.

Collaborators of a more radical turn of mind are working on a measure which would require the federal government to lay out anywhere from three to five billion dollars on a long time program of construction.

Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], who is drafting a public works bill to accompany his bill for federal coördination and control of industrial production, believes that the public works program should provide for a billion dollars from the treasury and an increase in the bond issuing power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, in order to furnish states, municipalities, and private corporations with loans to a maximum of 2 billions of dollars.

Senator Wagner will submit his draft of the industrial control bill and public works measure to the President next Monday.

Deficit Continues to Grow.

The government's deficit will pass its estimated total for the full fiscal year within the next week at its present rate of increase.

treasury department figures showed today.

The deficit mounted to 1 billion 605 million dollars on May 4, just 40 million dollars under the figure which the treasury estimated it would not reach until the end of the fiscal year June 30. Increasing at the rate of more than 7 million dollars a day, the deficit will pass the 1 billion 645 million dollar mark within the week.

Hope to Check Increase.

In addition to the deficit it has run upon its ordinary budget thus far, the government has poured out one billion 75 million dollars through the Reconstruction Finance corporation. This amount is the net on operation of the corporations, including repayments, and brings the total excess of government expenditures over receipts to 2 billion 680 millions.

If the deficit should continue to march ahead at its present rate it will amount to about 2 billion dollars exclusive of Reconstruction Finance corporation expenditures by the end of the fiscal year. Treasury officials, however, are relying on June income tax collections, which they believe will be in the neighborhood of 150 or 175 million dollars, to check the increase.

On the other hand, the treasury must make an interest payment on the public debt amounting to 100 million dollars on June 15, and it must allocate another 100 million to the bonus payment fund. These two drains are expected to more than offset the quarterly income tax collections.

EX-HUSBAND OF ACTRESS SEEKS INCOME TAX CUT

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—Edward Hillman Jr., divorced husband of Marion Nixon, Beverly Hills, Cal., actress, objects to being required to pay income tax for 1930 on half her salary and his share of community income.

He asked the United States board of tax appeals to overrule the internal revenue bureau which assessed him $2,004 additional income tax for 1930, chiefly due to the added tax on half of the actress' salary, which amounted to $24,284 that year.

Hillman said he had received none of the money and argued he should not be asked to pay any of the tax.

Hillman also objected to the bureau disallowing a deduction from his gross income of $390 which he said was stolen from him in 1930 in a train robbery.

The bureau said the money was stolen from his former wife and had been allowed as a deduction on her income tax return.

WRECKERS START ON FAMOUS OLD BUCKLEN BLDG.

Wreckers yesterday started tearing down what was once Chicago's finest apartment house, the six story Bucklen building at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Eighth street, across from the Stevens hotel. Mounting taxes and falling income were reasons for this action. Loop Auto Parks, Inc., have leased the site. for ten years.

MICHAEL KENNA.

The building was erected in 1888 by H. E. Bucklen, who made millions with a patent medicine known as "Dr. King's New Discovery and Cough Syrup." Dr. King was an imaginary person. Mr. Bucklen was the discoverer of the medicine while working in a drug store.

Among the old-time tenants of the Bucklen building, in its day one of the show places of the city, were Mr. and Mrs. Michael [Hinky Dink] Kenna, who lived there for thirty-four years. Mrs. Ella Midgley, widow of William Harwood Midgley, oil expert, had a third floor apartment.

At the time the Bucklen building was erected Chicago was a one-family residence city. Flats were comparatively few and none was luxurious. A six story apartment building was a novelty and the Bucklen's de luxe appointments soon created comment all over the country. Visitors to the city were taken around to see the building and usually were much impressed by its heighth, its architectural features and the fact that some of the suites, among them the Kennas', had two bathrooms.

10 CONGRESSMEN OF ILLINOIS HAVE SWANKY OFFICES

Paneled Walls and Rubber Tiled Floors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Ten of Illinois' 27 congressmen are officially ensconsed in the "luxurious simplicity" of the new 7 million dollar house office building now standing in completed glory on Capitol hill.

Their migration from the old building to the Ionic grandeur of the new is in the manner of reward for long years of service amid conditions so congested—to the congressional way of thinking—that members of congress were permitted only one large office apiece. In this new edifice each member has a suite—a reception room, a roomy office for his clerical help, and a walnut paneled inner sanctum in which to mediate the problems of the taxpayer.

Paneled in Walnut.

The new offices are paneled in walnut, floored with rubber tile upon which the footfalls of the callers are hushed. At one end of the larger rooms is a built-in bookcase; across the lower expanse of one wall in the private offices is another built-in bookcase. Chairs of walnut, upholstered in blue leather, stand plentifully and invitingly about.

The ten veterans of the Illinois delegation to be rewarded by removal to the new building are Representatives Britten, De Priest, Beam, Sabath, Schuetz, Reid, Buckbee, Major, Arnold, and Keller. Thanks to their length of service, they have foregone the rigors of the old structure and are to be found in the regal surroundings of the new.

Representative Edward A. Kelly, who had claim to one of the new offices, and who was recently reported to have moved into the new building, has not done so. His refusal to move, he wants his constituents to know, is his protest at the extravagance of asking the taxpayers to foot the bill for a new building at this time. Remaining with him thus far in the old building are Representatives John C. Allen and Claude V. Parsons, both of whom are also entitled to new offices by reason of their service.

Marble Halls, Too.

The new structure itself is of pink granite and white marble on the outside, of marble halls and burnished bronze on the inside. There is a large interior court, done in the best traditions, with an elliptical fountain basin in the center and stone balustrades with seats in the four corners. In the basement is a gymnasium. Around the roof is a balcony from which a panoramic view of the city is possible.

There is to the critical but one fault. The building just doesn't match any of the other buildings on the hill. The old senate office building matched the old house office building, and both were in subordinate harmony with the capitol building itself. But the new house structure stands out like an architectural mongrel in this coördinated scheme. It approaches only the fundamental design of the other buildings.

REFORESTATION MEN FROM CHICAGO WILL WORK IN THIS STATE

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Plans for putting all of Chicago's 4,000 reforestation recruits to work on eighty forestry projects in Illinois are awaiting approval by President Roosevelt.

The proposals were submitted to officials of the national park and forestry service by Col. E. J. Blair, engineer of the Cook county relief commission, and Maj. Rufus Putnam, both of Chicago, who have been here for several days. According to Maj. Putnam, the plans have been approved by the departmental authorities.

Gov. Horner, it was said, is to request their acceptance by President Roosevelt and will offer to "meet the federal authorities half way" for use of the reforestation army in the development of state projects. Maj. Putnam said the state will offer to repay the government three dollars an acre if the developed land should ever turn a profit to the state.

The largest projects proposed are developments in the Skokie marshes north of Chicago, where 1,000 men would be encamped; on the Illinois-Michigan canal between Chicago and La Salle, where 1,400 men would be put to work landscaping the canal route and clearing underbrush, and in the Fox river district where 1,000 men would be quartered.

Four state park projects to employ 800 men are included in the plans. They are the Starved Rock park near Ottawa, the Giant City park on the Mississippi river downstate, and two other state parks near Rock Island and East St. Louis.

Two hundred men would be put to work in the state forest near Giant City, Maj. Putnam stated.

CLARK HOWELL, ATLANTA EDITOR, DECLINES U. S. JOB

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(AP)—Literally besieged by job hunters, the administration found one man today who does not care for one of the political plums—Clark Howell, Atlanta publisher.

President Roosevelt offered Mr. Howell a choice of several important ambassadorships, including Brazil, Argentina, Peru, Poland, and Turkey.

The Atlantan, who is prominent in the Democratic party, is understood to have sent word to the President that he felt he would be of more service to the party in his present work.

FURTHER POWER FOR ROOSEVELT NOW IN MAKING

Broadest Ever Granted in Peace Time.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Two months in the White House and overwhelming majorities in both branches of congress have given to President Roosevelt extraordinary powers. Another month of the special session—as the schedule is now laid out—and he will have obtained such further powers as will endow him with more authority than any other President has ever wielded, certainly in peace time.

The way was prepared for President Roosevelt, even before he entered office, by the power conferred on him by the last congress to reorganize and abolish departments and agencies of the government.

Banking Power First.

The first grant of power bestowed on the President by the new congress came with the passage of the emergency banking act and its subsidiary amendments. Then followed the economy act, giving Mr. Roosevelt authority to cut veterans' benefits and the salaries of federal employés. Thirdly came the reforestation bill, creating means of enlisting a conservation corps for employment of the idle.

These three measures are the only ones thus far to become acts, but they constitute only the beginning of the series.

The inflation amendment to the farm bill has been approved by both houses and only awaits agreement on the farm bill itself. The farm relief bill, making the President, through the secretary of agriculture, dictator over the production and processing of farm commodities, should be law by next week; and with it will go the farm mortgage refinancing bill providing two billion dollars of farm loan bonds.

Relief Bill in Conference.

In conference committees of the two houses are the Wagner-Lewis relief bill, setting up a new executive authority to administer the granting of half a billion dollars in loans to the states, and the Norris bill, providing for government operation of Muscle Shoals and authorizing a start on Mr. Roosevelt's pet project of making the Tennessee valley a laboratory for experiments in social legislation.

The administration bill for the regulation of securities passed the house yesterday and now goes to the senate. The arms embargo resolution, giving the President power to prohibit the shipment of arms to a combatant country, also has been adopted by the house.

The administration railroad bill, the chief provision of which is the creation of a federal coördinator, was sent to congress last week, and the 2 billion 300 million dollar measure for the relief of mortgaged home owners and home mortgage holders is in the committee stage.

Industry Power Next.

Nor does this end the list.

In preparation is a bill to give the President, through an administrator, the power to bring about industrial agreements concerning production and the hours and wages of labor, together with the authority to force recalcitrant producers into line with the majority. The measure, though less broad than the present Perkins bill which it replaces, is calculated to give the executive as much power over industry as the farm relief bill will give him over agriculture.

According to present reports the industrial control measure will be linked to a public works bill calling for the expenditure of anywhere between 2 and 5 billions of dollars. Instead of having various construction projects specified by congress, the President is to be given authority to choose where the money shall go, and further authority to aid state and municipal projects if he sees fit.

Prepared in the interior department and urged by the oil producers themselves is a proposed measure to make President Roosevelt czar over the oil industry.

Another bill, originating with one of the professorial assistants placed in the department of agriculture by the President, would rewrite the food and drug act.

Lastly, but by no means least, is the plan to demand of congress a blank check to be filled in by the President in negotiating reciprocal tariff agreements and possibly agreements relative to the war debts.

PRESIDENT PRAYS FOR GOD'S AID, HE TELLS BIBLE CLASS MEETING

Atlantic City, N. J., May 6.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, in a message to the National Federation of Men's Bible Classes, said he would pray that God would lead the nation out of its troubles.

The message was read at the opening session of the annual convention of the New Jersey federation here this afternoon.

The national body concluded its convention during the morning.

The message read: "It is indeed gratifying to know that at this time when our nation is endeavoring to emerge from an economic disturbance there is gathered an assemblage of men to contemplate ways and means for the betterment of the mankind of our country.

"Your aims and purposes are uplifting, and you contribute largely toward the building up of the morale of the nation. I wish you all possible success.

"It is well to pause, and to contemplate the goodness of God. I pray that he leads us out of our troubles, and that we, benefited by the experience, will be a better United States of America."

A resolution of thanks and appreciation was ordered to be sent to the President, and his good work extolled by the president of the New Jersey federation, Neil Jamieson of Gloucester, who presided.

The little girl, daughter of Carrington Stone of Blytheville, Ark., who died last year in the Alexandria, La., veterans' hospital, made the trip from the national home for the widows and orphans of ex-servicemen at Eaton Rapids, Mich., to make the presentation.

FOREIGN HOLDERS OF U. S. BONDS TO RECEIVE NO GOLD

Americans Will Be First to Be Paid in Metal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—British and other foreign holders of government bonds may call the American refusal to pay them off in gold, repudiation, but they will get no gold until it is freely paid out to Americans also, the treasury department indicated today.

About $6,500,000 in interest on government obligations became payable on May 2 and 239 million dollars worth of government certificates came due. Despite the clause in them which calls for payment of both principal and interest in gold, the treasury refuses to allow gold to move, causing charges of repudiation from the British.

Withheld from All.

Payment of gold to Americans would be of little use as long as the anti-gold hoarding order is in effect, and foreigners will not get gold as long as it is withheld from Americans, according to the treasury's line of reasoning.

If the American holder of a government gold obligation should be paid in gold, he would have to turn the metal back in within 3 days, under the anti-hoarding rules, the treasury points out. Therefore, domestic payments in gold would merely be a gesture, officials say.

Foreigners are not going to be paid in gold, which would then be outside the jurisdiction of the government, as long as this domestic situation continues.

Moreover, high administration officials declare that government securities in this country are put out for American gold purchasers and 99 per cent of them are held in this country. The 1 per cent of uninvited foreign holders are not going to receive preferential treatment.

Question Up Again in June.

The question of gold payments will not come up again until the middle of June when about 100 million dollars worth of interest on the public debt must be paid. In addition more securities mature. It is hoped that by that time the gold situation will be cleared up.

Continuance of the practice of issuing new government obligations with the gold clause in them despite the ban on gold payments is evidence of the government's intention to resume gold payments at the earliest feasible date, it was explained. On May 2 half a billion dollars in new notes were issued, carrying the gold promise. They do not mature for three years, and by that time the treasury hopes to be back on a gold schedule of some sort.

BEG YOUR PARDON

An item on May 3 stated that Judge John Gutknecht in the Boys' court had received a telegram from the Civil Liberties union and the International Labor Defense asking him to discharge two youths. Thomas McKenna, secretary of the Civil Liberties union here, said yesterday that the telegram came from the People's council of Bellingham, Wash.

RECALLS KILLING OF FATHER AND BALKS GUNMEN

A lesson learned from the murder of his father, Thomas Bonner, nearly three years ago probably saved the life of William Bonner, 22 years old, last night.

On July 10, 1930, two men called on the elder Bonner at his home, then in Yale avenue, and shot him down as he appeared. His slaying was attributed to suspected stool pigeon activities and subsequently "Big Earl" Herbert, ex-Saltis beer runner, was convicted of the crime and sentenced to life imprisonment.

After the slaying Bonner's widow, Mary, and her two daughters and William moved to 7405 South Halsted street. Late last night four men rapped on the door. One of the girls partly opened it. Two of the men whipped out revolvers, demanding: "Call Bill." Remembering that a similar situation had resulted in the murder of her father, the girl bolted the door. The four hoodlums fled. Bonner later told police he has no enemies. Police said he has been arrested several times.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

To the man who almost owns one

PERHAPS you, like the man in the picture, have always wanted a Packard.

And perhaps like him you have felt it was beyond your means.

So you have bought medium-priced cars—cars that, while they have given good service, have always been a compromise between your desires and your pocketbook.

Now you're about to buy another car. And again you tell yourself, "I can't afford a Packard."

But wait—

The Arithmetic of Packard Economy

The gulf that separates you from a Packard is only a few hundred dollars.

Perhaps that seems like a big sum of money. But spread it over the longer life that a Packard will serve you—in the end, a Packard will cost you no more, and probably less, than a "compromise car."

And the extra miles a Packard gives you are miles you enjoy—not miles you merely tolerate. For a Packard is not only built to keep going—it is built to keep its thrill of performance right through the years.

This is truer today than ever before. For these 1933 models are the longest-lived Packards ever built.

More than that, they are, we believe, the longest-lived cars built in America today. A clutch, for example, was as good as new after 125,000 contacts in traffic. After 50,000 miles of driving, cylinders showed only microscopic wear.

Beauty That Lasts as Long as the Car

No danger of these cars becoming old-fashioned in appearance either. For they have the traditional Packard lines that never go out of style. Keep your car as long as you wish—you'll always be proud to be seen in it. Even at the end of five years, people will think of your car, not as a five-year-old car, but as a Packard.

Perhaps you're wondering about upkeep cost.

We can show you that, item for item, a Packard costs no more to run than cars costing hundreds of dollars less.

The new Packards use less gas and oil than their predecessors. And because of a new lubricating system, motor parts will last twice as long.

And from this car that really costs you no more, you'll get the greatest motoring thrill of your life. The thrill of driving a car whose motor is so quiet that even in travelling up to a mile and a half a minute, you can scarcely hear it. The thrill of handling a car that starts with the touch of a button, stops with the touch of your toe, shifts and steers with the touch of a finger. The thrill of riding in a car whose cushions were contoured by an orthopedic expert to let you relax naturally, completely. The thrill, finally, of a car that is even adaptable to your requirements and moods—whose brake-pedal pressure, ventilation and shock absorber resilience can all be adjusted to suit the convenience of whoever is driving or riding in the car.

Drive One Over Your Own Road

Whether you buy a Packard or not, we would like to show you these cars, and have you ride in one of them.

And bring your old car with you—if it is of average value, it will cover the down payment on a new Packard. The balance can be spread over many months. And the operating economies which your new Packard effects will make the monthly payments still easier.

RADICALS FEAR FASCIST REGIME FOR AMERICA

Norman Thomas Talks at Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—The "continental congress for economic reconstruction" assembled here today under the leadership of Norman Thomas, who was Socialist candidate for President in 1932, with about 4,000 delegates.

A rift between Mr. Thomas' forces and a communistic element sent back to a committee a "declaration of independence," declaring that a mere "gesture," when they wanted an "act."

Fars American Fascism.

The delegates listened earlier to speeches by Mr. Thomas, Senator Lynn Frazier [Rad., N. D.], and John Simpson, president of the Farmers' Union.

"Within a few weeks we have seen Germany go the way of Italy or worse," Mr. Thomas said. "There is no magic in America or in us to prevent our drift to a similar fascism. Here in America are all the elements out of which the devil's broth of fascism is concocted—jingoistic nationalism, racial prejudice, cheap and superficial contempt for democracy, a capitalist class willing to accept state capitalism of the fascist brand, if thereby it may for a while longer hang on to the largest possible measure of power and privilege."

"The czar of Russia," Mr. Simpson of the Farmers' Union said, "was unmindful of the menace of revolution in his country. During the French revolution the ultra-rich of France were out on their game preserves enjoying themselves, completely oblivious to the seeds of revolution they had sown. They returned to Paris only to contribute their blood to the stream that flowed in the streets of that city.

Calls Ultra Rich Blind.

"The ultra rich of this country are as blind, deaf, and dumb to conditions that exist here as were the tyrants of other countries even up to the very day of destruction. They are so blinded with lust to get more that they cannot in any way conceive there is danger ahead."

RUNAWAY GIRL'S FRENCH ACCENT FOOLS POLICE

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—Mlle. Michelo D'Idier, the 15 year old stowaway from Genoble, France, who captivated detectives, court attendants, a judge and immigration officials with her pretty French accent, turned out today to be just Mary Whittier, runaway high school girl of Hazleton, Pa. Instead of having come here as a stowaway on the liner Lafayette, she had hitchiked and ridden on a train from Pennsylvania.

Her French accent was traced to a two year's visit with relatives in France. Her story of having been smuggled ashore by a handsome young oiler of the Lafayette was purely imagined. She attributed the entire escapade to "spring fever."

The girl came within an inch of being deported "back" to France today on the Lafayette. After spending the night on Ellis island she was taken aboard the Lafayette this morning. Immigration inspectors were anxious to question the young oiler who, according to her story, had enabled her to get ashore disguised in a pair of dirty overalls.

She was unable to identify the "oiler." The immigration officers began to notice other slip-ups. She seemed to understand English too well. Finally Inspector John Cress demanded that she tell the truth. She did. Now she is going home for that spanking.

AUTO LICENSE DRIVE WANING, RECORDS SHOW

Police Commissioner Allman said yesterday that the police are continuing their campaign to enforce the automobile tax laws. This was his reply to complaints that 150,000 passenger automobiles and 35,000 trucks are operating in the city without 1933 licenses. An examination of the police records showed that the number of summonses issued to motorists for not having 1933 licenses has gradually declined since the day that the police drive started. The first day of the drive, two weeks ago, 6,000 summonses were issued. On Friday only 784 were handed out, and yesterday only 625.

ROBOT PILOTS WILL STEER NEW AIR TRANSPORTS

Navigator Picks Course; Device Does Flying.

The robot airplane pilot has been perfected so that it actually flies an airplane. This achievement was announced yesterday by P. G. Johnson, president of United Air Lines, who said that the new instrument is being installed on the sixty new Boeing high speed transport planes which are being placed in service on the air line.

The robot pilot is a triumph of more than 16 years of research and experimentation, Mr. Johnson said. Automatically controlled airplanes were first conceived during the war, when the first robot pilots were built and tested secretly. Experiments have continued since that time. Two years ago the Sperry Gyroscope company announced a robot pilot, but that mechanism was not satisfactory to the air lines, and engineers of the United Air Lines took up the experimental work.

Robot Does Tedious Work.

"Now we have an apparatus which has passed exhaustive tests under service conditions," Mr. Johnson said. "We are installing the robot as standard equipment on all our new transport planes. We consider the robot pilot one of the signal achievements in commercial aviation in the last decade."

The robot pilot will not replace the human pilot, Mr. Johnson said, but will increase the human pilot's efficiency to a great extent by giving him more time to study weather conditions and navigate his course. The robot will perform all the tedious work of flying, while the human pilot will retain the responsibility of directing the path of the plane's flight.

The human pilot sets dials on the robot pilot, which project the desired course for the plane to follow. The plane will fly along this projected course until the gasoline gives out without deviating, flying through bumpy or smooth air just as though a human pilot were at the controls. The robot will cause the plane to climb to any desired altitude, level off and then fly along the predetermined course, or glide down to any lower altitude and then fly the determined course.

Combines Blind Flying Aids.

The device is controlled by two gyroscopes and operated by a set of hydraulic valves, which operate the control cables. The instrument combines automatic turn control, automatic climb and descent control, and specific descent control. One of the two gyroscopes operates on a vertical axis, the other on a horizontal axis. They are in reality the artificial horizon and the directional gyro, two instruments developed to aid in blind flying.

The two gyros control a highly refined mechanism, which causes hydraulic pressure to be applied to the controls. This pressure is more sensitive and more spontaneous than human pilots can produce. The gyros maintain a constant position in relation to space, while the plane moves about them. Movements away from the level position of the course result in the gyros causing the hydraulic pressure to be applied to the controls, which returns the plane to its predetermined course.

Practically every maneuver that the plane might be caused to perform by manual action of the controls can be duplicated by the robot control system. The robot will hold a course, fly level, climb, dive, and turn the plane.

Robot Bridges Last Link.

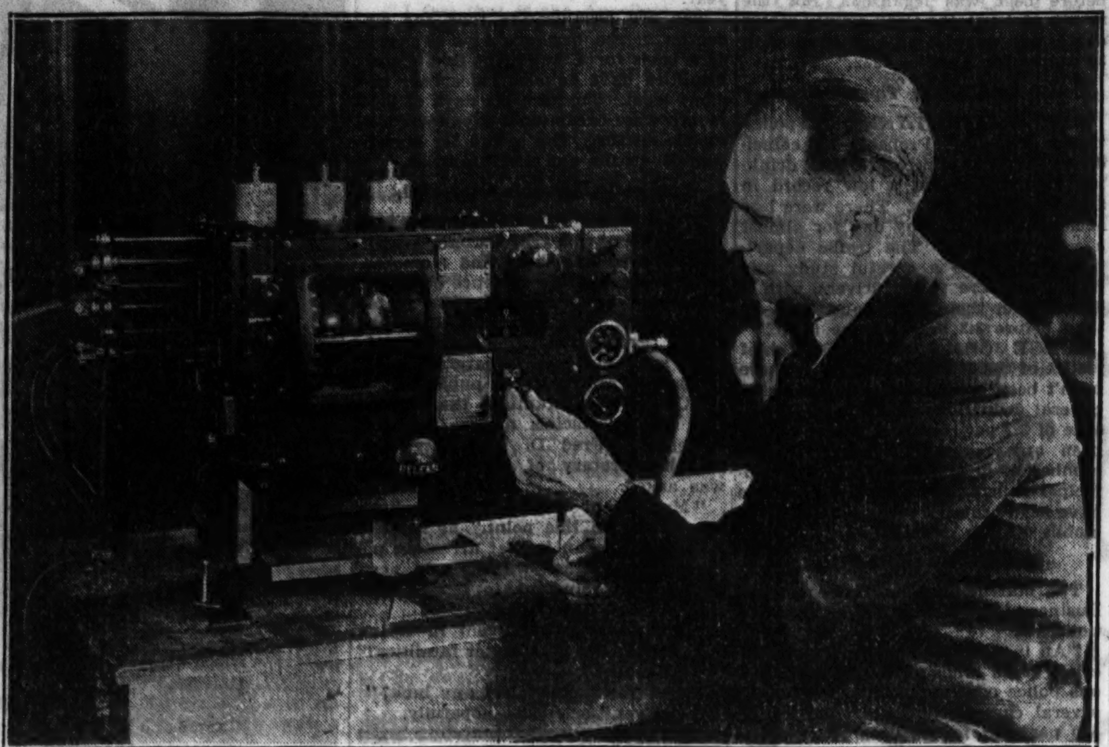
"During the last decade or so practically every uncertainly save that afforded by the personal equation has been removed from air transportation," Mr. Johnson said.

"Navigation instruments by which pilots can fly without visual observation of the ground or the horizon for indefinite periods have been produced, leaving only the human element to be solved. The robot pilot bridges this last link."

The robot pilot developed by United Air lines engineers is being manufactured by the Sperry company, according to specifications furnished by the air line. The equipment itself is contained in a compact box a little over a foot square, on the face of which appear several dials and knobs for adjustments. The box weighs about 150 pounds.

The robot is being installed on the new 190 mile an hour Boeing planes, and will be in regular scheduled service on the coast to coast and southwestern routes of the air line this summer.

ROBOT PILOT ACTUALLY FLIES AIRPLANE



Walter Addems, United Air Lines' chief pilot, inspects new robot pilot which the company will use on transport planes this summer. The drum shaped device at the left is the artificial horizon and at the right is the gyroscope compass. The levers at the left are hydraulically operated to actuate the plane's controls. The device can be disconnected by pushing the release lever shown at the lower center.

AIR RACES DRAW 10,000 PEOPLE AT FORT WORTH

Chicago Show Is Set for July.

BY HUGH SEXTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Worth, Tex., May 6.—[Special.]—Ten thousand enthusiastic air racing fans turned out this afternoon to watch the second of three shows here this week-end, which mark the official opening of the American air racing circuit this season. The races were held on schedule despite a 43 mile an hour wind.

Clem Sohn of East Lansing, Mich., sprained his ankle in landing after a delayed parachute drop of 10,000 feet, averting a harder landing in the high wind by a skillful manipulation of his parachute.

Art Killips, holder of the international trophy for aerobatics, recovered from a bad situation gracefully by a quick snaproll when the wind caught his wing tip as he flew inverted across the airport.

Wins Newspaper Trophy.

Marcellus King won the Star Telegram trophy race in his taper wing Waco biplane with a burst of speed that took him from third to first place among a group of fast planes. Bettie Lund performed a series of daring maneuvers. Frank S. Faulkner flew an autogiro in a series of spectacular stunts. The high wind made his windmill plane stand still and float backward.

The largest attendance at any air racing meet ever held in the southwest is expected at tomorrow's closing day here by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, president of the American Air Race Association, Inc., which is staging the circuit of air races in 50 cities.

Sees Success in Chicago.

"I am very much pleased with these opening performances," Maj. Schroeder said. "With this success at the opening of the circuit I am sure of the reception the American air races will receive in the other cities where we are booked to appear, and I feel confident in saying that the American air races in Chicago to be held July 1, 2, 3, and 4 in connection with A Century of Progress will be the outstanding aviation event of the year."

ASK METHODISTS TO STAND FIRM AGAINST REPEAL

Nashville, Tenn., May 6.—(AP)—Citing the declaration of the last general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, that "we firmly set our face against any recession from the constitutional outlawry of the liquor traffic," the college of bishops today called upon the church to stand united against repeal of prohibition.

"The church," said a resolution adopted, "must stand in its fidelity to Jesus Christ as the enemy of unrighteousness in every form and whenever any institution or organization becomes a friend and patron of the liquor traffic, it will be found in the future, as in the past, battling against that iniquity and on the side of a personal and public righteousness."

GIRL TAKES DRY PLEDGE; HER GIN MARRIAGE ENDS

Superior Judge Joseph Sabath extracted a promise yesterday from Miss Louise Ohls, 20 years old, 6639 Kenwood avenue, that she would never drink liquor again, and then signed the decree which annulled her marriage to Walter Barduhn, 5613 South Fairfield avenue. The young woman had testified, when questioned by her attorney, Norman Becker, that she and Parduhn had been married while both were intoxicated.

She said that she attended a party at the Alpha Chi Gamma fraternity house at 55th and Hermitage avenue last Dec. 14. The fraternity is a neighborhood club organization, she added. After a number of drinks several couples drove to Crown Point, Ind., and there she and Parduhn were married on a dare, she continued. She said she had seen her husband only twice before their marriage and never since then.

"You were very fortunate to escape the consequences of a rash act," Judge Sabath told her. "My advice to you, young woman, is never to allow yourself to get into such a situation again. I'll grant the annulment on condition that you promise never to drink hard liquors again."

The promise was given.

HUNDREDS SIGN PETITION TO STOP BEER IN WHEATON

The sale of 3.2 per cent beer in Wheaton was opposed yesterday in petitions to the city council asking that an ordinance prohibiting it be adopted. Several hundred signed the petitions, which are backed by church authorities and the Wheaton college community.

Mayor W. H. Caldwell said the anti-beer ordinance will be argued in a council meeting tomorrow. Joseph Sauer, a member, announced he would oppose the ordinance. He is the leader of a group favoring beer sales, and urges that 27 alleged speakeasies dispensing illegal beer be closed.

REDRAFT LAW OF TRESPASS TO AID AVIATION

Flying Over the Land of Others "Privileged."

BY HAL FOUST.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Following a lively discussion of the rights and privileges of the owners of land and of aviators who fly over it, the American Law institute today voted to include in its statement to the law of torts, the following provision:

"Trespass on land may be committed by entering or remaining above the surface thereof."

Aviation Interests Protected.

In the same section, however, the interests of aviation were safeguarded as follows:

"An entry above the surface of the earth, on the air space in possession of another, by a person who is traveling in an aircraft, is privileged if the flight is conducted

[a] for a legitimate purpose;

[b] in a reasonable manner, and

[c] at such a height as not to interfere unreasonably with the possessor's enjoyment of the surface of the earth and the air space above it.

It was argued by Edward S. Thurston of the Harvard law school, reporter on this section of the restatement, that under the early common law, land ownership extended from the center of the earth to the high heavens above the property in question, revision of which conception was necessary in the light of changes and possible conflicts incident to the invention of the airplane.

Mrs. Willebrandt Loses Point.

Limitation of the rights of flyers even to the extent involved in defining them as "privileged" was opposed by several members of the institute, including Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt, who is herself a veteran flyer, and the legal representative of an aviation concern. Mrs. Willebrandt moved to strike out the section of the restatement dealing with the subject on the ground that it did not correctly state the common law in this connection and that the rights of flyers in the air should remain unhampered by definition as "privileged." Her motion was lost.

The restatement of torts, which occupied the attention of the delegates today probably will be completed this year, and possibly also the law on trusts. The restatement by the institute of the law on property which also was the subject of discussion yesterday is about half finished.

LIBERAL WOMEN URGE HORNER TO APPOINT LIQUOR RULE BOARD

Establishment of a nonpolitical state liquor control commission is urged in letters written yesterday to Gov. Horner and leaders of the state legislature by the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform. The women urge the appointment of this body, composed of public spirited citizens, to study liquor control and to offer suggestions for the most workable plan that will best promote the cause of true temperance in Illinois after the 18th amendment is repealed.

Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and Mrs. William H. Mitchell, cochairmen of the Illinois division, declared yesterday that the organization has pledged itself to work for the passage of adequate legislation for a sound control system. It follows the program laid down by the national organization at its Washington meeting last month. The women now are active in getting signatures to the nominating petitions for repeal delegates to be elected June 5 for the Illinois ratifying convention July 10.

JANITOR SETS OFF BANK ALARM.

Cicero police dashed yesterday to answer a burglar alarm in the First National bank of Cicero, 600 West 22nd street, yesterday. A janitor had stepped on the button accidentally.

38 STATES MAY VOTE ON REPEAL ISSUE THIS YEAR

Wets Reveal Progress on Ratification.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A possibility that 38 states may vote on repeal of prohibition in 1933 is shown in the latest summary of the repeal situation. Adoption of the 21st amendment, repealing the 18th, requires a ratifying vote in 36 states out of the 48 by delegate conventions within seven years. Throughout the commonwealths the movement is pressing to put prohibition to the direct vote of the people.

This month five states will elect delegates. In June seven states will hold repeal elections, including Illinois, Indiana, and Iowa.

Michigan was first to ratify (April 10) by a 99 per cent delegate vote. Wisconsin was second, April 25, with a 100 per cent delegate vote. Rhode Island elected a solid repeal delegation May 1 and its convention will be held tomorrow. Thus three states are now in the sack.

26 States Set Elections.

Twenty-six other states have set elections for 1933. Six others are expected to hold elections in 1933, with tentative dates. In three others the governor has the option of setting the date in 1933 or 1934. Total, 38 possible elections before next Christmas. Not all these states, however, are counted as absolutely safe for repeal.

A summary issued by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment last night, through its president, Jouette Shouse, at Washington, shows the following status of repeal as of last Friday night:

States which have passed legislation	34
States with bills before governor	3
States where one house has acted	3
States which failed to enact	4
States where legislatures meet in 1934	4
Total	48

Midwest States First.

Besides Michigan and Wisconsin, two midwest states which were the earliest under the wire, and Rhode Island, which ratifies tomorrow, the 26 other states which have set elections for 1933 are given in Mr. Shouse's table as follows:

New Jersey, May 16.
New York, May 23.
Delaware, May 27.
Nevada, May 27.
Illinois, June 5.
Indiana, June 6.
Mass'chus'ts, June 13.
Connecticut, June 20.
Iowa, June 20.
*N. H'pshire, June 20.
W. Virginia, June 27.
Alabama, July 11.
Arkansas, July 18.
Wyoming, May 15.
Tennessee, July 20.
Oregon, July 21.
*Texas, Aug. 26.
Washington, Aug. 29.
Vermont, Sept. 5.
Maine, Sept. 11.
Maryland, Sept. 12.
Minnesota, Sept. 12.
New Mexico, Sept. 19.
Ohio, Nov. 7.
Pennsylvania, Nov. 7.
*S. Carolina, Nov. 7.

*Bill not finally approved.

States expected to set elections in 1933, with tentative dates, are given as follows:

Arizona, in July.
California, in July.
Colorado, June 20.
Florida, Nov. 7.
Missouri, Nov. 7.
N. Carolina, Nov. 7.

Three states where the governor has the option of setting a date in 1933 or 1934 are:

Idaho
Montana
Utah

States where dates are fixed for 1934:

So. Dakota, Nov. 6.
Nebraska, Nov. 6.

States where legislatures failed to act:

Georgia
North Dakota
Kansas

State where governor vetoed bill:

Oklahoma

States whose legislatures meet in 1934:

Kentucky
Louisiana
*Mississippi
Virginia

*Possibility of special session in 1933.

OFF TO CANADA

MRS. TEMPLE M'FAYDEN.

Mrs. Helen B. Logan and Temple McFayden, both well known in Chicago social circles, were speeding toward Canada last night after their marriage yesterday morning at the home of Mrs. Logan's sister, Mrs. Felix Cadou, 692 Irving Park boulevard. McFayden is the head of the investment firm McFayden & Co., 141 West Jackson boulevard.

Five years ago the former Mrs. Logan was granted a divorce from Howard H. Logan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan, to whom she was married in a wartime romance. She has one daughter, Josephine, who was present at the ceremony yesterday. Mr. McFayden's first wife, Mrs. Elsie Storz McFayden, obtained a divorce here last March.

The newlyweds departed by automobile for a month's tour, and on their return will reside at McFayden's home at 1120 Lake Shore drive. Dr. Norman B. Barr, pastor of Olivet institute, was the minister.

CITY TO ENFORCE ONE OF NEW BEER LAWS TOMORROW

The amendment to the city beverage ordinance requiring brewers to have labels on their beer bottles showing the exact alcoholic content of the brew and the dates that it was made and bottled becomes effective tomorrow. Mayor Kelly said yesterday that the provision would be enforced immediately.

Another amendment to the ordinance that becomes effective tomorrow requires the brewers to have their names blown in or etched on the bottles and burnt on the barrels. The mayor said that brewers would be given a reasonable length of time in which to comply with the provision. Both amendments were passed at the last meeting of the city council and signed by the mayor.

PIER FIRE PERILS LIVES OF 21 AT OAKLAND, CAL.

Oakland, Cal., May 6.—(AP)—Flames cut off the Key Route Oakland pier in San Francisco bay tonight, consumed pier buildings with a red glare that could be seen for miles and left the fate of at least 21 men in doubt.

All communications with the pier were severed, but it was learned that two ferryboats were tied up in slips and some 20 interurban passenger cars were on a side track built out into the water.

Key Route officials said there are usually 21 employés on the pier at this hour. Fear was expressed for their lives.

HELD AFTER SHOOTING.

Carlinville, Ill., May 6.—[U. P.]—Charles Koschwitz of Gillespie was held in the county jail here today following the shooting of Fred Porter, also of Gillespie, last night. Porter was shot in the chest during an alleged argument with Koschwitz. His condition is regarded as critical. Both men are miners.

FIGURES REFUTE ATTACK OF DRYS ON 3.2 PCT. BEER

Show Fewer Tipsy Drivers in New Brew Era.

BY HAL FOUST.

If it were not for a general and popular conspiracy to suppress incriminating facts the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation declares it would be able to convict 3.2 beer of responsibility for a sharp increase in automobile accidents, crimes and political corruption. With this explanation for lack of evidence to support its conclusions the dry organization issued a bulletin yesterday charging that the alcoholic content of beer "is being reflected in increasing motor fatalities and a rapid expansion of police cases."

With this charge in mind, official sources of information were sought out by a reporter with the following results:

JUDGE THOMAS GREEN, Traffic court—"Before legal beer we were handling seven to nine cases of drunken driving daily. Now we have two or three a day. The records show that a year ago the daily average was between twelve and fifteen."

CORONER FRANK J. WALSH—"In the first forty-eight hours of legal beer there was not an automobile death reported to this office. Our last motor fatality in which drinking was a factor was on April 4, three days before beer was legalized. For the month of April the Cook county motor death toll was 73, as compared with 87 deaths for April of 1932."

Police Find Fewer Tipsy Drivers.

CAPT. DAVID FLYNN of the police traffic division—"Probably by coincidence, April 8, our record beer drinking day, almost set a low record in automobile accidents. There were less accidents than in any day for almost a year previous. The traffic department has made a careful study and finds there are fewer drivers with a drink under their belts, liquor or beer, than before 3.2 beer became legal."

JUDGE JOHN J. SONSTEBY, chief justice of the Municipal court—"There hasn't been enough time to make any general deductions on the social influence of 3.2 per cent beer. There hasn't been any noticeable change in the number of criminal cases in the Municipal courts. Of course, the courts have been crowded recently with automobile license cases."

Statement from the Drys.

The statement from the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation said:

"An inspection of police figures for crime of all kinds as recorded in various police courts of Chicago reveal in several cases a jump of from 300 to 500 per cent in the number of cases, which in at least two instances has compelled the calling of additional judges to transact the ordinary run of court business."

Chief Justice Sonsteby said the staff of police court judges has not been increased, notwithstanding the flood of automobile license cases.

As for automobile accidents, the monthly report of the police department shows 53 deaths and 1,244 injuries in the city in April of this year as compared with 70 deaths and 1,330 injuries for the same month of last year.

The dry organization took the six deaths in the first six days of April as a basis for a statement that motor fatalities have doubled since beer became legal. The first six days of last month were exceptional days for automobile deaths. The record for March was 51 deaths and 1,027 injuries.

Charge Evidence Is Concealed.

In the 61 motor fatalities from April 7 to May 4 of this year Coroner Walsh said he was unable to find from the inquest reports any evidence of drinking, either liquor or beer. The statement from the American Business Men's Prohibition Foundation said: "All such evidence is carefully suppressed in reports made public."

"Can you substantiate this charge that public officials are suppressing evidence?" Fred D. L. Squires, research secretary of the dry group, was asked.

"Maybe our statement is a little too strong on this point," he replied. "What we mean is that arresting policemen and other witnesses to accidents seem reluctant to testify that they smelled beer."

"You have been diligent in trying to connect beer with motor fatalities?"

"Of course."

"And you haven't had any luck?"

"Not yet," he replied hopefully.

DAVID FINES ALLMAN; CLASH OVER CABARET

Closing of Jeffery Tavern Starts Court Row.

John Maroney, former waiter at the old Friar's inn, and Al Strook, police character who was once identified as a slayer, found a friend in Superior Judge Joseph B. David yesterday. After an exciting legal drama in his courtroom the judge held Police Commissioner James P. Allman in contempt of court and fined him $50 for closing the Jeffery tavern, a cabaret, in violation of a mandamus order directing the police to refrain from interfering with the place.

Maroney and Strook are the owners of the cabaret. Only Maroney appeared in court yesterday. He grinned as Judge Davis kept a large crowd of spectators amused for two hours with frequent threats of jail sentences for Allman and his attorney, Joseph Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel. Grossman's assistants, William V. Daley and Otto Weiner, also were threatened with punishment by Judge David.

Frequented by Hoodlums.

The tavern is located at 83d street and South Chicago avenue. Police officials stated yesterday that it has been known for years as a place frequented by hoodlums. From 1919 until 1929 it operated intermittently between closing by federal liquor injunctions. In January, 1923, prohibition agents, after making a huge haul of whisky and alcohol, informed a federal commissioner that it was "the most brazen cabaret in the city."

Last July the tavern was taken over by Maroney, who graduated from the Friar's inn at Van Buren street and Wabash avenue, which was a rendezvous for gangsters until it was closed in December, 1926, by federal injunction. After the tavern was bombed last Jan. 17 it was disclosed that Strook was a partner in the enterprise.

Since Maroney purchased the place the tavern has not been involved in any police difficulties, his lawyer, John H. Johntry, said last night. He denied the inn has been a hangout for crooks since Maroney bought it.

An examination of records at the bureau of identification yesterday revealed that Strook, who is 34 years old and lives at 6710 Chappel avenue, was charged with burglary on Dec. 4, 1925. He failed to appear in Municipal Judge Joseph Schulman's court to defend himself and his bond was forfeited. Later the case against him was stricken from the records.

Identified as Slayer.

Two years later he was identified as the slayer of James Webb, a semiprofessional baseball player, who was shot in a saloon brawl at 7469 South Chicago avenue. Strook was shot at the same time. After his identification witnesses who had been expected to testify against him were kidnaped and warned to "shut up." The records show Strook was never brought to trial.

Another example of his ability to evade court punishment occurred last Dec. 8, when the late Mayor Cermak's "hoodlum squad" entered Jeffery tavern and seized two slot machines. Strook admitted ownership and was arrested. He was freed a week later by Municipal Judge Jay A. Schiller.

Later Mayor Cermak was informed by police that the cabaret was a favorite spot for gangsters. He was told that a man wanted in Indiana on a bank robbery charge had formerly managed the floor show. The mayor then directed the city license department to refuse to renew the Jeffery tavern license in accordance with his order against licensing hoodlum hangouts.

A "Question of Law."

After finding Allman guilty of contempt yesterday, Judge David said: "I want it understood that this is purely a question of law. I know that the chief acted with no intent to scorn the court's order. On the other hand I have always believed that it is the duty of a judge to uphold the dignity of the courts. The chief is a warm personal friend of mine, but I cannot let him or any one else trifle with the orders of the court.

"I feel that if the Appellate court reverses me in this case that we might just as well turn over the judicial power of the county courts to the police department and the mayor."

The mandamus which Allman allegedly violated was issued by Judge David on March 22. The corporation counsel's office appealed to the Appellate court and Allman placed a police guard at the cabaret to keep it closed. Maroney, through his attorney, Mr. Johntry, then asked Judge David to cite Allman for contempt.

Orders Allman Into Court.

When the hearing opened yesterday Allman was not in court. Judge David halted proceedings and sent Assistant Corporation Counsel Weiner to bring in the chief with the threat, "If you don't bring him in I'll send a deputy sheriff after him."

When the chief appeared Attorney Grossman announced the city would take the position that the judge had no jurisdiction in the case. He said that the appeal from the mandamus order automatically superseded Judge David's ruling pending a finding by the higher court.

Attorney Walter Bachrach, whom the judge had appointed as "friend of the court," replied that the state Supreme court opinions held that a mandamus order remained in effect until a special writ of supersedeas was obtained by an appellant. Grossman attempted to continue his argument, but Judge David refused to hear it.

The Right to Operate.

"If what you say is true the arbitrary whim of a policeman could be enough to destroy a man's property by denying him the right to operate his business during a long period while he fought appeals through all the courts," he said.

Allman, called to the stand, said he had been informed by the corporation counsel that he had a right to keep the cabaret closed pending the appeal. When asked if he had anything else to add he said:

"Well, I don't care to go to jail, certainly. I just followed the advice of the corporation counsel."

"It seems to me that I should not only hold the commissioner in contempt but also all the lawyers who gave him bad advice," Judge David said.

The judge then announced his ruling, allowing a stay of sentence for an appeal.

ALLMAN PROMOTES 24 MORE PATROLMEN TO BE SERGEANTS

Commissioner of Police Allman yesterday promoted twenty-four patrolmen to the rank of sergeant, and in another order transferred 46 men, including five captains, six lieutenants, twenty-five sergeants, 10 patrolmen, and one operator. A few weeks ago he promoted 38 patrolmen, making a total of 62 new sergeants. There were 83 vacancies in that rank prior to the promotions.

Those promoted to sergeantcies yesterday were:

Michael C. Loftus
Frank E. Loskill
John Barton
Peter P. Byrne
Thaddeus M. Cullinan
John J. Walsh
Frank J. Reynolds
Thomas J. Burke
Daniel T. Collins
Louis A. Capparelli

Ignatius J. Sheehan
William J. Leen
John J. McClowry
John T. Warren
Albert W. Anderson
Anthony D'Grazio

Irving C. Alexander
John T. McMahon

The captains transferred were John P. Ryan, Lawndale to Fillmore; Mathew Homer, Stanton avenue to Burnside; Hugh McCarthy, Burnside to Stanton; Patrick Kelliher, Fillmore to Lawndale, and Capt. Thomas Pilkington, Gresham to detective bureau.

BROTHERS ADMIT HOLDUPS; MOTHER IS SEIZED IN RAID

Two brothers, who confessed to seven robberies downstate, were arrested here yesterday in raids on their flats. They are Wayne Bowlin, 23 years old, who was arrested with his mother, Mrs. Lottie Brown, 50 years old, in her apartment at 1950 Lincoln avenue, and Harold Bowlin, 26 years old, 1957 West Washington boulevard.

Information leading to the arrests was given by Sheriff E. C. Wilson of Macon county, whom they robbed of his revolver and automobile in Decatur, when their own automobile broke down after a robbery in Mansfield. The brothers were traced to Chicago through the license number of their abandoned automobile. They are the sons of Mrs. Brown through an earlier marriage. She was held for questioning.

Harold Bowlin was discovered hiding under the bed in his apartment and was foiled by the police in his attempt to jump from a window.

IDENTIFIES GOLD ROBBERY GUN AS LONG LOST GIFT

The gold plated revolver believed by police to have been used by two men who are held on robbery charges was identified yesterday by Harry A. Clements, 3506 Greenview avenue, as the weapon he lost two years ago. The two held are Herbert Mitchell, 20 years old, and Fred Mitchell, 28, his uncle, both of 4108 Kenmore avenue.

Clements said the revolver was given to him by Ye Ole Timers' club and that he lost it in a restaurant. The police arrested Arch Mitchell, 4107 North Kedzie avenue, the father of Herbert, who was manager of a restaurant at 12 West Jackson boulevard when the gun was lost.

The Mitchells held were identified by Anton Roder, 3456 Irving Park boulevard, as the men who robbed him of $5 and terrorized Tillie Pauly, 3411 Elaine place, in front of her home a few days ago.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE DEFENSE OF AMERICANISM.

There are many organizations in this country whose object is to subvert American institutions and substitute for American principles and ideals doctrines borrowed from European radicalism. Although they do not represent the convictions of the main body of the American people they are doing a good deal of mischief in breeding distrust and discontent. They are exercising a right of which no true believer in Americanism would deprive them, but they should not be permitted to spread their propaganda without vigorous and intelligent response in defense of American principles and institutions.

Americans who are loyal to American conceptions of government and social order will welcome the plans of the Crusaders, noted here the other day, to broaden their activities and carry the fight for the preservation of Americanism to the youth of the nation. Here among the citizens of tomorrow is the battle ground. The infiltration of alien doctrines and theories subversive of American ideas has been accelerated during the period of general misfortune since 1929, but it did not begin with it. There is nothing more significant nor more ominous in American conditions since the war than the spread of socialist ideas in colleges and schools and the failure of this tendency to arouse vigorous defense of American doctrines. Such conditions must in the long run have disastrous effects and indeed many are already appearing. It is certainly remarkable that such a history as the American nation possesses is being so largely ignored by a generation which in spite of its present difficulties has so richly profited by the achievements which American institutions, principles, and social character have inspired and made possible. In times of misfortune human discontent always attacks the existing system and some good results are reasonably expectable from this ferment, but the bad will overcome the good unless there is intelligent discrimination in criticism and condemnation. Nothing in the history of any people could be more foolish than a headlong disparagement of a system like that which American political and economic genius has maintained through the changing fortunes of a century and a half.

That our so-called intellectuals are either unfaithful to their heritage or weakly silent against attacks upon it is a sad commentary upon their pretensions to knowledge and intelligence. Diversity of judgment is natural and desirable, but the American intelligentsia, so far as it is vocal, reveals a lack of understanding or respect for what has been demonstrably good in American life. The devil's advocate keeps the floor and there are very few among our intellectuals who challenge his sweeping indictments. Drastic and even revolutionary theories and proposals receive no such reasoned criticism and resistance as an understanding of our history and an appreciation of American ideals would bring forth and the danger increases that we shall lose our birthright as freemen before we are aware of the sacrifices we are making.

There is something radically wrong in the fiber of this generation of the educated American which, incapable of resisting the abuses of liberty and democracy, weakly surrenders the institutions established by a stronger and wiser generation for their maintenance. A period of lavish material success has enfeebled American morale. The pressure of our present troubles does not justify the hasty sacrifice of American principles, a panic retreat from the ground arduously gained from the errors and oppressions of the past. The American conception of a free society is not disproved by the excesses of those who abuse its opportunities, and a wise people will find means of restraining abuses without surrendering its liberties. Human nature is faulty and prone to error as the sparks fly upward. No form of government has ever repealed that law. It was, and we hope will remain, the American faith that in the trial and error of free men there is the greatest promise of human progress and human well-being. That is the American experiment, and nothing in the trials of today, severe as they are, nothing in its disappointments and disillusionments, can excuse its abandonment.

At any rate, American youth have a right to know what Americanism really is, what its achievements, not merely its shortcomings, have been; what it is they are invited to give up. They are entitled to a fairer and less shallow presentation of the American scheme than many of them are getting.

LAW AND ORDER AND THE FARMERS.

If Wisconsin is to go through another futile and costly milk strike county law enforcement officers will share in the responsibility for it. Their position during the March outbreak, when many of them tolerated blockading country highways and permitted strikers to halt and interfere with peaceful progress, made it a foregone conclusion that before long the strike organizers would be back on the roads. The strike is analyzed here because it is typical of unscrupulous agitation fomented by professional trouble makers throughout the country.

The country boys at the corners enjoyed too much their first chance at pushing defenseless people around, and the farmers, augmented by idlers from the cities, made the most of it. They left their posts reluctantly, and ever since the air has been filled with promises of what they would do when they returned.

If the strike which has been approved for the early part of this month is undertaken, the strikers, of whom by no means all are actual dairymen, will find a different public sentiment greeting them. The right to security of person and property on the public roads is an inherent one that Gov. Schmedeman will protect whether those who oppose it are badly advised farm owners or city hoodlums who seek to profit from their trouble and disorder.

The unchallenged right of any farmer to withhold his own product from market is distinctly different from any fancied right to interfere with his neighbor who wants to ship his milk and who properly uses the public roads for this purpose.

The proposed strike has had the approval of only a few of the more vociferous dairymen or their organizations. The new milk pool, and now the Holiday association, is eager for it. The Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, comprising 22 farm and dairy organizations, has voted almost as a unit against it. This council reports 100,000 members comprising such thoughtful organizations as the Equity, the Grange, the Farm Bureau, and the special dairy breed organizations. The Pure Milk association has 16 units in Wisconsin, only three of which have shown any predisposition toward a strike.

Agricultural Wisconsin of all states is least able to undergo a period of emotionalism and destruction that a farm strike or holiday entails. Its dairy crop is the most highly perishable of all farm products. There can be no such thing as a holiday on a Wisconsin farm. The highly bred cattle which give the state its superiority in dairy production never take a holiday for a single day. Their need of care and feed and attention is constant and continuous.

If, instead of organizing to enforce an unsupportable increase in food price on people who are in at least as great need as the farmers themselves, they would organize to compel a reduction in public costs, that would serve their own pocketbooks much more effectively and also help to preserve and insure their own and the nation's stability.

The United States Year Book of Agriculture is the authority that Wisconsin farmers who paid $14,000,000 in taxes in 1910 paid $34,000,000 taxes in 1930, an increase of $20,000,000. Farm produce prices now are lower than those received from 1910 to 1914 and the $20,000,000 additional taxes the farmer now pays almost represent the difference between a comfortable and profitable life and the distress now common to him. It means an additional profit of $10 per year on each of the 2,000,000 dairy cows in Wisconsin, a greater increase in income per cow than is expected from the most successful strike or holiday.

Such an organization would strike at the very base of the farm problem and its hope of effectiveness would be far greater than can come from any campaign of destructiveness which is bound to ensue from a strike program.

Wisconsin's dairy leadership has grown by laborious and thoughtful husbandry for many years. It is noteworthy that almost none of the names of those most active in urging and promoting a destructive strike are the names of those who were responsible for building up Wisconsin's great farm industry to the position it now occupies.

MR. GRUENBERG AND "EMPEROR JONES."

Edward Moore, THE TRIBUNE music critic, writing of the performance of "Emperor Jones" in Chicago, helps to clear up a little mystery. The more consciously intellectual of the eastern critics had found everything in the opera and its presentation splendid except the music. They came down severely on Louis Gruenberg's score. It was the intellectual opinion that O'Neill's drama and Lawrence Tibbett's singing had produced a magnificent show in spite of the handicap which Mr. Gruenberg's trivialities, misunderstandings, lack of talent, and general inconsequence had imposed upon the work of the dramatist and the singer. The producer was thought to have abetted Mr. Gruenberg more than to have aided O'Neill and Tibbett.

This seemed particularly cruel to the composer. It would have less savage to him if the show had been a failure in the opinion of the intellectuals. If he had completely smothered O'Neill as a dramatist and Tibbett as a great singer of dramatic opera his achievement would have been understandable, but there was something recognized as a great performance and it was opera, succeeding as a great show in the opera form, and yet all that made it opera was rotten. This didn't seem to make sense.

Mr. Moore holds a contrary opinion. He finds that Mr. Gruenberg in writing music for the O'Neill play has written just the sort of music which makes it possible to produce the play as an opera and which makes it a triumph for Mr. Tibbett. Mr. Gruenberg permits the drama to proceed. He does not throw his music across its progress but makes the music a part of the artistic whole. If the show is a splendid show as an opera it would seem incredible that the music should be a complete flop and more understandable that Mr. Gruenberg has brought the necessary talent into the consistency of the whole performance. That makes sense and the intellectual opinion doesn't. Mr. Moore's understanding of what happened has the greater virtue of logic. Even Mr. O'Neill and even Mr. Tibbett couldn't make a great success if the composer betrayed them on every question of substance and form. They could not prevail against him.

Mr. O'Neill has become a myth requiring something more than conventional intellectualism to reduce it to creditable size and content. It was a part of this myth that Mr. Gruenberg must necessarily profane Mr. O'Neill's genius, and that being the legend he was esteemed necessarily to have done so.

MONEY TO THE PROPHETS

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

When Protestant pastors cite Hebrew prophets in support of modern socialistic teaching they may be stating their own views with clarity or even be giving a "Christian" interpretation of Karl Marx, but they clearly miss what the great Hebrew prophets thought or taught.

In fact, Prof. W. C. Graham, Old Testament professor at the University of Chicago, who made the foregoing comment, went further to point to the danger in the use of the prophets in respect to modern social theories of any sort unless pastors are adequately prepared to do so. Pastors, he said, must thoroughly know the nature of the prophetic movement among the Hebrews before prophetic material is used in sermons or teaching.

Prof. Graham vigorously denounced the view that such prophets as Jeremiah or Isaiah or Micah were primarily politicians, statesmen, demagogues or social reformers. While the prophets were aware of their times, yet they were not interested in politics or economics as such. Instead, they were interested in a way of life which was threatened by widespread acceptance of an inadequate and destructive philosophy of life.

When present day preachers with Red leanings use the words of Jeremiah or Ezekiel to condemn a ruling social class, their listeners in the pews should remind those preachers that the prophets "were never merely the champions of one class against another," said Prof. Graham. "The prophets were the discoverers and exponents of a positive philosophy of life; a way of thinking, of desiring and of acting."

Prof. Graham admitted that the actual preaching of the great prophets was largely in the form of protest. He said that while they preached violently against certain abuses, particularly that of the concentration of wealth about the religious shrines and against usurious and predatory practices, yet their protests really were against the activities of the whole crowd, rich and poor alike, because all classes were equally guilty of holding a ruinous outlook on life.

"One discovers as he studies the whole social background of prophetic times," Prof. Graham explained, "that the society of that day was organized for the exploitation of the appetites, the energy and the skill of the average man for the especial benefit and profit of the few. The appetites exploited were those of hunger, thirst, sex and amusement."

But it was clear to the early prophets, if not to their modern namesakes, that no good purpose can be served by merely making the under dog the upper dog through shifting power from an upper class to a lower class. The modern preacher who proclaims "class struggle" to such an end, said Prof. Graham, overlooks the fact, plain to all careful readers of ancient prophecy, that the prophets not only denounced the rich but also the poor for accepting the degrading values set before them.

"'The forgotten man' is literally the man who forgets himself," said Prof. Graham as he referred to low appetites of the poor masses which made possible their exploitation by the equally low minded rich. "President Roosevelt's campaign phrase suggests either or both of two things. If accent is put on 'forgotten' we have the suggestion of a first rate ancient problem, and a modern one as well. It means that society is submerged beneath a wave of social irresponsibility. On the other hand, if 'man' is stressed in the phrase and we say 'forgotten man,' a decline in the significance of manhood is meant. Individuals have become mere types. There is something wrong with a man who can be forgotten. He has become less than a person."

The business of religion, Prof. Graham declared, is "making persons out of things and keeping persons from becoming things." Man's main conflict is with his beast, he said as he asserted that "those who accept the ideals proclaimed by the prophets and which were lived by Him through whom the universe speaks to man cannot be exploited."

"From Isaiah we get the ideal of an honorable and pure life. From Jeremiah we get the ideal of a life which expects and gives fair play and decency. From Micah we get the ideal of a life of dignity. Intelligence, independence, honor, fair play, decency, and self-respect—if a man values these things society will find him hard to exploit."

Prof. Graham said that the preachers of today who lay stress on the protests of the prophets against certain phases of the life of early Israel "are likely to become little better than common scolds. This destroys the influence of such preachers and their teaching.

"Everything that a pulpit scold may say may be true. Yet even that is no guarantee that the preacher has told the whole truth about the life of his age. There is always another side to the story. This was true in the culture of Israel, but we must learn the other side from the early historians, the legalists, the sages, and the psalmists, rather than wholly from the prophets."

Christ was pointed out by Prof. Graham as one steeped not only in the great positive teachings of the prophets, but also in the whole culture of the early Hebrews and their Jewish descendants.

"The Christian 'way' or culture," he said, "is not alone the discovery of Jesus. Much of it came to him as a cultural heritage. What the prophets contributed to it was achieved by a critical protest against a lower culture which was dominant over the whole ancient near eastern world."

Prof. Graham asserted that neither the prophets nor Christ would tolerate the moral lobbyist. No true religious leadership which has arisen from prophetic or Christian sources has been critical of systems, he said, but the prophets often were particularly critical of institutional personnel. This was true because the prophets were wise enough to know that institutions which do not adapt themselves to changing conditions soon die. Problems are solved only by people and not by programs and régimes.

"The most conceited and insufferable individual in society is the institutional programmatist who asks the average citizen to abdicate his judgment in his favor and allow the all wise programmatist to impose some ready made institutional system upon him," said Prof. Graham as he pointed to Paul's advice when he urged Thessalonian Christians that they "Quench not the spirit and despise not prophesyings," but to "prove all things," holding fast to that which is good.

WHERE THE POLLENS ARE.

FOR four years O. C. Durham has been conducting a nation-wide survey of the pollens of the air, especially during the autumn hay fever season. Collaborating with various people in many parts of the country he has gathered the facts from nearly every section east of the Rocky mountains in the United States and, within the later years, in parts of Canada and Mexico. The facts collected relate principally to the distribution of ragweed pollen, though he has some information as to other weeds.

The study is to continue for at least another year. When completed, some way should be found to make the facts available generally and easily to hay fever sufferers.

The stations having the highest counts, in the order of their rank, beginning with the worst, were: Indianapolis, Buffalo, Omaha, Kansas City, St. Louis, Dallas, Chicago, Houston, Louisville, Minneapolis, and Wichita.

Those at the other end of the list, beginning with the best, are: Amarillo, Winnipeg, Tampico, Tampa, Port Arthur, Ottawa, North Platte, Montreal, Mobile, Mexico City, Charleston, and Boston.

A half hundred other stations reported pollen counts that averaged between the group at the top and that at the bottom. It will be noticed that the center of the ragweed territory seemed to lie in the upper part of the great Mississippi basin. The stations that made the better showings were those well toward the periphery of the region surveyed—Canadian stations on the north, Mexican and other gulf regions on the south, the foothills of the great mountains on the west, and some along the seaboard to the east.

Mr. Durham's report showed not only the pollen counts of the several stations week by week, thereby indicating the degree of danger of hay fever in each place, but also the date of onset of the hay fever season in each place.

The figures vary somewhat from year to year. A rainy season is liable to cause a heavy growth of ragweeds and thus bring about heavy pollution of the air with pollen. A warm summer is apt to mean early maturing of the weeds and an early onset of the season. High winds in the midst of the pollinating season carry the poison long distances. Particularly is this true if a high wind continues to blow in the same direction for several days. A rain generally washes the air of its pollens.

These conclusions are of no particular service to those sufferers whose trouble is due to pollens from other flowers. If a man has hay fever due to sage sedge he may suffer greatly even though he lives in a region where there is no ragweed.

And there are many possible causes of hay fever. Some have it because of the tree pollens of the spring, others because of the grass pollens of the early summer; some because of weeds growing in regions where ragweed does not grow. Some are afflicted by fungi and other causes not of the pollen group.

The man who would take the climate cures for hay fever and do it intelligently must first know what troubles him. Next he must consult reports such as Durham's to find where he can go and avoid the cause of his affliction.

IT MIGHT.

Mrs. P. writes: 1. Could sleeping under a new, unbleached muslin sheet cause hives to break out on the sleeper? 2. My 9 year old son is pale, listless, sleeps fourteen out of twenty-four hours, has night terrors continually, and complains of pain in the back of the neck. His teeth are crumbly. What should I do about it?

REPLY.

1. I guess it could, though I have never heard of that as a cause of hives. When it comes to the cause hives is not so picky.
2. Why not have a physician try to find out what the trouble is?

ENLARGED GLAND.

N. P. writes: Two months ago my doctor gave me a thorough examination, including X-ray, and found that I had an enlarged prostate gland. He advised me to have an operation. Could you advise me if there is any cure for this? I am 62 years old.

REPLY.

Operation is the only cure for an enlarged prostate and symptoms it causes in an elderly man. You and your physician can judge better than an outsider whether you need this operation.

SMOKING A PIPE.

M. T. writes: What are the effects of smoking a pipe?

REPLY.

Smoking a pipe has the advantages and disadvantages of the use of tobacco in other ways. The main question is how much tobacco is used? How it is used is less important.

LOTS CLEANED.

Chicago, April 28.—[Friend of the People.]—The rear of the vacant lot east of this address is being used as a dumping place for garbage, tin cans, and all manner of refuse. I am expecting many out of town visitors during the World's Fair and this unsightly lot makes me ashamed of the neighborhood. As next week is clean-up week, couldn't something be done to remedy this situation? A. W.

Report is made that vacant property in this vicinity was recently put in presentable condition by men asigned from the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. The cans, rubbish, etc., placed at edge of lot to which you refer will be removed when our trailers are working in the vicinity. This, no doubt, will be one day this week.

40 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 7, 1893.

CHICAGO.—Legal process, it appears, will be brought to bear to open the World's Fair gates on Sunday. This does not mean today [Sunday], but applies to the general proposition of closing the gates. There is no doubt that visitors will be excluded from the park by Columbian guards and Horace Tucker's subordinates today. Such legal steps as might be necessary to keep the gates of the World's Fair open seven days in the week are to be taken by stockholders.

The cowboy race to the World's Fair will start from Chadron, Neb., June 13 and will end at Buffalo Bill's grounds in Chicago, where the winners will be presented with the several prizes by the well known Nebraskan, W. F. Cody.

THE TRIBUNE's stories regarding the extortion practiced by certain of the restaurants and other concessionaries in Jackson park have had their effect. Prices in many of the restaurants have gone down, and, what is better than that, all have got out printed bills of fare so that the guests who can read and do sums in simple addition may figure for themselves exactly what to pay the waiter.

There were no vacant seats on the ground floor of Music hall when the fourth popular orchestral concert began at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

Among the Russian exhibits at the World's Fair is that of the Pedagogic Museum of Military School Establishments. This museum is an official establishment under the immediate supervision of the minister of war.

Germany's exhibit at the Fair will be the pride of all who claim allegiance to that country or whose ancestors came from that political division of Europe. The German building, overlooking Lake Michigan, is the showiest of all the foreign buildings. The exhibit made in Manufacturers' hall is the farthest advanced of the exhibits of foreign governments in the building with the possible exception of Great Britain.

Sweden and Norway have completed their booths in the Women's building, and they are open for the inspection of visitors. With the English display these are the only countries whose work is finished. The pavilions are united and just across the aisle from Spain, in front of the south entrance. The Baroness Rappe and Miss Hulda Lundin represent the women of Sweden. The Norwegian exhibit is under the direction of Mrs. O. Oes, president of the Norwegian Industrial society of Chicago.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MAY 7, 1917.

HEADQUARTERS OF FRENCH FRONT IN FRANCE.—Not only have the last two days of fighting along the Chemin des Dames delivered more than 6,000 prisoners to the French but have given them positions whence they can operate on the principal German defensive line occupying the crest on the northern side of the Ailette valley. From Laffaux mill to the Craonne the entire Chemin des Dames ridge—about eighteen miles long—with the exception of a small section, is held firmly by the French, who have thoroughly organized their gains in defiance of all the efforts to oust them. Counter attacks were tried by the Germans at many points with great masses of men who displayed the ferocity of despair, but they were beaten back again and again. The French troops advanced so rapidly that some of the German heavy artillery could not be removed and was captured together with some of their field artillery.

COPENHAGEN.—Highly patriotic German newspapers, like the Fremdenblatt, warn the government of the danger of disregarding the demands that are being made for some reform and that the present system of government provides too narrow a basis for Germany's future. Under the present conditions the Conservatives are not trusting the government and are working tooth and nail to oust Dr. Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, and substitute the "strong man" who will be inaccessible not only to ideas of a compromise peace but to any weakening of the government or trafficking by the Socialists.

MEXICO CITY.—Several persons have been killed and about 100 injured as the result of a sham battle in which 14,000 schoolboys took part. The accidental mixing of ball cartridges with blanks is believed to have been responsible for the tragedy.

PHOENIX, Ariz.—Star Daley, who killed James Ray Gibson, traveling salesman for a Chicago house, near Mesa, eighteen miles east of this city, on May 3, was taken from deputy sheriffs yesterday this side of Florence and hanged by a party of Phoenix and Florence citizens. Mr. Gibson and his wife were traveling by automobile over the Apache trail from Tucson to Phoenix when Gibson was killed.

CHICAGO.—Booze and the evil woman are to be barred by the iron arm of the military from every army post and every naval station of America. This announcement was made officially from Washington. Around each military post a proscribed zone is to be fixed and alcohol and venereal disease, recognized as twins which travel arm in arm, are to be scourged out and away.

THE LYNCHING OF JUDGE BRADLEY.

Chicago, April 29.—The editor of THE TRIBUNE has condemned the violence of the Iowa farmers who mobbed Judge Bradley. The writer has no defense to make of that outbreak. But he would call to the attention of the editor and those interested in the maintenance of law and order the fact that acts of unrestrained violence are being committed constantly in order to hold in subjection the victims of injustice and economic exploitation. Violence on the part of police officers, deputies, executives, and private "company" police.

Of the rightness of the farmer's cause there can be no doubt. He is being gradually crowded, despite his increased toil and efficiency in lowering production costs, into a position of serfdom. Providing the city dweller with food at the lowest relative cost in human history, these same Iowa farmers are seeing their farms taken from them by what is called by those in more fortunate circumstances the "inexorable working of economic law," but which is, as the farmer is discovering, the result of the organized opposition of selfish and predatory industrialists and bankers, who have manipulated the legislatures and the courts in their support.

An aroused and enraged rural populace is at last revolting against oppression. They have been compelled to resort to direct action because, like our revolutionary forbears, they have found the channels of legal redress closed to them. Violence is always lamentable. In this case, as in many historic precedents, the violence is evoked as the inevitable outcome of unrequited injustice to an innocent and long-suffering people.

If you condemn the violence of the oppressed will you condemn the violence of the oppressor? Our present economic balance is maintained only by violence on the part of officials. Why go to Iowa? Look at the coal fields of southern Illinois, where private deputies of Insull-Peabody mines hold a suffering people in terror and submission. You heralded in large headlines the near-lynching of Judge Bradley. Where was your sense of justice when organized gangsters acting for the mine officials killed John Ward, member of the Progressive miners, less than a month ago at West Frankfort? Although there were several eyewitnesses to the cold-blooded murder, nobody has been found who dares to testify in this citadel of human freedom. Did THE TRIBUNE carry any word of this? Did you give any notice to the murder of two unarmed Illinois miners early this month when deputies broke into the home of one of them without a warrant and shot them to death?

It ill becomes those who now enjoy a position of security in an unjust system to protect the violence of the victim unless you are at the same time crying out against the violence, open and threatened, without which those in power could not retain for a fortnight their favored positions. Is the law entirely on the side of those in power? Does the justice of our courts demand submission by the economically dispossessed and hold in power by resort to force those who are exploiting human misery? If so, and if there is no champion of justice among the voices of the people, there will be an appeal, as in times past, to a higher justice. And that appeal may involve violence. If so, who is to blame? OWEN M. GEER,
The Board of Education, Methodist Episcopal Church.

STRAWBERRIES IN EGYPT.

Park Ridge, Ill., May 2.—Way back forty-nine years THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE was boosting fruit growth in our Illinois Egypt. In 1884, when Centralia fruit growers met in early spring to discuss strawberry growth and shipment, it was THE TRIBUNE that printed every item for the benefit of the commission men in South Water street, Chicago. Now the paper is repeating fruit history of the state.

There were about 1,300 acres in strawberries near Centralia and from there down to Villa Ridge and beyond there were that many more. Then Centralia was known as the "Strawberry Queen" and "Strawberry" Wilson had the biggest patch. Jasper N. Kerr, formerly a school teacher, then editor and publisher of the Sentinel, grew strawberries on the side and when the season was over in his home town he grew late varieties on Minnesota soil. Many women were growers. There was a "Strawberry Blonde"; her name was Jennie Johnson. She had a patch of her own, and when Editor Kerr set out a patch up in Minnesota he sent Miss Johnson up there to oversee it.

Then there was the Illinois Central fruit train out of the region—thirteen freezers carrying strawberries only—arriving in South Water street before dawn next morning after the picking.

Fifty years ago the Perrines, as today, were in Centralia; strawberries and M. B. Sadler built an opera house, Landlord Rexford originated his famed shortcake. Strawberries set boxmakers to work clear down to Cobden and over the Makanda hills and all Egypt was bowing down to the "Strawberry Queen."

LITERACY AND VIOLENCE.

Madison, Wis., April 29.—Government statistics credit the state of Iowa with the smallest percentage of illiteracy of any state in the Union—it being .8 per cent, compared to 1 per cent and up for other states. How, then, does illiteracy bear the brunt for mob violence in the southern states? And is this culture thing a sham and a veneer?

To meet a Critical Situation

● We must raise cash immediately to meet payments on our five-story establishment at 169 North Wabash. We must do something drastic, no matter how great the loss to us, hence this emergency sale, with such values that have never been heard of in Nahigian's 43 years of business as direct importers of Oriental rugs.

However, we cannot continue this sale indefinitely. As soon as we have raised the necessary cash to satisfy our creditors, we will have to bring our prices up to a reasonable level. Within the past few weeks Oriental rug prices have already risen 20% in the Orient. Inflation measure is passed by Congress. This means higher prices.

Why wait? This is your opportunity to make one of the finest investments of your life. A most opportune time to buy several rugs for the price of one. It is the chance of a generation. Rugs bought at this sale will soon be worth many times what you paid for them.

Every rug is from our regular stock, measuring up to Nahigian's high standard of quality. NOT MUCH TALK OF FARM STRIKE IN SOUTH IOWA

Avoid Land Speculation, Foreclosures Are Few.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Fort Madison, Ia., May 6.—[Special.]—Where this Mississippi flows lazily in wide brown flood between the high green banks of Iowa and Illinois, one gets a view of the Iowa farmer in marked contrast with the turbulent northwest counties along the Missouri, where the soldiers now are keeping the peace.

There is no impatient strike talk here, nine of the eleven banks of the county are open without restriction, and the farmers have faith in the government and their ability to weather the depression.

There is a touch of the south here, a solid old conservatism that did not yield to the fever of boom times. Slow, perhaps, but now they are glad of it. Out where the west begins is the main story of foreclosures.

Demand Tax Reductions.

The most determined activity of Lee county farmers has been in demanding tax reductions and a 33 1-3 per cent cut in the county budget. This is farm bureau federation territory, with only a small group interested in the holiday organization. German communities, Quakers, the Icarian community, all going along under difficulties, but not thinking about revolution or the end of the American dream of independence and freedom.

The state prison is here, its high stone walls and watch towers overlocking the river. It is highly probable that this will become the temporary residence of a number of Plymouth and Crawford county farmers, who said they would dictate the law and who violated the court. There is little sympathy with that action here, although the troubles of the farmers are fully comprehended and shared.

One of the first citizens of this section, and a marked figure anywhere, is the white haired, dynamic W. A. Sheaffer, whose pen factory employs about a thousand men in good times and who has kept things going by staggering work and getting out new products. He is in contact with bankers and farmers and keeps his eye on legislation and public sentiment. The attack on Judge Charles C. Bradley and the riots in the northwest may have a beneficial effect, he thinks, in awakening the conservative, patriotic majority to their duty and their danger.

Tells of Land Speculation.

"Speculation in land," Mr. Sheaffer said, "was caused by the loaning of too much money on land. Inflation in stocks was primarily caused by the large banks overloaning on stocks. The rule of most of the banks in Lee county at the time the land inflation started was not to increase the amount of money loaned on farms, but to hold to the old values and take a less rate of interest. Therefore, speculation in land did not advance as far in Lee county as it did in many other parts of the state.

"For that reason farm loans were more secure and represented a better value than where the values were unduly advanced. Speculation got hold of the entire nation and a farmer that had 80 acres worth $100 an acre believed himself worth $8,000. When the price was boosted to $250 an acre (it went to $500 and $600 in some parts of Plymouth county) he figured he was worth that much more.

"Many went into debt for an adjoining 80 acres, borrowing $20,000 from the bank or insurance company. The farm was mortgaged for $125 an acre. When it declined to $75 an acre the farmer was broke and lost his farm.

Forced to Multiply Product.

"The question arises whether this was an honest dollar that compelled him to haul to market four times as many bushels of wheat and corn to pay for this as when he contracted for it. If the products from that farm had remained approximately the same value as they were when he purchased additional land he would have paid and had 160 acres clear. He knew what it would produce and at the price at the time of the purchase could have paid. The deflation of the farmer compelled him to raise four times as much to pay interest and principal as when the debt was contracted. He was bankrupt.

"It had another bad effect. In the endeavor to pay he increased his acreage, which further depressed prices. While he raised twice as much he did not receive half as much for it.

"Another thing caused unrest. The farmers are almost universally patriotic, loyal American citizens. When the war came they generously subscribed to Liberty loans, even those whose farms were mortgaged. When our government began to pay so much attention to Europe and neglected our own country, declaring moratoriums on the money these farmers had loaned the government to loan to Europe, some billions in foreign loans, they felt they were being treated unfairly.

Small Minority Agitate.

"The recent unpleasantness in Iowa represents a small minority of farmers. The farmers of Iowa are as sound, loyal, fine a body of men as you will find in any part of the United States. If given a fair chance they will pay their debts, and become one of the outstanding factors in the return of prosperity.

"They believe the present administration is making a sincere effort and they if they will just wait until values are rehabilitated, and cease foreclosures at a time when property brings nothing, that it will be beneficial to the people as a whole.

"They believe the United States has paid too much attention to foreign affairs and not enough to domestic. The purchasing power of the farmer has declined from 17 billions to approximately 5 billions annually. They believe that if their purchasing power is brought back the greater part of the 12 billions yearly will be spent in the United States to employ American labor. But if the 12 billions in foreign debts is cancelled, only a small fraction of it will ever reach America."

Cedar, Boone, and Cherokee counties have also had relatively few foreclosures, according to a bulletin of the state college of agriculture.

JUDGES SEEKING RE-ELECTION

(Election June 5)

DENIS J. NORMOYLE

Judge Denis J. Normoyle, Democrat, is 56 years of age and was born in Chicago. He attended the public schools, Central Y. M. C. A., and Chicago Athenaeum, and studied law at Chicago College of Law, the law department of Lake Forest university, from which he was graduated in 1901. For ten years he was associated in general practice of law with the late Pliny B. Smith.

He served as an assistant corporation counsel under William H. Sexton in 1912, and the following year he was president of the Illinois state board of arbitration. He was the first Chicago counsel for the Illinois commerce commission in 1914 in the administration of Gov. Edward F. Dunne.

He became a master in chancery in 1920, serving in this office until he was elected to the Circuit bench in 1927. Judge Normoyle was chief justice of the Criminal court for the period 1929-'30. He left the court dockets in better shape than he found them. When he took charge 1,101 indictments were pending; when he left there were 1,017 pending, and meantime the judges had disposed of 4,417 cases. In the season he was chief justice the Criminal court judges sentenced 861 criminals to the penitentiary; 400 to Pontiac; 347 to the Bridewell; and 226 to the county jail.

Judge Normoyle was indorsed in the bar primaries, finishing in twelfth place, and the report of the Bar association said of him: "His usefulness as a judge is impaired by a lack of patience in the court room. He is fairly qualified for the office."

CITY TO SAVE $600,000 A YEAR BY NEW DUMPS

Hewitt Plans Many Economies.

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, has inaugurated a new system of disposing of Chicago's garbage and other refuse which, he has estimated, will save the city annually between $600,000 and $750,000. The program was worked out under the late Mayor Cermak and is being carried on under Mayor Edward J. Kelly.

The main feature of the Hewitt plan is the elimination of four dumps and four loading platforms, from which the refuse was loaded onto railroad cars and carried out of the city, for the use of which the city has been paying from 22 cents to 50 cents per cubic yard. In their stead only one pay dump is being used along with three and sometimes more free dumps.

By abandoning the pay dumps and loading platforms Commissioner Hewitt has estimated that the city would save $2,900 for each dumping day. The work days, according to city experience, range from 208 to 260 days. On the basis of 208 days the saving would be $603,000 and on the basis of 260 days it would be $754,000.

In starting the new system Commissioner Hewitt stressed the point that no city employés would be laid off or would have their wages cut.

By carefully scanning contracts Commissioner Hewitt has made other savings in his department. After a heavy snowfall several months ago he used city street repair trucks to help gather up an accumulation of garbage and refuse instead of hiring trucks at from $25 to $37.50 a day for this purpose.

WALLACE, PEEK ARE AT ODDS ON FARM PROGRAM

Pair Disagree on Proposal to Cut Acreage.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—Even before the passage of the bill establishing a governmental dictatorship over agriculture, the head dictator, Secretary Wallace, and one of the chief assistant dictators, have fallen into a lively disagreement, it was learned today, as to what they will do with their great power when they get it.

That they will get it soon seems certain, for the farm relief-inflation bill is scheduled to be ready for the President's signature early next week, and then the dictators will be up against their promise to put it into swift action.

The strong difference of opinion on what sort of tactics should be practiced upon the American farmers lies between Secretary Wallace and George N. Peek of Moline, Ill., who is slated by the President for appointment as chief administrator of the Roosevelt farm plan.

President on Sidelines.

President Roosevelt has been sitting on the sidelines of this controversy between his agricultural experts, into which at least three members of his professoriat have been drawn. The President would seem to be supporting Peek, if either side has been given his support, but his expressed desire is that they should agree among themselves, and do it quickly.

Stated briefly, with the wheat crop for an example, Mr. Wallace wants to curtail acreage on a wide scale and to have the government lease lands to put them out of production, thus wiping out the surplus in wheat. Mr. Peek, poles apart, wants to let the farmers grow as much as they want, but to have a high price fixed for all wheat consumed domestically, letting the surplus go at any price into the world market. He has even considered dumping wheat at cost into foreign consumption, it is reported.

Allied with Secretary Wallace are two of his professoriat, Assistant Secretary Rexford Guy Tugwell and Prof. Mordecai Ezekial, while a third professor, M. L. Wilson, who is credited with having thought out the original basis of the Roosevelt farm plan, is reported on the fence between both lines of thought.

Peek Holds Forth at Hotel.

Although it is asserted that the argument has not gone to any personal lengths, and that both Mr. Peek and Secretary Wallace have hopes of working out an agreement, it was regarded significant that Mr. Peek holds his conferences with farm leaders at his suite in the Carlton hotel, distaining to avail himself of a niche in that spacious and ornate new palace, the department of agriculture, where Mr. Wallace holds forth.

It has seemed strange to those familiar with the situation that with such a disagreement between them talk could persist that Mr. Peek was slated for the vitally important post under Secretary Wallace of administering the provisions of the farm bill. But in explanation of this it is reported that the President has great confidence in the ability of both men, especially in their popularity with large farm groups, and that he wants the benefit of the opinions of both.

TEXAS 'HEALER' GETS 50 YEARS IN PRISON FOR KILLING OF CHILD

Linden, Tex., May 6.—(AP)—Paul Oakley, self-styled "divine healer," was convicted today of murder in the slaying of Bernice Clayton, 3 year old cripple, and sentenced to 50 years' imprisonment. The jury deliberated seven hours. A new trial will be sought.

District Attorney Elmer L. Lincoln had asked the death penalty, the defense was insanity. Oakley contended a "devil" told him to choke her. The child had been suffering with infantile paralysis.

The child died last December 10 in the presence of Paul Oakley, Coy Oakley, described as a disciple, and Sherman Clayton, her father. Neighbors said the Clayton cabin was the scene of wild singing and praying. Paul Oakley was declared to blame the child's condition on a "devil" and he tried to "drive it out" by "laying on of hands" when she died of strangulation. Coy Oakley and Clayton are awaiting trial for murder.

DAIRYMEN NEAR A DECISION ON ILLINOIS STRIKE

A committee of fifty dairymen from seven committees in northern Illinois and three in Wisconsin are to meet in Woodstock tomorrow evening to decide definitely on steps to support the farm holiday movement. Many of the delegates, it was learned yesterday, are in favor of declaring a strike on May 13, which the Farm Holiday association has selected as the date for a general withholding of farm products.

A meeting of the committee was held in Woodstock on Friday and resolutions approving the holiday were voted. However, attendance was not complete, and a decision on a strike was put off. One of those active in the informal organization which is to pass on the question is E. L. Bost, of Harvard, who was a delegate to the holiday association meeting in Des Moines, Ia., last week.

The Illinois counties represented on the committee are Kane, Lake, Cook, DeKalb, McHenry, Boone and Kendall. All are in the Chicago milkshed. A farmer conversant with the movement, who refused to let his name be used, said a strike would be called only if negotiations with city milk dealers, looking to a higher farm price for milk, were unsuccessful. Such negotiations are already under way in Chicago.

POLICEMAN'S CAR STOLEN.

Patrolman Frank Murphy of the Chicago Lawn police yesterday reported the theft of his automobile by three men from in front of his home at 3641 West 62d street. He fired several shots at them from his window.

COUNTY OPENS TAX DRIVE ON LARGE HOTELS

Prepares to Start New Receivership Suits.

Several large hotels which are hoping to reap a harvest during A Century of Progress will be named defendants in a batch of suits to be filed this week under the Skarda act which empowers the county treasurer to act as tax receiver for the collection of income tax from delinquent properties.

The big hotels to be named owe 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes, Attorney Thomas D. Nash, representing County Treasurer McDonough, pointed out yesterday as he made the above announcement. In the loop alone, the delinquent taxes owed by hotels total millions of dollars, he asserted, although the definite figures were not available yesterday.

Plan Intervening Petitions.

In the cases of hotels which are in receivership, intervening petitions will be filed by the county treasurer in the courts where the receivership cases are pending. Under the Skarda act, the treasurer as an intervening petitioner has a prior right to income from the property for the collection of back taxes.

"The hotels expect a big season during the World's Fair," said Attorney Nash. "Everyone hopes they make all the money they can but they must pay up their taxes."

Mr. Nash also announced that three more suits will be filed tomorrow morning to place tax delinquent properties in county receivership. The properties marked for this action are the Seneca hotel, 200 East Chestnut street, with unpaid taxes totaling $8,521; 918-22 North Michigan avenue, with unpaid taxes totaling $29,571, and 631-7 North Michigan avenue, with unpaid taxes totaling $27,435.

All Owe Taxes, Nash Says.

On all these properties there are delinquent balances due of 1928, 1929 and 1930 taxes, Attorney Nash said.

A test of the constitutionality of the Skarda act will probably be made this week by the refusal of Sol H. Goldberg, lessee of the Loop End building, 177 North State street, to pay delinquent taxes on that property.

The Circuit court judges are also to meet tomorrow to consider adoption of a rule which would require all receivers of income producing properties to turn over 75 per cent of the monthly net operating income for the payment of delinquent taxes. The rule is expected to be adopted by the judges.

Jacobs Studies Kerner Brief.

Commenting yesterday on the brief filed Friday before the state Supreme court by Attorney General Otto Kerner in which the opinion was expressed that the Cook county board of tax appeals was within its rights in ordering a flat cut of 15 per cent in the 1931 assessment on homes and small flat buildings, County Assessor J. L. Jacobs said he would withhold a decision until he and Attorney Hayden N. Bell had studied the brief.

"If the attorney general upholds the validity of the order of the board of appeals, I will comply with the order," the assessor said. "But the entire matter will be held in abeyance until the mandamus action has been settled by the Supreme court at Springfield."

LOCKED INSIDE ICEBOX.

Frank Capuzi, 51 years old, and his dog were locked in the icebox of his grocery store at 710 North Rockwell street yesterday by four men who took $175.

PLAN PLAQUES IN MEMORY OF 3 CITY ENGINEERS

Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works, yesterday disclosed a proposal for the erection of three bronze plaques, on the Chicago avenue water tower, to commemorate the services of three city engineers in founding Chicago's water and sewage systems. Permission of the city council is being sought to erect the plaques.

The bronzes are in memory of Dewitt Clinton Cregier, former city engineer, commissioner of public works, and mayor; Ellis S. Chesbrough, a former city engineer and commissioner of public works, and John E. Ericson, who was city engineer from 1893 to 1927, except for a four year period. It is proposed to erect the plaques June 12, the opening day of the American Waterworks association convention in Chicago.

Prominent engineers have raised a fund of $300 to pay for the tablets, and representatives of all the national and local engineering societies are to be invited to attend the installation.

Thieves Return to Flat; Steal 400 Pound Icebox

Thieves returned to a vacant flat at 1015 North Crawford avenue yesterday and took a 400 pound ice box. On their first attempt they took a refrigerator from another flat in the building.

OGLESBY FARMS MAKE MONEY FOR 3 GENERATIONS

Sound Policy Called Key to His Success.

BY PAUL POTTER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Elkhart, Ill., May 6.—[Special.]—A nation on the verge of investing a billion odd dollars in buttressing the ramparts of its basic agricultural industry might well beat a pathway to the woodland doorstep of John G. Oglesby, twice lieutenant governor of Illinois and son of the only man to be three times governor of this state.

Such a pathway would turn off the busy highway 20 miles north of Springfield, through a quiet little corn belt town, up a graveled hillside road to one of the most unusual dwellings of the prairies. And instead of finding Thoreau's mouse trap at its end, the nation would discover the basic policies of land operations which have preserved intact and without a penny's indebtedness nearly 6,000 acres of corn belt land through three generations. More than this, the nation would find that these same land policies had weathered the storm of the present depression as well as those in the past on 20,000 acres of land now operated by the oldest bank in Illinois.

Lives in Picturesque Mansion.

Ogleshurst, the picturesque mansion of three Oglesby generations, sits atop the highest hill in Illinois between the Ozarks and Starved Rock country. Surrounded by blossoming plant life in its natural state, this home invites with the mellowness of its years and its quiet grandeur. Within its portals is a genial hospitality in a setting which has combined the finest in new and old world hominess.

From any window in the house one peers through great oaks or lavender Jacob's trees over the valleys for 20 miles in any direction. It was in these surroundings that the Illinois civil wartime governor, Richard Oglesby, gained inspiration for his famous Indian corn tribute and from it he went with John Hanks in 1860 to secure two rails once hewed by Abraham Lincoln for the campaign which fastened upon Honest Abe the undying cognomen of the Rail Splitter.

Outlines His System.

John Oglesby, present owner of 5,800 acres in what was once 18,000 acres of farmland in the Gillett estate—all still held within the family heirs—outlined his farming operations. In addition to his own property, he is managing 20,000 acres, an empire extending into seven counties and held in trusts by the 82 year old Springfield Marine bank.

"Pandora's box is closed," Oglesby stated crisply in referring to the need for agriculture to wipe out the inflated values on land—values which reached $400 an acre in the boom war years and still are too high to be justified by what the land itself will yield. Insurance companies, federal land banks, the joint stock land banks, and many others will need to get down to cases, he maintains, before the farm industry is back on solid footing where the government and the people can build its way back to good living.

Travels 60,000 Miles a Year.

Oglesby, himself an officer in the peace time army, has a lieutenant, whom he calls superintendent, working out the policies for the entire 26,000 acre domain. He is Charles Stahl, practical farmer with an unusual ability to turn unprofitable farms into assets and to get tenants to make the family sized units pay for both owner and operators. He travels 60,000 miles a year, going over his 137 farms personally every few weeks, instead of managing them from a swivel chair. Many of the tenants have been on these farms 25 years or more, leaving only to buy farms of their own. One of his tenants just laid down $8,000 in cash to buy a farm—saved in sixteen years for just such an opportunity.

How Plan Operates.

Values of farms operated by the Oglesby-Stahl system for the bank of which Miss Alice Bunn is the sympathetic owner, are arrived at on a "horse sense" basis. They are worth what they will produce. Three values enter into the final appraisal, one of the loan value where the owner has no voice in management, second the investment value with operations under control of the owner, third the possible value, or what the farm can be made to earn by improved crop rotation methods. On these appraisals, no thought is given what other farms nearby sell for, although location, nearness to market, schools, good roads, etc., may be factors. Under such appraisals, the farms which most appraisers place at $125 an acre are given a value of say $72, and the owner can know exactly what he is buying.

Tenants Classified.

Tenants are classed on their abilities to produce both for themselves and the owner. They are operating farms worth $10,000 to $50,000 each.

"A city man with such a business would think he had quite a responsibility," Oglesby commented.

On farms where last year's crops did not pay the tenant and owner, the crops were held by the owner, and he agreed to give the tenant all obtained over his rent when they are sold. Corn has jumped from 9 cents a bushel last fall to 30 cents in the country now. Farms will pay in 1933, Oglesby believes.

"It is a fundamental to good farming that the wife should be happy," Stahl added. "Another basic principle is that the land must be rested occasionally, and we insist upon clover or soy beans in a regular rotation. Lime and phosphates are just mendicants and have no place in our soil improvement practices. We not only aim to build up production but to see that it will be maintained in the future. Too many farms are being bled white."

WOMAN'S CLAIM ON WM. KEARNS' ESTATE DENIED

Common Law Marriage Is Held Unproved.

The claims of Mattie L. Fennerty, who sought a share of the $1,750,000 estate of William H. Kearns, jobber of bags and burlaping, on the ground that she was his common law wife, were denied yesterday by Thomas Kastel, assistant to the Probate judge. Kastel ruled that evidence presented by Miss Fennerty during hearings extending over six months, had failed to show a common law marriage had existed.

The ruling leaves Kearn's sister, Mrs. Rose Fitzgerald, 3823 Gladys avenue, and his brother, Daniel, 616 Waveland avenue, his only heirs, since he left no will. Miss Fennerty's attorneys, Meyer Gladstone and Louis Blumenthal, announced, however, that they would appeal the case to the Circuit court.

Writes 8 Page Decision.

In his finding, which was eight pages in length, Kastel recited that Kearns had died last July 19, following a heart attack while walking in the loop. Soon after his death his sister and brother were appointed administrators of his estate, then presumed to be valued at $150,000. Investigation disclosed that he had, however, more than $1,500,000 in municipal bonds deposited in a safe deposit vault. Miss Fennerty then filed her claim under the name of Mrs. Mattie Kearns.

Commenting on Miss Fennerty's assertions that she had become Kearn's common law wife in 1901, and had been known as "Mrs. Kearns" in loop hotels, restaurants, and among friends since that time, Kastel stated:

"The theory that a common law marriage existed in this case has not been proved. The facts in the record are inconsistent with such a theory. It is not the court's duty to declare the state of relationship. It finds that there was no common law marriage."

Witnesses Deny "Marriage."

The opinion also cited the testimony of witnesses who related that Kearns and Miss Fennerty had never lived together for any consecutive length of time throughout their acquaintanceship. These witnesses also stated that the reason for their failure to live together was the strenuous objections to their union raised by Kearns' parents. The opinion stated that Kearns' parents had died nearly 20 years ago.

"In the face of this fact, which removed the alleged impediments to his marriage, it is more than an inconsistency that he did not take up an abode in the premises or in some other premises with his alleged common law wife," the opinion concluded.

FATHER OF EYE GIRL BATTLES CROWD; 12 HURT

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—John Vasko, returning from the hospital with his two year old daughter whose infected eye was removed, flew into a rage at the sight of a crowd of one hundred neighbors, reporters and cameramen gathered about his door in Hastings-on-Hudson today, and after he had done execution with fists and feet, a milk bottle, a broom handle and a baseball bat the area was cleared. A dozen persons nursed cuts and bruises, and two photographers picked up the pieces of smashed cameras after the smoke of battle cleared.

Vasko was the victor. He swore no one should take pictures of his baby and no one did. He swore, too, that if the police wouldn't clear the crowd from his door he would. And he did.

During the height of the battle, Mrs. Vasko carried the child, swathed in a green blanket, from an automobile into the house.

NEW WHOOPING COUGH SERUM IS DISCOVERED

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Development of a new vaccine designed to immunize children against whooping cough was described by Dr. F. M. Frawley today in a paper read at the annual meeting of the American Pediatrics Research society.

Dr. Frawley, who has been studying whooping cough at the University of California's department of pediatrics, said the new vaccine had been used successfully on more than 500 children in San Francisco and Fresno clinics.

Dr. Frawley and Dr. Albert P. Krueger, associate professor of bacteriology at the University of California, developed the vaccine together. It is prepared from organisms grown from fresh cough plates and it differs from other vaccines in that no heat or chemicals are applied to the cultures. The application of heat, Dr. Frawley said, denatures the organisms that cause the formation of antibodies in the patient's system.

LEAGUE PLANS RUMMAGE SALE TO AID MOTHERS

Funds Aid Chicago Maternity Center.

Customers who buy articles at a certain rummage sale on Tuesday should find added joy in their purchases, knowing they will help provide home care for needy mothers when their babies are born. The proceeds of the sale, sponsored by the South Shore Service league at 55th street and Blackstone avenue, will go in their entirety to the Chicago Maternity center, Maxwell street and Newberry avenue.

The center was founded by Dr. Joseph De Lee, noted baby specialist, thirty-nine years ago, to provide home delivery for mothers who could not afford hospital care.

It operated as the Maxwell Street dispensary and was affiliated with the Chicago Lying-In hospital until last July, when it became independent. Now it looks in most part to private support and funds raised by auxiliary units, one of which is the South Shore Service leagle, organized last fall.

The center prides itself on an exceedingly low mortality rate for mothers and babies. It averages about 300 babies a month and is operated at a cost of approximately $36,000 a year. The doctors and nurses do not confine their territory to the neighborhood.

Mrs. Milton Otte, president of the South Shore Service league, said yesterday that the articles to be sold will include clothing for men, women, and children, household articles, furniture, and novelties. These were contributed by members and friends who wish to help the center. The sale will be held all day Tuesday. Mrs. William E. Phillips, 9933 South Irving avenue, has general charge.

A SMALL PERCH POPS FROM CITY WATER FAUCET

Employés of the Nahigian rug cleaning plant at 2522 West Chicago avenue were surprised yesterday when a small perch flopped out of the nozzle of a hose attached to a city water faucet.

Loren D. Gayton, assistant city engineer, said it was a "miracle" that the fish got through the water system alive and unharmed. He said it had to go through a screen at the crib, another screen at the pumping station, through the pumps, and survive a dosage of chlorine.

"It will happen occasionally that a fish will survive the ordeal," said Mr. Gayton, "but usually if one gets by the screen it is cut to pieces. It could never happen if the city had filtration stations, because a fish would not be able to pass through a bed of sand."

JAPS ANNOUNCE DECISION TO SEIZE PEIPING, TIENTSIN

New Drive Due to Begin "Any Minute."

PEIPING, May 6.—[U. P.]—A smashing Japanese offensive encompassing all north China was officially forecast tonight by Japanese, Chinese, and American sources. The drive will be against Peiping, Tientsin, and Kalgan from the north, west, and east, it was stated.

Japanese legation attaches and military authorities admitted unhesitatingly that spectacular, large scale operations south of the Great Wall were just a "matter of days—perhaps hours."

"Nothing can stop it," one of the Japanese sources declared.

Chinese Say They'll Fight.

"We are ready to offer stubborn resistance," was the reply of Gen. Ho Ying-ching, commander of the north Chinese forces.

Foreign attachés here said the Japanese have assembled an aerial armada which will bomb the Chinese positions before the advance starts.

Japanese plans call for an advance along the Urga road against Kalgan. Another force will move southward from Nantienmen against Peiping and then continue down the Peiping-Mukden railway against Tientsin. A third contingent will sweep westward along the ancient Mandarin highway from Chinwangtao on the coast.

Naval Forces Ready to Land.

The British legation has been informed that the Japanese have established a base of operations at Haiyangchen, just inside the Great Wall near Chinwangtao, where they have concentrated 150 military lorries and large supplies of munitions, artillery, and machine guns. Similar bases already have been established at Kupeikow and Dolon-nor.

Japanese naval forces were reported prepared to land at Chinwangtao to guard the Nipponese rear communications after the offense starts.

Meanwhile Chinese headquarters here received a demand from Chahar provincial authorities for reinforcements to stem the steady southward advance from Dolon-nor of Gen. Lieu Kweitang's Manchukuoan forces.

Russia Offers to Sell Railway.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 6.—Although official quarters pooh-poohed a recent soviet proposal to sell the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria to Japan, reports persist that Japan is not altogether unreceptive to the proposal. Considerable credence is given these reports following the disclosure that the soviet ambassador, Constantin Yurenev, broached the matter again to Japan last Thursday.

It was also divulged that Maxim Litvinov, soviet commissar of foreign affairs, renewed the proposal to the Japanese ambassador to Moscow on May 2. Litvinov said he felt that the purchase and operation of the line by either Japan or Manchukuo would be the best method of solving the current dispute over operation of the railway. Litvinov expressed the wish that Japan offer a definite counter proposal.

It is declared that Japan would be willing to make the purchase providing Moscow accepts part cash and a guarantee of future profits of the line. Otherwise an agreement would be difficult, it is said.

U. S. EXPELS 112 JAPS FROM GUAM; NEW ROW FEARED

TOKIO, May 6.—(AP)—A controversy involving the United States and Japan was predicted today as a result of the alleged expulsion of 112 Japanese laborers from the Island of Guam. Guam, a United States possession, is the site of an American naval establishment.

The newspaper Kokumin Shimbun attacked what it described as the "outrageous order" of Capt. Edmund Spence Root, U. S. N., the governor of Guam, deporting the Japanese.

It said the governor refused to renew residence permits for the laborers which expired after six months.

HORNER NAMES 55 TO FIGHT FOR NAVAL STATION

Gillette Asked to Be Chairman.

At the request of Gov. Horner, Howard Gillette yesterday began organizing prominent Chicagoans and north shore residents who will seek to convince the federal government that the Great Lakes Naval Training station should not be abandoned.

The navy department is considering closing the station as an economy measure. While emphasizing the need for reduced expenditures, Gov. Horner wrote Mr. Gillette that, since Great Lakes is the only naval training station in this part of the country and proved such a valuable mobilization point during the world war, he believed it should not be abandoned.

A list of 55 citizens the governor has requested to serve with Mr. Gillette was sent the chairman. Those who accept will meet with him next week, Mr. Gillette said.

The following Chicagoans were invited by Gov. Horner to join the committee:

William Bain, Charles Berry, John Borden, Russell T. Cooper, James D. Davidson, Gen. Abel Davis, Mrs. Grace Schwerin Dibrell, John A. Gunderson, George Getz, Samuel Hastings, C. Heggie, W. W. Mitchell Trial Delayed by Prosecutor's Illness

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Because Federal Prosecutor George Z. Medalie is ill at his home with the grip, opening of the trial of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City bank, on charges of violating the income tax law, was postponed again today. Trial was set for Monday afternoon, but Chief Assistant United States Attorney Thomas E. Dewey said today it had been postponed until Thursday. Medalie is to conduct the prosecution.

GENERAL GORECKI TOURS CHICAGO IN WHIRL OF SPEED

Fidac Head Is Feted and Dined on Visit.

Gen. Roman Gorecki, Polish banker and soldier, visited Chicago yesterday at a double time pace. The general, who is president of Fidac, interallied veterans' association, arrived here Friday evening.

At 9 o'clock in the morning he breakfasted with Titus Zbyszewski, Polish consul general, in the latter's home at 999 Lake Shore drive. Representatives of Polish organizations and Legion officials also were guests. An hour later the general visited Mayor Kelly, and then conferred with bankers.

Honors Kosciusko's Memory.

He then went to the Chicago Stadium to attend a meeting of legionnaires in his honor. This was followed by a visit to various Polish organizations. After placing a wreath at Kosciusko monument in Humboldt park and at Lincoln monument in Lincoln park, he attended a luncheon given by the American Legion in the Palmer House. In his address, Gen. Gorecki paid tribute to Polish heroes of the American revolution and made a plea for the continuance of friendly relations with Poland.

After the luncheon the general was conducted on a tour of A Century of Progress. He met Brig. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, and visited the Edward Hines hospital. He returned to the Polish consulate at 1500 North Dearborn parkway for a reception.

Guest of Deweys.

In the evening he was a guest at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey at 1507 North State parkway. Mr. Dewey is a former ambassador to Poland. Stanslaw Patek, Polish ambassador, arrived in the city from Washington at 8:25 o'clock to attend the dinner in the Dewey home.

During his visit Gen. Gorecki was attended by Capt. Wencel F. Hetman, chairman of the American Legion reception committee. The general is making a ten day tour of the country accompanied by M. Barysz, a director of his bank, the Bank of Polish Economy, and K. Smogorewski, Polish author and publisher.

Gen. Gorecki is to leave the city this morning. The ambassador is to return to Washington Monday afternoon.

HOLDUP AT LIGHT; LOSES $125.

Fred Schwartz, 4917 West Washington boulevard, part owner of a garage at 3226 West Harrison street, was kidnaped and robbed of $125 by two men who stopped him at a traffic light at West Jackson boulevard and South Racine avenue yesterday.

BROKER'S TIP WINS 59TH KENTUCKY DERBY

CUBS CONQUER BOSTON IN 13TH INNING, 9 TO 6

HARTNETT TIES SCORE TWICE ON DOUBLE, HOMER

Nelson Stops Braves and Leads Rally.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 6.—The score was tied at 6 to 6 with the bases full of Cubs and two out in the thirteenth inning today. Fred Frankhouse of the Braves had whizzed two strikes past Capt. Woody English without a move from Woody. There was another pitch and the Cub captain slapped it for a single to center, scoring two runs. Up stepped Manager Charley Grimm with another single, the Cubs' eighteenth hit of the afternoon, and in came another run. Thus developed the climax of a 9 to 6 victory for Silent Lynn Nelson and associates in a seesaw encounter which required 3 hours and 7 minutes of diligent and, at times, highly disappointing effort.

It was a great day for Lynn, who pitched the last six innings to allow the Braves two hits in their day's total of eleven. Moreover, the mild Kansas City youngster scored the winning run after leading off the thirteenth inning with a rollicking double. Nelson was on third with none out as a result of a single by Demaree and went through a lot of suffering as he stood there and watched the Hermans—Bill and Babe—curl up with infield outs and English refuse to offer at two strikes. But justice triumphed in the end, as heretofore related.

Hartnett Is Real Hero.

Lynn never could have been a hero but for Gabby Hartnett, who strangely enough got out of the game for a pinch runner before Nelson entered the scene. Before Gabby left he had acquired a homer, his fourth of the week, which tied the score at 3 all; he led off the seventh with a single and scored for a big share in the two runs which enabled the Cubs to again tie the score at 5 all and he doubled in the eighth to drive in Jurges with the run which brought a tie of 6 all. It was in the inning that he retired to let Douthit run for him.

On his day's performance—three hits in four times at bat—Gabby lifted his batting mark to .379, to take third place in the league, 12 points behind Frederick and 1 point behind Traynor. The Cub catcher has batted in nineteen runs, and is leading the league in that significant department, in which he now has moved up in his race to lead both majors, with only Jimmy Foxx to overtake.

The Babe Still Misses.

Eighteen hits is a big lift over the Cubs' high mark of the year, and all but two of the starting hands contributing. They were Pitcher Malone and Babe Herman, who seems to be getting a bit more helpless at bat with the passing of time. Babe is blaming everything from the injury he got in Kansas City to his last hair cut, but still fails to impress, though he swears he's going to bust loose most any day.

The Cubs remained in seventh place, but promise to make progress tomorrow in a double header, which will be pitched by Lon Warneke and Burleigh Grimes, each of whom scored a shutout his last time out.

Berger Starts Scoring.

Berger got run manufacture under way by opening the second inning with a single. Malone knocked down Hogan's hot drive and threw him out, Berger stopping at second. Bill Herman threw out Knothe and Berger took third, whence Wally scored on Schulmerich's single to right. Ford walked. Fallenstin then lined a single to center, scoring Schulmerich and putting Ford on third. Stephenson pulled down Maranville's drive.

The Braves kept right on going in

Broker's Tip pokes his nose across the finish line in the Kentucky Derby yesterday ahead of Head Play after a thrilling duel down the stretch. Broker's Tip's nose meant $48,925 to Col. E. R. Bradley of Kentucky. Charley O. finished third. The jockeys, Don Meade on Broker's Tip and H. W. Fischer, who rode Head Play, continued their battle in the dressing room, Fischer claiming he had been fouled.

HARPER TO STAY AT NOTRE DAME ANOTHER YEAR

South Bend, Ind., May 6.—[Special.]—Jesse C. Harper will continue to guide Notre Dame athletics for another year. The Kansas ranchman today signed a contract to serve as athletic director for the scholastic year of 1933-'34.

Harper, who was head football coach and athletic director at Notre Dame from 1913 to 1917, left his ranch to assume control of Notre Dame athletics after the death of Knute Rockne in the spring of 1931.

It was during Harper's previous administration that Notre Dame established contacts with the United States Military academy, Nebraska, and other schools that later developed some of football's outstanding attractions. He resigned in 1917 to devote his time to cattle activities in Kansas, Rockne being appointed his successor.

The reappointment of Harper will give Notre Dame practically the same athletic personnel as officiated for the last year. Heartley Anderson was given a new contract as head football coach last February. His assistants will be Marchmont Schwartz, Tom Conley, Ike Voedisch, and Nordy Hoffman.

BROKER'S TIP, far back in the early running, moved up rapidly with a big saving of ground in the last half mile and, despite interference from the leader, wore down HEAD PLAY. The latter, kept close up from the start, took command with a rush entering the stretch, and held on gamely but could not withstand the winner. CHARLEY O. moved into contention with a rush after five furlongs, but hung in the final drive. LADYSMAN, on the outside all the way and clear of interference, failed to respond when put to the drive and was tiring. POMPONIUS closed a good gap. SPICSON closed an immense gap. KERRY PATCH and DARK WINTER tired after racing well for seven furlongs. MR. KHAYYAM always was far back.

JOCKEY'S SKILL PILOTS BROKER'S TIP TO VICTORY

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—The best horse in Col. Edward R. Bradley's barn today was Jockey Donald Meade, a 20 year old kid from the Dakotas who threw the nose of Broker's Tip across the finish line just in time to win the 59th Kentucky Derby.

While Meade went to bed tonight with a $5,000 gift from Owner Bradley stuffed under his pillow, a lot of folks who had wagered their money on Head Play were calling him a "thief" and the "roughest riding guy" that had come along since Teddy Roosevelt and his boys were down around San Juan hill.

But other thousands—seasoned backers of Bradley horses, instead of abusing him, heaped cheers and praise on the shoulders of little Mr. Meade. And no doubt it was his skillful riding that brought the fourth Bradley Derby triumph and the defeat of Head Play, a colt that might have been the best, in this particular race.

Meade Wins at Head of Stretch.

Meade stole the race at the head of the stretch, when after coming from far back, he wedged the Bradley colorbearer through next to the rail while Jockey Herbert Fisher, who seemed to have the race safely won on Head Play, took his mount out toward the center of the track.

Before Fisher realized what was happening Meade had driven Broker's Tip up on even terms with him. Fisher then tried to edge over toward the rail, but he saved little ground because Broker's Tip by this time was running with him, stride for stride. Then Broker's Tip started to outrun Head Play.

Both jockeys roughed it in the final desperate drive, one as much as the other, but not until they had passed the finish line was there any evidence that there had been a foul. Fisher struck Meade with his whip but the race was over by this time.

Boys Battle in Jockey Room.

The enraged Fisher lodged a claim of foul which was not allowed. Fisher and Meade reached the jockey room at about the same time and a furious fist fight between them took place. Police had to be called to pull the boys apart and even in this skirmish, Meade was reported to have bettered Fisher.

Charles F. Price, the presiding steward, said that Jockey Fisher's claim of foul was based on a charge that Meade had held his left leg as they came galloping down the stretch, and that the claim had been disallowed because such an action on Meade's part was obviously impossible.

"Meade was whipping his horse viciously with his right hand and couldn't possibly have held Fisher who was riding outside and on the right of Broker's Tip," Price said.

No investigation of the fight in the dressing room was made today but Price said it would be gone into thoroughly and a ruling would be handed down on Monday.

Meade, who as a result of his brilliant ride down the stretch in the Derby, leaps into the ranks of America's best jockeys, was taught his first

THRILLING DRIVE AT FINISH NOSES OUT HEAD PLAY

40,000 See Bradley's Fourth Victory.

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—Broker's Tip carried the colors of Col. E. R. Bradley, perennial Kentucky Derby winner, to victory in the fifty-ninth running of the blue grass classic at Churchill Downs this afternoon before 40,000.

It was the most thrilling finish of recent years. Only a nose separated the winner from Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Head Play. Charley O., owned by the R. M. Eastman estate of Chicago, was in third place five lengths back, with Ladysman, champion 2 year old of 1932 and favorite in the betting, fourth, two lengths behind the Chicago owned colt.

Backers of Broker's Tip, the only one of three Bradley entries to start in the race, received $19.86 for each $2 invested to win, $6.28 for place, and $4.54 to show. Head Play rewarded with $5.52 for place and $4.08 to show. Charley O was $3.84 to show. The time, over a good but not fast track, was 2:06 4-5 for the mile and one-quarter journey. Net value to the winner was $48,925.

Head Play's Jockey Claims Foul.

Immediately after the finish, or as soon as Jockey H. W. Fisher, who piloted Head Play, could canter back to the judges' stand, dismount, and ascend the official pagoda, he lodged a claim of foul against Jockey Don Meade on Broker's Tip. The claim was disallowed as the great crowd was cheering the winner on his progress into the inner enclosure with a garland of flowers over his withers. There Col. Bradley received the gold cup awarded the winning owner.

Opinions varied on what happened in that last seventy yards, as so often happens when many persons actually see the same thing with different eyes.

Jockey Fisher claimed that Meade, riding Broker's Tip on the inside next to the rail, took hold of him to impede the progress of Head Play. Certainly Fisher seemed to take a slash at Meade with his whip after the horse had passed the imaginary wire denoting the finish. In the jockey room afterward the boys came to blows.

Head Play Forced Out.

As Broker's Tip's nose nodded in front, Head Play's head was almost sidewise, either from an attempt to bear out under the punishment or because he was being crowded by his rival who needed what narrow space he had to keep from going over the infield fence. There were some who blamed Head Play's boy for allowing the Bradley winner to come through on the inside and they thought he was watching, until too late, the outside positions where Charley O.'s formidable challenge at the head of the stretch had faded. Broker's Tip had come from far back in the early stages, emerged from a compact bunch while still a half mile from the wire and then wore down the leader in the manner described.

Continuation of the argument whether Broker's Tip or Head Play is the better colt now will continue until after decision of other 3 year old stakes of the season.

Ladysman Has No Excuse.

Ladysman, the favorite, had no excuses to offer as the race was run, for he was in a favorable position when the real test began with no noticeable interference to impede his progress had the requisite speed been there.

Besides raising Bradley's Derby record from three to four victories—no other owner has won more than two—Broker's Tip is the second maiden ever to have won. Sir Barton, in 1919, was the first. After his Derby victory Sir Barton went on to win the Preaness a week later.

Until today Broker's Tip never had finished first. As a 2 year old he started four times, finishing second once, third once, and twice outside the money. In his early start of this season at Lexington he lost by a neck to Warren Jr., whose owner, Warren Wright of Chicago, did not think him good enough for the company and withdrew him from the overnight Derby nominations.

On his record, Broker's Tip would have been a much longer shopt except that it was known his stable was growing increasingly fond of his

Derby Crowd Bets $745,603 on Eight Races at Downs

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—The amount of money wagered in the pari-mutuel machines at Churchill Downs today was $745,603, a decrease of about $105,000 from the figures of last year, but track officials expressed themselves as being well pleased with the amount, which was almost exactly what they had predicted for the day's business.

The mutuel handle, as the money bet through the machines is called, was $850,809 in 1932. The record for Derby day was set in 1926, when the handle exceeded $2,000,000.

The crowd of 40,000 today was about the same as last year.

LYONS TO PITCH FROM 628 FOOT TOWER TO 3 SOX

Try to Make Record Catch at Fair Grounds Friday.

Three White Sox ball players will attempt to catch a regulation baseball thrown from the top of the Sky Ride tower at the World's Fair Friday at 10:30 a. m.

Those who will try to catch the ball will be Outfielder Al Simmons, First Baseman Ralph [Red] Kress, and Third Baseman Jimmy Dykes. The ball will be tossed from the top of the western tower on the main thoroughfare of A Century of Progress by Ted Lyons, star of the White Sox pitching staff.

The player who succeeds will establish a world's record for catching a baseball from a high point. The towers of the Sky Ride are 628 feet tall, as compared to 555 feet, the height of the Washington monument.

Senior Sullivan Makes Catch.

Three ball players have been known to catch a ball thrown fom the Washington monument. Billy Sulivan, famous old catcher for the White Sox and father of young Billy Sulivan, now on the Sox roster, was the first to make such a catch. This was more than 25 years ago. He did it on his third attempt.

Gabby Street, manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, successfully performed the feat a number of years ago when he was catching for the Washington Senators. The Sky Ride tower is 73 feet higher than the Washington monument and 56 feet higher than the Board of Trade building, tallest structure in Chicago.

The official baseball used by the American league weighs five ounces. Mathematical experts have figured the speed of the ball will be 16 feet a second for the first second of its flight and will increase in velocity until it will be traveling at the rate of 180 feet per second, or approximately 87 miles an hour, when hits the ground or the player's glove.

Simmons to Use Regular Glove.

Al Simmons insists that the catch can be made despite the terrific speed of the ball and the variable winds that blow across Lake Michigan.

"I am so sure that it can be done," said Simmons, "that I will use only my fielder's glove. No big catcher's mit for me."

When Kress and Dykes heard Simmons' boast they also agreed to use the fingered glove used by outfielders and infielders.

An area will be roped off around the base of the tower for the three Sox players, who will appear in their regulation uniforms. A number of other Sox players have expressed their intention of watching the performance. but will not participate.

Lyons to Throw Nine.

Nine baseballs will be thrown from the top of the tower by Lyons. Simmons will attempt to catch the first one, then Kress will get his turn, and Dykes will make the attempt on the third ball. The performance will be repeated in this order until three balls have been thrown to each of the players.

Helen Jacobs Loses Final of British Meet

BOURNEMOUTH, Eng., May 6.—(AP)—Helen Jacobs, United States tennis champion who hopes to add both the French and Wimbledon titles to her collection this year, started her European invasion inauspiciously today when she lost to Dorothy Round, England's second ranking player, in the final of the British hard court tournament. The scores were 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

It was Miss Jacobs' first tournament play since last summer. On her way to the final she defeated two star opponents, Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall and Mary Heeley.

Miss Round, a member of the 1932 Wightman cup team and a probable selection for the 1933 team, settled down after a shaky start to outplay Miss Jacobs.

As Miss Jacobs chopped her way to victory in the first set the galleries resigned themselves to seeing another title go to the United States, but Miss Round started volleying in the second set, going to the net at every opportunity, and soon had Miss Jacobs on the run. The American girl rallied for a time in the third set and attempted to go to the net herself, but Miss Round drove to the corners for telling points.

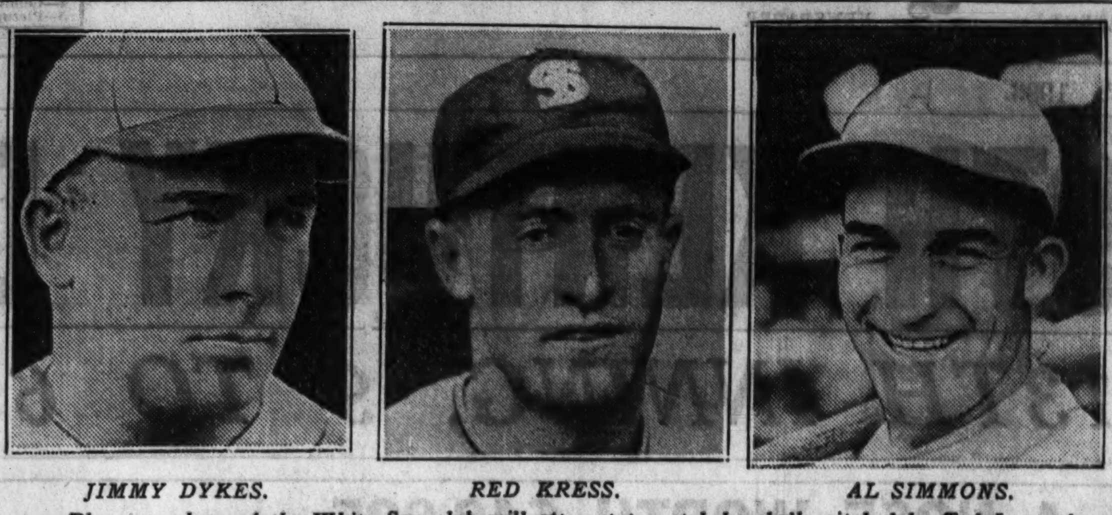
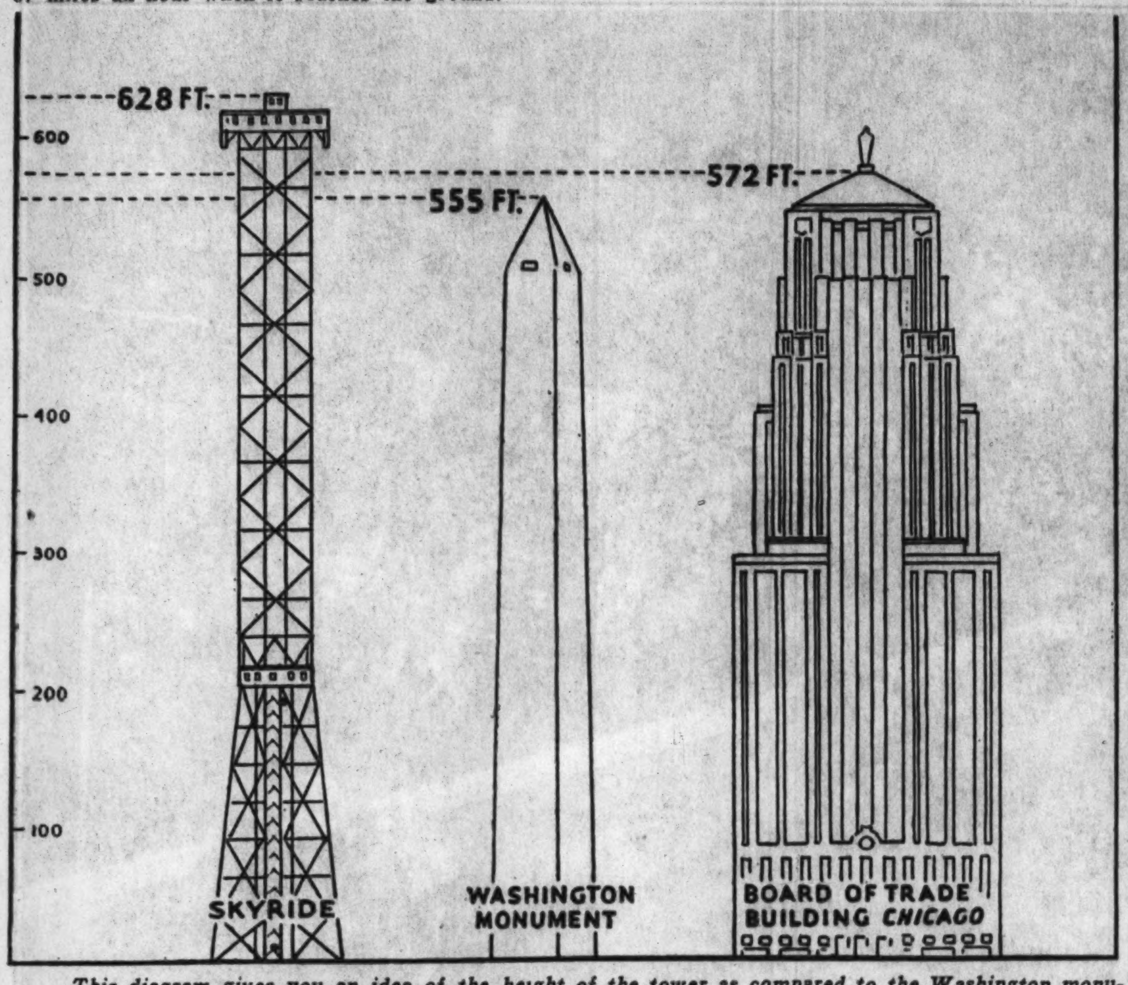
CAN THEY CATCH BALL AT 87 M. P. H.?



JIMMY DYKES. RED KRESS. AL SIMMONS.

These members of the White Sox club will attempt to catch baseballs pitched by Ted Lyons from the sky ride tower at the world's fair next Friday morning. Scientists estimate the ball will be traveling 87 miles an hour when it reaches the ground.



This diagram gives you an idea of the height of the tower as compared to the Washington monument and to the tallest building in Chicago.

English's Hit in 13th Wins for Cubs, 9-6

the third. Jordan walked, held on while Moore flied to Stephenson, went to second on a passed ball, and scored on Berger's second single to left.

Maranville helped the Cub cause in the fourth. Babe Herman walked with one out and went to third on Stephenson's single to right. Maranville, too eager for a double play, despite all those years, failed to come up with English's grounder, Babe Herman scoring and Stephenson taking third. Grimm flied to Moore, Stephenson scoring and English taking second.

Hartnett Cracks One.

Hartnett led off the Cub fifth with that homer—No. 4—which set the tabulation at 3 to 3. The Braves reassumed the lead, however, with two runs in their half. Fallenstin led off with his second single and moved to second on Maranville's sacrifice. Jordan reached second and Fallenstin scored when Bill Herman threw away Jordan's grounder and Jordan scored on Moore's single to left.

The Cubs drove Fallenstin to cover in the seventh inning and carried on against Frankhouse to tie the score, though it was no fault of the latter. Hartnett launched things with his second hit, a single to left, and went to third when Campbell, batting for Malone, made his first major league hit, a snorting single along the right foul line. Demaree popped to Maranville, but Bill Herman singled to left, Hartnett scoring, Campbell taking third, and Fallenstin departing for the bathhouse.

Babe Herman was given a more or less intentional pass to fill the bases. Stephenson rolled a double play ball at Maranville, who fumbled enough to lose the double play, but forced Babe Herman with a toss to Ford, Campbell scoring the tying run and Bill Herman reaching third. English then fanned.

Bush Gets Into Trouble.

Bush went in to pitch the seventh and walked Frankhouse, who moved to second on Maranville's sacrifice. Jordan walked on five pitches. Moore then singled to center, scoring Frankhouse. Consternation was great when Demaree, without the slightest chance for a play on Frankhouse, cut loose a throw to the plate, Jordan reaching third and Moore second. As it turned out, Demaree's poor judgment was helpful, for Berger was given an intentional pass, filling the bases, and Hogan, for the second time, hit into a double play, Jurges to Bill Herman to Grimm.

Hartnett again attended to the tying process in the eighth. After Grimm had gone out for being hit by his own batted ball, Jurges singled and scored on Gabby's third hit, a double to left.

Nelson Starts Rally.

Nelson led off the first of the thirteenth with a line double to right and stopped at third when Demaree singled through short. Bill Herman flied to Schulmerich in short right and the runners held their bases. Babe Herman was out, Jordan unassisted, Nelson holding third and Demaree reaching second. Stephenson was given an intentional pass, filling the bases.

English didn't offer at the first of two strikes, then dropped a single into center, Nelson and Demaree scoring and Stephenson taking third. Grimm singled to right, scoring Stephenson and putting English on third. Jurges fanned.

Nelson easily disposed of Knothe, Schulmerich and Pinch Batter Hargrave in the latter half of the thirteenth.

Cubs Move Over to Brooklyn for 3 Games Tonight

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., May 6.—The Cubs, undaunted by their 8 o'clock experience in Chicago last Sunday, are going to try to catch a 6:05 train for New York after tomorrow's doubleheader. They'll play three with Brooklyn starting Monday.

Lon Warneke is the only Cub pitcher who has won more than one game. Lon has won three, two shutouts and one 3 to 1 affair. Malone, Root, Bush, Grimes, and Nelson have won one each.

Cantwell and Brandt are scheduled to oppose Warneke and Grimes tomorrow.

Jurges made three circus catches today to show why he shouldn't be traded to the Giants for Sam Leslie, as per rumor.

Rain promised for early today didn't start falling until the 13th inning.

Pitcher Bobby Brown, always poison to the Cubs last year, hasn't pitched this year. He's suffering with a sore arm.

Cornell Track Team Wins Over Colgate, Syracuse

Ithaca, N. Y., May 6.—(AP)—Placing first in eleven of the 14 events, Cornell's powerful track and field team today defeated Colgate and Syracuse in a triangular meet. Cornell scored 90 points, Syracuse 24½, and Colgate 20½. It was Cornell's second victory over the two other universities this year, having captured the triangular indoor meet here in March.

KIDNAP THREAT BRINGS POLICE TO M'TIGUE HOME

New York, May 6.—(AP)—An extortion letter demanding $10,000 under threat that one of the three children of Mike McTigue would be kidnaped and killed unless the money was forthcoming caused police to throw a guard around the home of the former light heavyweight champion today. The letter was received a week ago. Since then the McTigue children—Rosalie, 13; Cecilia, 11, and Peggy, 10—have been escorted to and from the parochial school they attend by officers.

CULVER TRACK TEAM DEFEATS CENTRAL Y. M. C. A.

Culver, Ind., May 6.—[Special.]—Culver Military academy defeated Central Y. M. C. A. of Chicago, 84 to 29, in a track meet today. The Cadets were superior in the track events but the visitors excelled in the field events, largely through the performances of Anderson, who led in scoring with first places in the javelin, high jump and broad jump.

Notre Dame Golf Team Beats Michigan State, 17-1

Notre Dame, Ind., May 6.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's golf team continued its victory march today when it defeated Michigan State, 17 to 1. Johnny Banks of La Grange, Ill., western junior champion, turned in the best card of the day, a 74. Scores:

Banks [N. D.] defeated Mitchell [M. S.], 3 to 0.
Montedonico [N. D.] defeated Mueller [M. S.], 2½ to ½.
Best ball—Notre Dame, 3; Michigan State, 0.
Fehlig [N. D.] defeated Turill [M. S.], 2½ to ½.
Cold [N. D.] defeated Herrick [M. S.], 3 to 0.
Best ball—Notre Dame, 3; Michigan State, 0.

SOGGY GROUNDS KEEP SOX IDLE; PLAY TWO TODAY

Gaston and Gregory to Oppose Boston.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mud and treacherous turf, a hangover from the downpour of the day before, put another kink in the scheduled activities between the Sox of red and white at Comiskey park yesterday. The infield was fair enough, having been protected, but the outfield was such a soggy mass that President Lou Comiskey decided against risking the limbs of his valuable chattels, not to mention those enrolled under the Boston banner.

Given the right kind of weather, the Friday postponement will be worked off in the form of a double header starting at 1:30 this afternoon. That will be the first time the Red Sox have done any work since Wednesday and the second time the Chicago brand of hose has made a formal appearance since last Monday.

Fonseca Must Stay Out.

The cast in which Manager Lew Fonseca's right foot was encased since he tore some ankle tendons April 21 was removed yesterday and the developments were not at all satisfactory to the boss. He is anxious to restore himself to first base duty but there is a possibility that he will have to wait a spell.

He had hopes of playing in about four days after the breaking of the mold but when he attempted to walk yesterday he found it couldn't be done. The foot swelled as soon as the cast was taken away and there was a recurrence of the pain he suffered when the injury occurred.

Now the manager is afraid that he will have to confine himself to the bench until about June 1. This will not be known definitely until after a couple more days. Meanwhile, he will be hoping that some fancy hitting is produced by Red Kress, who is acting temporarily as the first baseman.

It's Still Milt Gaston.

Fonseca has been waiting since Friday to pitch Milt Gaston against his former mates, so the big boy will be one of the starters today. Paul Gregory will function in the other half. This will leave Ted Lyons for the Yanks, who roll in tomorrow with all their big shots. The Yanks will make four local appearances, weather permitting, and when they move out the almost as tough Senators will call for three battles. Thus the Sox face a fairly strenuous week, and if they handle these two teams successfully they will have to be regarded as something better than fifth place finishers.

Michigan Nine Hands Chicago 12 to 2 Defeat

Michigan's baseball team handed the University of Chicago its fourth straight Big Ten defeat yesterday at Greenwood field, 12 to 2. Wistert, Wolverine pitcher, held the Maroons to five hits, struck out 12 and hit a triple, a double and two singles in five times at bat.

A six run outbreak in the eighth inning clinched the game for Michigan. Manuel singled, Wistert tripled to center, Artz doubled, Waterbor was safe on a fielder's choice, Braendle scratched safely, Petoskey was safe on Decker's error and Diffley tripled.

SEMI-PROS OPEN PLAY TODAY; CUT TICKET PRICES

Madison Plays 2 Games at Mills Stadium.

Baseball fans who attend the opening games of the Wisconsin-Illinois league in the Chicago semi-pro parks today will discover a marked reduction in admission prices from what they paid in other years.

At the last meeting of the league the members agreed that it was time to cut the prices of tickets. No uniform price was adopted, but the general reduction ranges from 20 to 35 per cent. At the same time, the teams have been strengthened by the addition of many former players in organized baseball who are out of jobs this year.

Madison Plays Mills.

At Mills stadium the Mills team will put on a double header against the strong Blues from Madison, Wis. In the second game Lefty Sullivan of the Mills will oppose Gob Buckeye, one time Cleveland southpaw, who has signed with Madison.

Big Jim Vaughn of Cubs fame is all set to pitch the opening game for the Logan Squares against the Spencer Coals, a strong traveling club which has come into the league.

The Duffy Florals are booked to meet the American Giants at Shewbridge field. One of the new Duffy players is John Conlon, former outfielder with the Newark and Montreal clubs of the International league.

Two Games at Aurora.

Douglas McWeeny, who has taken over the Aurora club, will stage a double header at Fans park, Aurora, against the Colored All Stars.

The Chicago Firemen, who also have added new talent, will travel out to Chicago Heights to play the team that last year won the Midwest league championship. The schedule:

Spencer Coals vs. Logan Squares at Logan Square park.
American Giants vs. Duffy Florals, Shewbridge field.
Colored All Stars vs. Aurora at Aurora [2].
Chicago Firemen vs. Chicago Heights at Chicago Heights.

OWNER CONGRATULATES JOCKEY AFTER VICTORIOUS RIDE IN DERBY. Col. E. R. Bradley, who collected $48,925, and Jockey Don Meade, to whom he gave $5,000 present for bringing home Broker's Tip in stretch duel with Head Play. It was Bradley's fourth Derby victory. Last year Burgoo King carried his colors home in front.

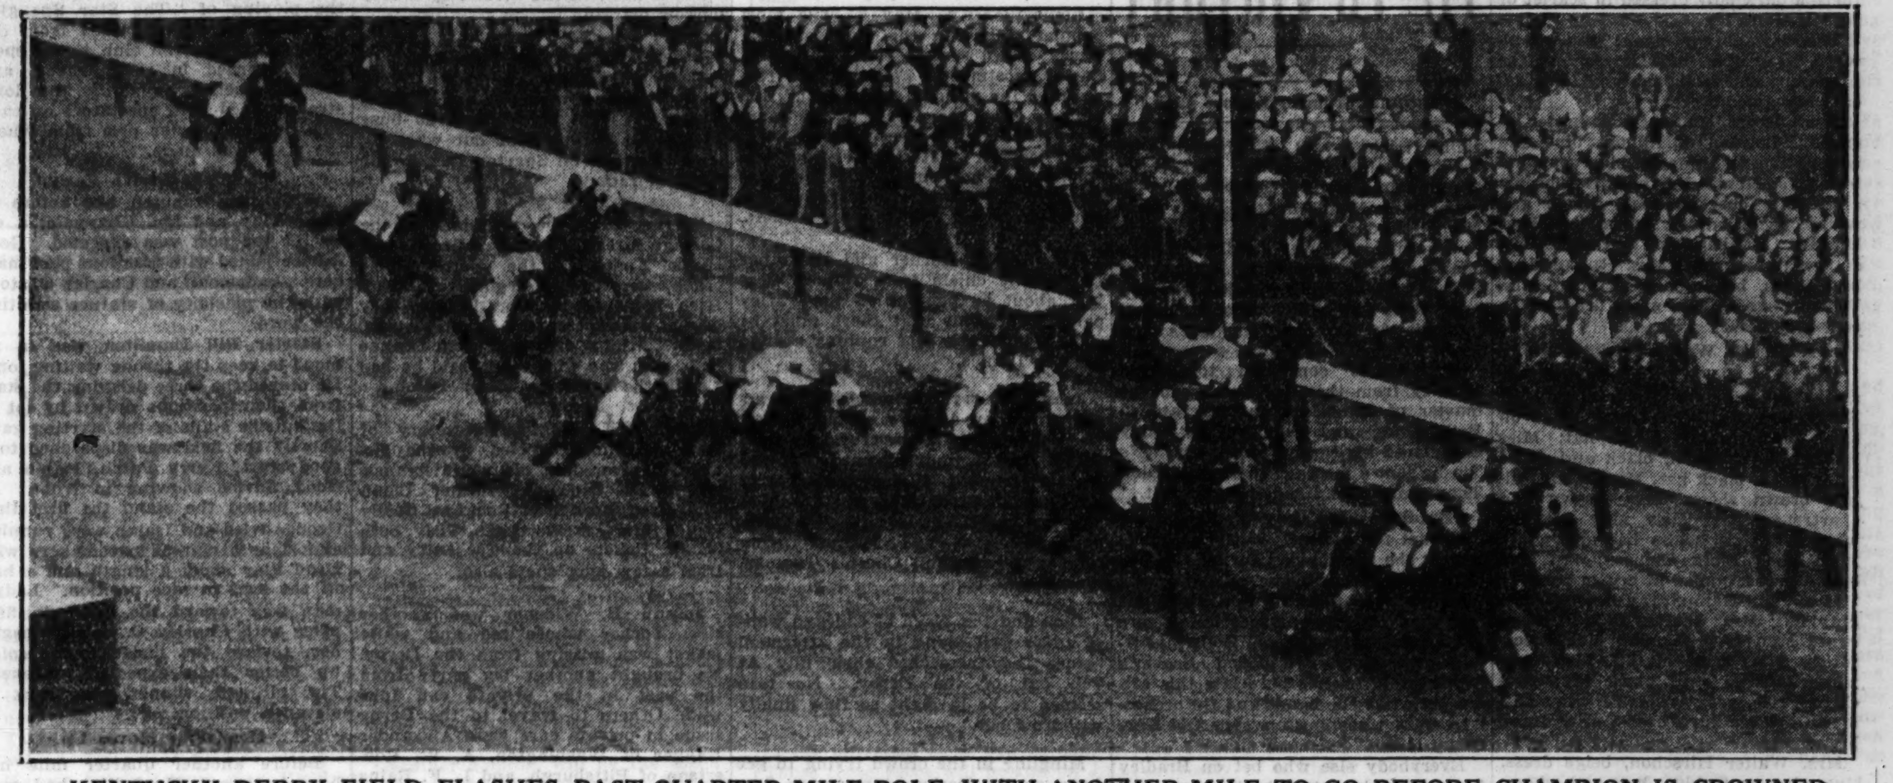
"THEY'RE OFF!" THE CRY GOES UP FROM 40,000 THROATS AS STARTER SENDS AWAY FIELD IN 59TH RUNNING OF THE DERBY. Most of the fans in the big gathering were pulling for Ladysman and Pomponius, the W. R. Coe entry, to win, although Kentucky turfmen had been touting Head Play and Broker's Tip for the last week after sensational workouts. Ladysman, the winter book favorite, raced on the outside most of the way and finished fourth, with his stablemate fifth. Had Ladysman won he would have paid only $4.86 in the mutuels. Broker's Tip is second from left.



KENTUCKY DERBY FIELD FLASHES PAST QUARTER MILE POLE, WITH ANOTHER MILE TO GO BEFORE CHAMPION IS CROWNED. Early speed sometimes wins Derbies, but not yesterday. Good Advice and Isaiah are battling for the lead here, with Head Play running in third place and Broker's Tip, the eventual winner, far back. Good Advice later was pulled up and Isaiah finished last. Head Play, however, took the lead at the half way mark and held it until Broker's Tip challenged him in the stretch. Broker's Tip got the decision by a nose. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

EVEN YOUNGSTERS HAVE THE DERBY FEVER. A couple of Louisville boy devotees of the turf sport climb up on fence so they can see all there is to see in the stretch battle between Broker's Tip and Head Play. Derby Day is a bigger holiday than Fourth of July in Kentucky city.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON ATTENDS. Widow of world war President among prominent turfgoers glimpsed in the box seats at Churchill Downs on Derby day. The race attracted notables from all parts of the country. Chicago, New York, and Washington were heavily represented.

JOIN IN TRYING TO PICK WINNER. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Widener were among notables who attended Derby. Mr. Widener is president of the Belmont and Hialeah Park tracks. He also races a stable of his own but had no entry in yesterday's big event.

CROWD GETS PRACTICE FOR DERBY BY CHEERING HORSES IN THIRD RACE AT CHURCHILL DOWNS YESTERDAY AFTERNOON. Here are the fans jammed on the rail in front of the grandstand as the thoroughbreds in the third race near the finish line. The race, for maiden 2 year olds, was won by Angon Bridge. Holders of $2 straight tickets collected $11.12. Col. Matt Winn, president of the American Turf association, which controls Churchill Downs, announced the attendance at 40,000. The mutuel handle was considerably less than last year.

Churchill Downs Bright with Newest Fashions.

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—[Special.]—Fashions may change, but women don't—at least not when it comes to getting all dressed up for the Kentucky Derby. A new ensemble is almost as important as a "sure fire Derby winner" to the feminine portion of any Derby crowd and the dazzling costumes worn at the 59th Derby this afternoon made the clubhouse lawns and boxes at Churchill Downs as vivid and pictorial as the track itself.

This year the ladies ignored flowery chiffons and fluffy frocks and wore softly tailored suits and dresses with innumerable versions of Maria Guy's famous "Congo" hat perched pertly on their pert heads.

Defy Prospect of Rain.

Many of them disregarded the always ominous prospect of Derby rainfall and appeared in all white, while others combined white with blue or brown. Navy blue and blacks, however, are the predominant colors, often combined with poppy red or Lanvin green. String color, beige, and white were the fashion runner-ups, with here and there a dark lady dressed in scarlet or soft yellow.

The Chicago contingent was, as always, very chic, indeed. Among the numerous and fashionably attired Chicagoans noted were: riding tricks by B. S. Michell, who trained Reigh Count for that colt's triumph in the 1928 Derby.

JOCKEY'S SKILL PILOTS BROKER'S TIP TO VICTORY

Later on Meade drifted away from Michell and around from one stable to another and was finally given a chance to ride for Owner Bradley in Maryland last fall. Bradley was impressed by the skill he displayed and immediately purchased the lad's contract.

Meade has continued to please Bradley from that day and when the master of Idle Hour farm scratched Boilermaker and Fingal early today and placed his Derby faith in Broker's Tip he sent a message to Trainer Dick Thompson to let Meade ride his colt.

Bradley Wins Only Small Bet.

Except for a small wager which he won at the track today Owner Bradley profits on the outcome of the Derby were confined to the purse which his colt won. Bradley made some wagers in the future books on Boilermaker, but completely overlooked Broker's Tip, he told friends here late this afternoon while the bands and the orchestras were whooping up "My Old Kentucky Home."

Everybody else who bet on Bradley horse with the future bookmakers also took Boilermaker as their choice. Except for place and show bets—and they were not numerous — on Head Play and a scattered few show bets on Charley O. the bookmakers didn't pay out a penny.

With most of the play centered on Ladysman, Pomponius, Kerry Patch, and several other horses such as Red Whisk, Silent Shot, and Sarada, which did not even reach the post, the race turned out to be the greatest golden harvest the makers of the winter books have enjoyed in many years.

West Rules Supreme.

As a result of the Bradley triumph and a complete sweep of the Derby by western color bearers, the plungers from the east retreated in much disorder and with every little money in their pockets tonight. It was one of the few times in the last 20 years that the west had so completely overwhelmed their ancient rivals from the east.

"I didn't think much of our chances when we were about half way out," Jockey Meade told reporters before he went back to Idle Hour farm tonight for a week-end celebration.

"I was about to give up in despair when all of a sudden Broker's Tip began running like a wild horse. Three sixteenths of a mile from home I knew we had the race won, but the finish was a little closer and a little rougher than I wanted it to be."

BISHOP TAKES SINGLES LEAD IN STATE MEET

Jack Bishop went into first place in both the singles and the all-events of the Illinois state bowling tournament at Bensinger's Randolph alleys yesterday.

Bishop rolled 239, 284, and 266 to take the singles leadership with 739, which gave him 2,007 for his nine tournament games. In the five man event he rolled 588 and in the doubles, 680.

James Farley Is Magnet for Job Hunters at Derby

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 6.—The most popular fellow in the big Kentucky Derby crowd seemed to be James A. Farley, postmaster general, who represented the national "new deal." Job hunters from every part of the country flocked to the Derby scene when they learned that Mr. Farley was among those present. Mr. Farley was assigned the honor of presenting the Derby trophy to the winning owners.

Gov. Henry Horner and the other Democratic chiefs from Illinois were just about as popular as the Farley party. It seems that there must be some Democratic jobs running around loose in Illinois.

John F. Curry, Tammany leader, accompanied by a score of his braves, was conspicuous in the crowd, as were Joe E. Brown, movie comedian; Will Rogers; Lamont Hughes, president of the Carnegie Steel company; Frank A. Merrick, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and John Charles Thomas, the operatic star.

Dick and Pat Nash of Chicago waited until well along in the afternoon before they scratched their filly At Top out of the Derby. No rain seemed to be in sight so they finally withdrew her.

Mingling in the crowd trying to get down on the Derby winner were Senator Harry Lloyd Byrd of Virginia; Forbes Morgan, New York, secretary of the Democratic finance committee; Frank Walker, Montana, treasurer of the Democratic national committee; Bernard Baruch and Robert Gore of New York, the latter the governor elect of Porto Rico, and Stillman Evans, the assistant postmaster general.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was among the early arrivals. She was the guest of Mrs. C. Wallace wife of the former ambassador to France. Arriving on the same train was Harry Woodring, assistant secretary of war.

E. Phocion Howard, publisher of the New York Press, was voted the best groomed man in the Derby crowd. He won from Charles W. Bidwill of Chicago. Mr. Howard's pink flannel trousers got him the verdict by a very narrow margin.

When Riley Wilson of West Virginia arrived wearing a brown Derby many persons mistook him for Al Smith. It kept Mr. Wilson so busy explaining he got shut out when he tried to wager on Spartan Lad to win the first race.

Patrick H. Joyce, president of the Chicago Great Western railroad, and Hunk Anderson, the Notre Dame coach, were around trying to find an Irish horse to bet on. Finally they bought a ticket on the Bradley entry. John Enright of the Union League club, who was with them, said he had "sunk the ship" on Kerry Patch.

Edward J. Hughes, secretary of state of Illinois, fooled by the elements, shivered in his white flannels and straw hat until former Lieut. Gov. Fred Sterling of Rockford finally loaned him an overcoat. They both bought tickets on the Coe entry and tried a few long shots also.

Joseph E. Widener was another New Yorker whose red and white jacket was missing from the Derby. He brought another big party from the east in the private car Idlewild. Others to travel to the Derby scene in private cars were Alexander Hanger of Washington, A. W. Robertson of Pittsburgh, and L. F. Rains of Pittsburgh.

It was the first Derby in many years in which a Whitney color bearer did not go to the post. Yet, despite the lack of a starter, C. V. Whitney and a party came down from New York in the private car Wanderer and Mrs. Payne Whitney brought another party in her private car.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Montefiore Stein, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Byfield, and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Stern were together.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Craddock and daughter of Chicago motored over from French Lick and occupied clubhouse box seats.

Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander were among the Lake Forest contingent.

40,000 WATCH BROKER'S TIP WIN KENTUCKY DERBY

Noses Out Head Play for Bradley's 4th Victory.

chances after an impressive workout Tuesday with weight up. Besides there was the old axiom "Bradley wins Derbies."

Broker's Tip is a sturdy rather than handsome brown colt of that shade which appears black. He is a son of Black Toney which also was the sire of Black Gold, 1924 Derby winner.

Weather Conditions Favorable.

Favorable weather conditions prevailed by the time of the big race although the day had dawned cloudy after a night of intermittent showers. A cool wind, which helped dry a dull track in the first race to a good racing course by Derby time, softened too as the sun peeped forth from time to time. So as the 13 colts paraded to the post, their number, reduced from the overnight 22 by numerous withdrawals, the scene was set for a Derby to be truly run except so far as mishaps in the race itself might affect the result.

After the assemblage had risen for the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner" the field paraded from the paddock, before the club house spectators, turned in their tracks, and wended their way down the long stretch, lined with spectators on each side, to the quarter pole from where the start was made.

Spectators Arrive Early.

With such reputed bad actors as Head Play and Mr. Khayyam, a delay at the post was expected. Good Advice joined with fractious post manners. Ladysman and Charley O. stood with the placidity of statues awaiting the word.

Starter Bill Hamilton was in no mood to keep the throng waiting long. He moved the three delaying the start from their positions drawn by lot to the outside stalls of the starting gate. Shortly the field was dispatched to a good start, Kerry Patch, Isaiah and Good Advice showing in front. As they passed the stand the first time Good Advice and Isaiah were running almost as a pair as pacemakers with Head Play about a length and a half off the lead in nice position. Ladysman was toward the finish in fifth place with Charley O., a slow beginner, toward the inside but keeping up better than expected. Broker's Tip, ultimate winner, was back in eleventh position.

Head Play Moves Up.

Before another quarter mile had been traversed, Head Play had gone to the leaders, apparently able to take command whenever his rider wished. Good Advice was still second with Isaiah third. Ladysman and Charley O. were sixth and seventh, but there had been a general closing up of the bunch. Broker's Tip had moved to ninth position.

As the run down the back stretch neared the pole denoting that six furlongs of the journey had been completed, nearly all riders hooked up their mounts for a favorable position rounding the last two turns.

They were so close together it appeared that there might be bumping, but nothing serious occurred.

Then, as they swung around the far turn, Head Play shot into the lead. Charley O, with a nice burst of speed, went to second position and hopes of his backers ran high, for he is a strong stretch runner. Kerry Patch, one of the first flight, was third, but only a head in front of Broker's Tip, whose rider had chosen the rail and the shortest route. Ladysman was fifth, still a possible winner if he had the speed and the form which made him so great as a 2 year old.

Charley O. Closes In.

As Head Play led the pack around the home turn Charley O. closed on the leader and appeared to be the winner, but soon hung a bit and his chances were over so far as victory was concerned. Head Play backers let loose their cries as victory seemed assured. But there was something coming along the inside that was not through yet. Because of a similarity of colors, many mistook it for Ladysman and shouted, "Here comes the favorite."

Instead it was Broker's Tip, which now seemed the only menace to Head Play unless some phenomenal rush by a belated straggler occurred. Even that was not taken seriously at the time. Head Play was known as a strong finisher while Broker's Tip was a maiden. A sixteenth of a mile from home, however, the same menace prevailed and it was now a real menace.

From that point to the finish Jockey Mead and Jockey Fisher respectively rode for all they knew with hands and feet, both applying the lash at frequent intervals to spur their mounts in a final desperate effort. The result was the nose finish earlier described.

Spectators were at Churchill Downs as early as 8 o'clock this morning. They were those to whom the day is a big picnic; they also wished to obtain the few points of vantage not reserved for those who pay the higher scale of admission prices, which ranges from $8.80 to $15.50 for reserved seats. General admission to the grandstand section is $3.30 and to the clubhouse section $8.80.

Gov. Horner Attends.

Those with box seat reservations either in grandstand or club house were more leisurely, assured of their places to sit.

Among those of the box holders who came early were hosts or guests at breakfast parties held in the club dining room, which was entirely reserved for the occasion with an overflow on the veranda. Derby breakfast is not the ordinary conception of breakfast. It consists of southern fried chicken with all the hot bread accompaniments and other trimmings which the public mind associates with dinner.

Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, with his secretary, Arthur O'Brien, was in a distinguished group, piloted by Gov. Ruby Laffoon of Kentucky. Just a few of the others were Gov. McNutt of Indiana, Gov. Parkes of Missouri, and James Roosevelt, son of the President. After exchanging greetings with Col. M. J. Winn, presiding genius of Churchill Downs, they went to their respective boxes and held equine rather than political sessions for the remainder of the afternoon.

In the Wake of the News

DERBY WINNERS.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 6.—"Do good horses always win the Kentucky Derby?" That is a query frequently propounded by those who take more interest in the colorful holiday than in its history. Naturally a categorical affirmative must be amended by the statement that there have been Derby winners which never amounted to much thereafter, either in winning races or for breeding purposes.

In recent years, especially since Col. Matt Winn started on his avowed purpose of making it one of the greatest, if not the greatest, 3 year old stake in America, few "bad" horses have flashed first past the wire in this early season 1¼ mile test. Sometimes good horses have been beaten in the Derby, either because not ready or because of track conditions, and later reversed the verdict against the winner, but on the whole winners have given good accounts of themselves thereafter.

In the late '90s and early years of this century the Kentucky Derby was decidedly secondary to the American Derby at old Washington Park. Since 1920, when the value of the stake went over $25,000 for the first time, class of the winners has averaged notably high.

Going back into earlier history we find such notable names in the bracket list as Hindoo, Spokane, Ben Brush, Plaudit, Old Rosebud, Regret, Omar Khayyam, and Exterminator.

Remembering that the value of the Kentucky Derby has ranged from $30,375 in 1920 to a high of $55,375 in 1928, and has not been below $50,000 since 1921 except in 1931 [when it was $48,725], let's see what have been the total money earnings of Derby winners since the time of Paul Jones in 1920:

Colt.	Sire.	Derby.	Earned.
Gallant Fox	Sir Galahad III	1930	$328,165
Zev	The Finn	1923	313,639
Twenty Grand	St. Germans	1931	260,840
Reigh Count	Sunreigh	1928	178,170
Morvich	Runnymede	1922	172,909
Clyde Van Dusen	Man o' War	1929	122,112
Black Gold	Black Toney	1924	110,825
Burgoo King	Bubbling Over	1932	108,825
Whiskery	Whisk Broom II.	1927	108,565
Bubbling Over	North Star III	1926	78,552
Flying Ebony	The Finn	1925	62,420
Behave Yourself	Marathon	1921	58,775
Paul Jones	Sea King	1920	†

†Less than $50,000.

Horsemen probably would tell you that Paul Jones, Behave Yourself, Morvich, the popular Black Gold, and Flying Ebony were least meritorious of this bunch, and that Zev, Gallant Fox, Twenty Grand, and Reigh Count were the greatest.

Morvich, sensational as a 2 year old, was a flop after towroping his Derby field and only fairly successful in the stud. Flying Ebony, a cripple skillfully prepped for the Derby and practically useless thereafter, has sired winners of $91,290 in stakes. Bubbling Over, which promised greatness, developed lameness, yet already his progeny has won $143,020 in stakes and purses, largely due to Burgoo King's double victory in the Derby and Preakness last year. Then Burgoo King went amiss.

Zev's victory was unusual. Great as a 2 year old and winter book favorite as low as 4 to 1, he performed so poorly in the Preakness that he was practically out of the Derby. Then he ran a good race at a shorter distance and was shipped to Churchill Downs at the last minute. His chances were so lightly regarded that Owner Harry Sinclair and Head Trainer Sam Hildreth did not even appear at Louisville to see the brown colt, which had been tabbed as a sprinter, lead from start to finish. Zev rewarded his backers with $40 for $2.

Zev later met and conquered Papyrus, English Derby winner of that year, in a special international race at 1½ miles at Belmont Park with a purse of $80,600 to the winner. He had previously won the Withers Mile and Belmont stakes.

Feats of Reigh Count, Gallant Fox, and Twenty Grand are too recent to require repeating. Reigh Count's sons and daughters will be coming to the races this season, to be followed, one may assume, by those of Gallant Fox and Twenty Grand.

This recapitulation establishes the answer that good horses usually win the Kentucky Derby.

Went to post at 2:50. At post 3 minutes. Start good for all but Dick Bennett. Won driving; second and third same.

SILVER WAVE cut over sharply going to first turn, causing a bad jam and saving ground on the first turn, took the lead on back stretch, but barely lasted to withstand YOUNG BILL. HIPPIAS closed with a rush and was fastest of all at finish.

HOWTIZ, away forwardly, forced early pace and, taking lead on back stretch, was never headed. CHIEF'S CAMILLE, well up from the start, labored in the going, and although hard ridden could not menace the leader. NOSEGAY, saved when taken back shortly after the start, closed strong.

SYM JACK, away forwardly, raced POLYFON into defeat, took a short lead in the stretch after being headed, and barely failed to last. MAROBOU, away with early leaders, restrained off the pace and closed well.

ESPINACA, well ridden and saved off the pace to the back stretch, responded gamely when put to punishment and, going around the field on the second turn, got up in last few strides. MARTIE FLYNN broke slowly, saved ground on the turns, took a short lead, but could not withstand the winner. BARASHKOVA, away fast, assumed a short lead but tired in the drive.

ESPINACA WHIPS MARTY FLYNN IN CICERO FEATURE

10,000 See Son of Epinard in Driving Finish.

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Espinaca, a son of Epinard, had too much speed for the best horses competing at Sportman's Park and won the Windy City handicap yesterday. Rated off the pace by Jockey F. Watrous, Espinaca unloosed a burst of speed in the stretch and beat consistent Old Martie Flynn by a length and a half with Barakashkova third.

Ten thousand, the largest crowd of the meeting, could not agree on a pronounced favorite in the feature race with the result that the shortest priced horse was 3 to 1 on the big board in the infield.

Once Espinaca had started his move in the stretch most of the betters agreed that they had erred in their judgment. They were convinced that the 4 year old son of Epinard should have been even money instead of rewarding his backers with $9.90 for a $2 ticket.

The race at 6½ furlongs started with Eisenberg splashing around the first lap of the track with so much speed that he appeared a certain winner. He plowed along, his long legs kicking mud over the seven other horses, until the field straightened out for the run to the judges stand.

Martie Flynn's Bid Fails.

Then came Martie Flynn. He was in front for only a second, however, for Jockey Taylor roused Espinaca and once the offspring of the famous Epinard had decided to run the race was as good as over.

Howtiz, making his first start since October, again proved that he likes half mile tracks. He demonstrated that in the third race by winning by five lengths.

Those who coupled Howtiz and Silver Wave in the daily double received $180.96 for each two dollars invested.

E. Arcaro, riding his first race since he was injured in a spill Thursday, gave W. Boganowski a lesson in the fourth race. That's why Pent House scored a nose victory over Sym Jack in a 6½ furlong sprint which was a thrilling duel from start to finish.

Arcaro Shows Skill.

Boganowski, astride Sym Jack, was setting the pace with Pent House close behind. As the horses dashed down the back stretch, the alert Arcaro slipped in on the rail with Pent House. Then the race really began.

Both Jockeys applied the whip and the horses raced as a team around the turn into the stretch. Neither weakened and a dead heat appeared imminent until Arcaro seemed to lift his mount forward at the finish line.

That little nudge settled the issue, for Pent House's nose was in front at the pay off station. Pent House's mutuel quotations were $11.34, $4.50, and $4.08.

Two jockeys were suspended for the remainder of the meeting. R. Clemons was penalized because he crossed the field with Silver Wave, the winner of the second race. J. Bardales started a fight in the jockeys' quarters after riding in the third race and also was set down for conduct unbecoming a jockey.

The quinella in the eighth race at Sportsman's paid $308.68. Radio Service was first and Sad Knight second. Both were outsiders in the betting.

STAR PLAY WINS AT AURORA

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Star Play galloped to an easy victory in yesterday's feature race at Aurora. Taking the lead on the clubhouse turn, he increased his advantage steadily and drew away in the stretch to win at a canter, eight lengths ahead of Crowned Head. Princess Zelda was third.

Star Play, loyally backed by the crowd of 7,500, was the favorite at even money, due largely to his impressive race of Thursday, when he ran a close second to that highly regarded mudder, Seth's Ballot.

Ruckus Maintains Reputation.

As the field of seven horses lined up at the barrier there were many anxious eyes cast at Ruckus, a notorious bad actor, which was the fans' second choice at 2½ to 1. On Thursday he had burned up his energy by running away before the start of the race in which he was entered, and yesterday his backers feared he would do the same. Sure enough, he did.

After wrestling with an assistant starter for several minutes he broke away and galloped around the clubhouse turn into the backstretch. There he was brought under control and guided back to the barrier. Breaking from the outside, he rushed into a contending position on the clubhouse turn, tired as the field reached the end of the backstretch, and eventually dropped far back.

Crowned Head and Princess Zelda raced side by side all the way and were only a nose apart a sixteenth from home. Then Crowned Head drew away to take second place by a length.

Star Play Returns $4.02.

The winner's time for the mile and seventy yards was 1:58. In the mutuels he paid $4.02 to win, $3.40 to place, and $2.90 to show.

In the second race a sprint of five and one-half furlongs, Step Pretty graduated from the maiden class by overtaking Parade Step 50 yards from the finish and going on to win by a length. Step Pretty paid $9.04 to win.

The two shortest priced horses in the race finished first and second in the third event of the day, Shady Girl scoring by a margin of four lengths over Madge D. Jockey Ketry hustled Shady Girl into a long lead approaching the stretch and Madge D. was unable to overtake her. The winner paid $4.32 to win.

Daily double tickets on Shady Girl and Step Pretty were worth $21.56.

Quinella tickets on Inferno Lad and Spanflow paid $17.64.

33 YEAR GROWTH OF NORTH SHORE GOLF CLUB TOLD

Site of National Open Was Once a 5 Hole Course.

(This is the first of a series of historical sketches on the golf clubs of the Chicago district which will be the scene of important championships during the 1933 season.)

HARRY H. WOLF.

From a five hole course to the site of the world's greatest golf tournament—that's the story of the North Shore Golf club, where on June 8, 9, and 10 the best professionals and amateurs of the game will attempt to take away from Gene Sarazen his United States open championship.

North Shore as an organization is one of the oldest golf clubs in the Chicago district, having been founded in 1900. It is now rated as one of the class A courses of the district, and should prove a real test to the national open field next month. Many of them will remember it from the only other instance wherein North Shore was the scene of a big tournament—the western open of 1928—while others will be seeing it for the first time. Those who competed in the western five years ago, however, will have little advantage over the newcomers, for it has undergone numerous changes since then, alterations which have served to make it longer and more difficult.

Course in Excellent Shape.

Ralph C. Boozer is president of the club and Harry H. Wolf and Paul Soule co-chairmen of the tournament committee which will have the job of handling arrangements for the national open. They will have able support in John L. Schweitzer, manager of the club, and Alec Cunningham, professional and supervising greenkeeper. Credit for the present condition of the course, acclaimed as excellent as it has ever been in at this time of year, is due largely to Cunningham.

North Shore came to be in 1900, when several members of the Quilmette Country club took over a plot of land along the lake shore in Wilmette and carved themselves out a five hole course, which was later enlarged to seven holes. Sheridan road wandered through the course at the time, but the traffic thereon was insufficient to interfere with a round of golf. As Wilmette grew up, however, other streets penetrated the course, and it became dubious whether a good drive would land on the fairway or some traveler's head. The clubhouse at this time was at the present intersection of 9th and Ashland, but it was wiped out by fire.

Sell Course in 1923.

It became necessary to abandon this site in 1908, and a 40 acre tract west of the Kenilworth depot was obtained. Tom Bendelow designed a nine hole course there, and the club was incorporated under its present name. The course was developed and a new clubhouse opened in 1917. By 1923 realty values had risen to such a point and so many offers were made for the property that members of the club, realizing that the land value had become so great that its further use for golf was unwarranted, finally sold the property.

Meanwhile, they had been seeking a new site for a club and found it in 170 acres of land near Glen View, Ill. Options to purchase this were held by the Edgewater Golf club, which had contemplated moving from its own site, but decided to release the options and in this manner the present location of the North Shore Golf club was obtained.

Put in Watering System.

Three years ago the club realized one of its dreams—one of the best watering systems in the country, one which runs entirely underground. Main water lines run from the reservoir tank under the rough parallel to the fairways, and water is carried from these feeder lines by pipes running under the fairways to 450 stationary sprinkler heads, each with a radius of 90 feet.

NAVY CONQUERS CORNELL CREW IN LAST MILE

Annapolis, Md., May 6.—(AP)—Navy's varsity crew came from behind to defeat Cornell's eight in their race over the choppy Severn river today.

After trailing by half a length for the first mile, the midshipmen challenged in the last half mile, came abreast with but a quarter of a mile left and pulled ahead to win by one-fourth of a length.

The Navy time was 7 minutes 38 seconds, which came within eight seconds of equaling the record set by Harvard's crew in 1917.

In a preliminary race, the Navy plebes lost to Cornell's freshmen by two lengths. The Cornell time was 7 minutes 56 seconds.

The varsity event was rowed between showers. The weather h threatened all day and a light drizzle set in during the freshman event.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

By Westbrook Pegler

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 6.—It is a pleasure to think that Max Baer of California may one day be the heavyweight champion of the world, for this is an office which has suffered from a lack of personal charm for several administrations and Mr. Baer combines just the right balance of intellect, social grace, geniality, and, let us say, dignity which the ideal champion is required to have.

MAX BAER.

Mr. Tunney had undeniable gifts of the mind, but he was stiff and, if I must say so in the interests of candor, a bit stuffy. Max Schmeling was a mechanic working at a trade and devoid of the personal attributes which ought to adorn the princely position which he endeavored to fill. And Jack Sharkey, revoking the early promise which earned him such entitlements as Gabby Jack, the Garrulous Gob, and the Loquacious Lithuanian, promptly upon his accession to the heavyweight championship retired to his tulips and petunias and became as reticent as he had been noisy when he was making his erratic way to the summit of his ambition.

Then, too, there has been among the customers a sense that Sharkey did not so much scale the heights as that the heights were lowered to him, for he took the championship by negative and actually fugitive tactics, and won less by his own works than by a miscarriage of justice.

Magazines, Cameramen Pass Up Champ.

So the heavyweight championship, the highest bauble in Fistiana's realm, as the fight managers' broadsides like to call it, has suffered a great lack since 1926. The prestige of the office has declined to such an alarming degree that nowadays the photographers beat no tracks to Sharkey's secluded door and the magazine editors do not commission middle name authors to call on him and come up with long word interpretations entitled "Jack Sharkey—the Fighter and the Man." This is an infallible tip-off.

Baer, on the other hand, seems to be a character to delight press and public, and my own appreciation of him revives as I recall his courting days a few years ago when the press agent detailed to his camp was sending out daily adversions to his fiancée as "a snooty and exclusive society divorcée and belle of the bon ton."

The author of these writings was James Jennings, a tactful journalist, at that time attached to the public relations department of Madison Square Garden. His delicate allusions to the dovelike flutterings within the mighty bosom of his principal and his graceful compliments to the bride-to-be were all intended to please Max Baer, and he tells me that they did.

"I am sure the public will like Baer as champion if he wins the title," Mr. Jennings told me recently. "He is very democratic and easily met, but he has high social ambitions. When I was writing all those lovely little compliments to the fine social quality of the lady who was to do him the honor of bearing his name he used to read them and tell me 'That's the stuff, Kid. You tell them. A real society divorcée.'

"He used to get on the long distance phone at night and fritter away his end of the gate receipts in advance of the fight in long calls to Reno. These conversations undoubtedly had an inspiring effect on him. They filled him with a wish to become socially and intellectually refined with the least possible delay in order that when their vows had made the two of them as one he might become a worthy consort of so fair a flower of the exclusive drawing room set and the haut monde.

"They were wed later on and I have been unhappy to see by the papers only recently that some difference has come between them. A matter of temperament, I suppose, although maybe she got tired of his singing and his pocket dictionary. Still, she shouldn't have, because she was the one who got him to go in for singing lessons and long words as part of the refining process.

It All Helps Max's Diaphragm.

"In those days, up at Gus Wilson's, he used to duck away every so often and report to some singing master in New York for yelling lessons, because his fiancée was telling him on the long distance phone from Reno that a man couldn't get by in exclusive society unless he had some polite attainments such as singing dago opera songs or talking big words about the international situation. Moreover, she told him, the singing lessons would develop his diaphragm, and when he said, 'You mean the belly, honey,' she told him, no, the diaphragm, and to look it up in his little dictionary.

"After that, he used to go around the place practicing singing. He would stand out in the road or in the yard at Gus Wilson's, take a deep breath, and all of a sudden let fly a terrific howl. He would yell 'Mi-mi-mi-mi-mi' or maybe 'O, spaghettio, sapolio, skraboochio,' or possibly just something simple like 'Sweet Adeline.' The dogs would howl and the cats would run under the barn. It was the loudest singing I ever heard in my life. Then he would explain to me that he was going to sing in exclusive society penthouses on Park avenue when he got married.

"He would put my hand on his chest and say, 'Feel here how it develops the diaphragm to sing. It develops the diaphragm so you can take a punch in the belly and not hardly feel it. Oh, spaghettio, sapolio, skraboochio.'

He Looks It Up in His Little Book.

"It was not easy to converse with him because it did not make any difference where you were, out walking, or playing cards, or whatever, he would start to say something and then say, 'Wait a minute—.' Then he would break out with his little dictionary and look up some big word like 'pragmatic' or 'authenticity,' and heave it in. He would say, 'Well, I am feeling very phlegmatic today, so I don't think I will do any road work, as it is bad for my authenticity.'

"And then, all that stuff about him knocking his head on the iron pipes to toughen it up so he wouldn't feel it when somebody punched him on the head—that was on the level, too. He is the most fascinating character I ever met in the goofy fight business and I am sure he would make an extremely popular heavyweight champion of the world. He would give the sport writers something to write about, and the whole world loves a lover, so I am sure the public would make a great nero of him. Especially, if he should get up in the ring just before a big fight and give his diaphragm a final workout with a few bars of 'O, spaghettio, sapolio, skraboochio.'"

Dartmouth Track Team Beats Columbia, Brown

Hanover, N. H., May 6.—(AP)—Dartmouth took nine first places, tied for another and buried the Columbia and Brown track teams under an avalanche of points today to take the third triangular track and field meet with 67½ points. Columbia scored 38 and Brown 29½. Dartmouth scored in every event except the 440, which Columbia swept, and the 880, broke two meet records and shared in the shattering of a third.

Baer Wants to Play Golf; Manager Says 'No'

Atlantic City, N. J., May 6.—[U. P.]—Trouble has broken out in Max Baer's training camp over his insistence that golf be a part of his daily training schedule. Baer is a rabid golf fan and shoots a creditable game. His manager, Ancil Hoffman, believes golf is good for golfers, but worthless as a boxing conditioner. Baer is training for his bout with Max Schmeling in New York next month.

Stagg Back on Midway to Finish Job

With a kind word for the California climate and a golden tan to bear it out, Coach A. A. Stagg returned to the Midway yesterday after a six weeks spring practice sojourn at his new post, the College of the Pacific. Three hours after he arrived he was out on Greenwood field to watch the Maroon baseball team play Michigan.

"There's lots of sunshine out on the coast," he chuckled. "The natives said it was unusually cool, but we had only one daytime rain while I was there. We didn't miss a day of practice, and I think we made good progress."

Sets Lecture Record.

The former University of Chicago coach set an all-time all-California record for public speaking by making forty-three speeches and four radio talks during his stay, an average of more than one speech a day. So great was the demand that he had to make four addresses in one day.

"My football material would hardly do for the Big Ten," he said. "I'd gladly trade it for Chicago's material. But it's good enough for the competition, I think. Several of last year's regulars were out for other spring sports. Our average turnout was about 25 men. We learned six basic plays, all of them new."

Enrollment Goes Up.

Reports from Stockton had indicated that Stagg's appointment was followed by an influx of applications for admission to the College of the Pacific. Commenting on this Stagg said: "I believe the college anticipates an increase in enrollment ranging between one hundred and three hundred, depending on the state of the depression. It's a small school—598 students now."

Soccer Elevens Clash in Double Headers Today

BY OFFSIDE.

Two double headers are the only games on this afternoon's soccer schedule. Proceeds of the games will be used to defray the expenses of officials of the United States Soccer association, who will convene in Chicago next month. All other games scheduled for today have been canceled by the Illinois State Soccer association.

Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, will be the scene of one of the double headers. The Maccabee All-Stars, holders of the Triner cup, emblematic of the city championship, will meet the Bricklayers at 1:30 o'clock. In the second contest Sparta, which went to the final round of the national challenge cup play, will play the Swedish-Americans, champions of the International league.

The Czecho league all-stars will face a team made up of Norwegian and Danish players, and an all-star German squad will play the Major league all-stars in the other double header at De Paul stadium, Sheffield and Webster avenues. The first game will start at 1:30 o'clock.

These games have been arranged by Peter J. Peel, Joseph Triner, and Robert Scott. An exhibition will be given by the Magyar Juniors between games at Sparta stadium.

PLAN PROGRAM OF YACHT RACES AT WORLD'S FAIR

First Event on Schedule Set for June 17.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The World's Fair structures will not be the only additions to Chicago's skyline during A Century of Progress exposition, if the plans of local yachtsmen reach port. Boats of every class—schooners, sloops, yawls, ketches, eagles, and stars—will ride the downtown horizon throughout the summer, according to the program recently outlined by the World's Fair yachting committee, of which Dr. Hollis E. Porter of the Chicago Yacht club is chairman.

The schedule of races to be run off the Century of Progress grounds, as arranged by the committee, follows:

July 1-2—Open Star class races.

July 4—Lake Michigan Yachting association regatta.

July 8—Start of the Jackson Park Yacht club's Saugatuck race.

Aug. 4-5-6—Great Lakes Star championship.

Aug. 10-11-12—Lipton and Nutting trophy races.

Sept. 3—Start of the Jackson Park Yacht club's Michigan City race.

Sept. 8-9-10—Lutz trophy race of the Jackson Park Yacht club.

The committee which undertook to lay out the above program is composed of leading members of the Lake Michigan Yachting association, interested both in sail and power yachting. It is planned to have five and ten mile courses, the feature of which will be that instead of having the start and finish at one of the corners of the triangle, the boats will go away from and come home to a point on the shore leg. This point will be a quarter of a mile from the shore of Northerly island, on a line with the east tower of the sky ride.

Transfer Club Events.

To complete the full season schedule, the officials of the Chicago, Columbia, and Jackson Park clubs have offered to transfer their regularly scheduled club events to those Saturdays and Sundays on which there will be no other important races on the Century of Progress course.

In addition to this, the three commodores of the Chicago Yacht club have offered a special trophy to be known as the Commodores' cup and awarded to the winner of three special Sunday races, for which all boats in the universal class will be eligible. These three races will be run on July 2, July 9, and Aug. 27.

The features of the schedule drawn up are the Great Lake star races, bringing together a type of boat which has been making rapid progress in Chicago waters recently, and the start of the Mackinac island race, the world's longest fresh water race, a start which is a picture in itself. The Illinois Naval militia, through Capt. Edward A. Evers, U. S. N. R., has consented to put the naval armory at the foot of Randolph street at the disposal of visiting yachtsmen.

First Held in 1893.

Another interesting angle of the schedule will be the start of the Columbia club's race to Michigan City, first held during 1893, the year of Chicago's last world's fair. In the Jackson Park Yacht club's race to Saugatuck, an innovation will be introduced in allowing the boats with engines to carry a certain amount of gas to be used at their discretion during the race.

WHERE'S WORST GOLF PLAYED? IN NATIONAL OPEN!—ARMOUR

BY TOMMY ARMOUR.

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on golf by Tommy Armour, who recently came to Chicago to become professional at the Medinah Country club. He has been ranked as one of the world's leading players for nearly a decade, having won every major title open to professionals, including the American, British, Canadian, western, and metropolitan championships, and the P. G. A. crown.)

It is strange, but a fact, that the golf played in the open championship is the worst of the entire year. The courses on which the opens are played are usually beautifully groomed with perfect greens. The weather is generally warm with very little wind, due to the season in which it is held. The contestants generally are in the best of physical condition, because they train conscientiously for the event.

OLIN DUTRA.

The reasons for the indifferent scoring are very simple. To begin with, it is the ultimate of the golfer's ambition to win the open. The prestige that attaches to being the champion is usually of long duration. The stamp of champion carries privileges and honors not given to the rank and file—at least it always did until Billy Burke was slighted this year by his own golf association when they denied him the right of representing his country in the forthcoming Ryder cup matches.

Championship Worth $20,000 to $50,000.

But with the possible exception of Burke, other champions have always enjoyed great honor and prestige. The monetary reward of being champion is also considerable, the amounts derived having varied from $20,000 to $50,000. All of these things in his mind add to the pressure and nervous tension of the player, especially when a golfer is trying to win his first open championship.

So when a player steps on the first tee, though more physically fit, he is not as well equipped mentally to do his best as in the average money tournament. The players themselves estimate that the winning score of the open would have a hard job finishing in the first ten, if it were just an ordinary $5,000 event.

There has been one exception to all this, and that was the last year's championship at Fresh Meadow, for the scoring and play there was undoubtedly of a higher standard than any ever played. The course was long, narrow, and very difficult, and yet many scoring records were broken, many players broke 70, and the winning score was the record low.

I was privileged the last day at Fresh Meadow to witness the best exhibition of golf play that I ever saw in the championship, and probably the best that any one ever saw. I was playing with the giant Californian, Olin Dutra, and his play throughout the entire day was as if he was simply giving a member a playing lesson. His driving was long and deadly accurate, and his iron play was truly magnificent.

Hole after hole Dutra pounded his second shots to 6 to 15 feet from the hole. Although he is recognized as one of the best putters in the golf game, his putts were just slipping by the sides of the hole time after time with heart breaking regularity. Still, even though he failed to hole one putt of over four feet, and three of less than that, he reached the fifteenth tee in the morning in the magnificent figures of four under fours.

Dutra had finished the first two rounds of the championship one stroke behind the leader, and at this point he was leading the entire parade. His golf was so flawless that to the spectators and myself he looked a certain winner. I have never seen more powerful and accurate play.

15th Hole Smashes Hopes of Title.

The fifteenth hole is a comparatively simple one of about 380 yards, with the only real danger an out of bounds to the left. Dutra, who had been playing with superb coolness and confidence, stood on the tee looking fame and glory in the face. Everything appeared beautiful to him, yet in five short minutes his vision of victory and affluence had crashed about his ears.

He hooked his drive out of bounds by at least fifty yards. His second effort landed a few inches from the out of bounds fence, and as there was a penalty for stroke and distance for out of bounds in the open, he was now playing his fourth shot. It landed about 40 yards from the green. His fifth brought him about ten feet from the hole, his sixth lay one foot away from the cup, the seventh one inch, and his total was a murderous, fatal eight.

Dutra laid down on the green and my heart bled for the poor fellow. Just a few minutes before he had the poise, coolness and determination of a champion, and now he lay there a nervous wreck. At that hole he learned a great but expensive lesson in golfing strategy. I upbraided him quite severely at the completion of the round, because he failed to avoid all possible chance of going out of bounds, and he asked me if I never made mistakes. I answered that I had never made one of that type, for there was no danger and no penalty and just a little rough to the right of the hole. There was, therefore, no possible excuse for a man in his position at that time, taking any chance of driving out of bounds.

Walter Hagen Agrees with Armour.

In the middle of our conversation, Walter Hagen passed up the aisle, and I addressed the following question to him:

"If you were leading in the championship, would you drive out of bounds at the 15th hole on this course?"

After a moment's reflection and consideration of the situation and the hole, he replied, "Never. I might have driven 100 yards to the right, but never out of bounds."

Having explained to you the strategy of the hole, I will tell you now how Dutra hooked the ball so badly. He neglected to pivot and he loosened his grip with his left hand at the top of his swing. Thus, he allowed the right hand to take control of the club and turn over at impact, which, combined with the lack of pivot, produced a big hook. Always grip firmly with your left hand at the top of the swing. Good golfers do it.

MICHIGAN BLUES WIN, 54-0, IN LAST FOOTBALL DRILL

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 6.—[Special.]—The Michigan Blues, a team of veterans, beat the Yellows, 54 to 0, today in the final game of spring football practice. Herman Everhardus, half back, led the attack. Among the freshmen the performances of Tony Dauksza of Grand Rapids, Tom Wilhelm, Toledo, and George Bolas, Chicago, all quarter backs, were outstanding.

Mike Malashevich, freshman end, playing with the Blues, intercepted a lateral pass and ran 70 yards for a touchdown. Three more touchdowns were made in the first quarter, one when Westover picked up a rolling punt and ran 75 yards behind good interference.

RECORD CHICAGO BOWLING SCORES ARE HIT BY A. B. C.

Official Charges Light Pins, Phony Alleys.

BY CHARLES NEVADA.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., May 6.—Author of a first class primer on bowling, one of the game's keenest students and among its most ardent boosters, Elmer H. Baumgarten, secretary of the American Bowling congress, went on record today as being opposed to inflated bowling scores, such as have been produced this season in the Chicago Classic league and Chicago Randolph league. Baumgarten's criticisms reveal abnormal conditions under which impressive team and individual totals were made in the leagues.

According to Baumgarten, the ten teams which make up the Chicago Classic league roster bowled their record-breaking totals on what he describes as "soft" alleys. Light pins, weighing not more than three pounds and four ounces each, were used and the alleys at the ends made "fast," he charged.

How Light Pins Work.

Baumgarten explained that the lighter the pins the less resistance the ball meets, making high scores more easily attainable. Heavier pins cause greater deflection of the ball and high scoring becomes difficult. He defined "fast" ends as a condition producing a tendency to cause the ball to move more easily into the pocket, as that space is called between the No. 1 and No. 3 pins.

Investigation disclosed that two Milwaukee major leagues, use pins weighing less than three pounds six ounces. For instance, the Stroh Die Casting company and the Plankinton Arcades each finished with a top average of 1,011 for the season in the Plankinton Arcade Home league. Verifine Ice Creams, one of the best known and most ballyhooed squads in the country, averaged 1,005 for the Commerce Major league.

Fail in A. B. C.

"Chicago Classic league teams," he continued, "failed miserably in the recent A. B. C. tournament at Columbus, O., because they had to contend with neutral or natural conditions after a season on 'soft' alleys. All kinds of excuses were made for their wretched showing, I learned.

"I even had one member of the league say to me that the Classic teams were stopped because they were compelled to shoot against pins heavier than regulation weight. Nothing could be more ridiculius. That fellow faces suspension from A. B. C. membership and from competition in future Chicago and Illinois sanctioned tournaments." Rule 41 of the by-laws would be invoked for this ouster proceeding.

How Scores Compare.

Baumgarten offered into evidence the following tabulation showing comparative A. B. C. tournament scores for the Classic and Randolph leagues, Chicago's two largest:

Urges Standard Surface.

"Those high scores not only militate against the Classic league bowlers when they confront natural conditions," Baumgarten explained, "but they discourage the rank and file in the sport, who after all, must be given as much, if not more consideration." Standardization of alley surfacing, starting next year, has been suggested as a protective measure. It has been pointed out it will mean equalization between bowlers on all certified alleys.

Baumgarten explains the defeats of Stewart Watson by Joe Miller of Buffalo and Bill Lenzen by Frank Wright in the same way.

"Watson, particularly," he said, "appeared lost when shooting against Miller on neutral alleys, under natural and normal conditions, as was the case in their recent series for the world match bowling championship," Watson is a member of the Wass Schroeder squad.

A SCARLET FLASH IN FOREST MEANS TANAGER'S HERE

Goldfinch Popular May Bird in Chicagoland.

BY BOB BECKER.

(Pictures in rotogravure section.)

Early in May the outdoor fans in Chicagoland may see a bird which is so brilliantly plumaged that it seems to illuminate the forest. This is the scarlet tanager, with its vivid scarlet and black plumage, which winters southward from Colombia to Peru, and spends its summers in the United States.

Goldfinch a Cheery Bandit.

The Louisiana tanager is a near relative of the scarlet tanager of the middle west. Today its more common name is western tanager, because it is primarily a species of the western United States.

Known to thousands of persons as the "wild canary," the little yellow and black goldfinch is one of the most popular bird residents of the north. He is always a welcome visitor to gardens, where he swoops down to the sunflowers or other plants which furnish a meal of seeds. The goldfinch is a happy-go-lucky raider of gardens, usually singing as he pilfers a meal.

The undulating flight and bright colors of this finch are so distinctive that most any one can identify him. This species nests around Chicagoland late in the summer, after most of our birds have reared their young. The nest is in trees or bushes and is made of grass and moss, lined with some soft material. The goldfinch is a busy seed eater. This feeding habit sometimes causes him to suffer a tragic death, because he will alight on plants producing burrs and get so entangled in them he cannot get free.

Redstart Hard to Follow.

Down in Cuba they call the redstart "candelita"—the little torch which brightens the dark shadowy depths of heavy tropical forests. When we see this handsome little wood warbler here in May he has all his bright "torch" plumage. He dances from branch to branch in search of insects, darting through the foliage so fast that we can hardly follow him with binoculars. This handsome member of the warbler family breeds throughout the greater part of temperate North America and winters in Venezuela, Colombia, and Central America.

The blue yellow backed warbler [Parula] which is another handsome member of the warbler parade each spring, might be called the moss bird. This migrant travels into the north to find a locality where Usnea moss is growing. There it builds its nest. Its relative in Florida also shows a marked preference for moss for nesting materials.

The gurgling notes of the blue yellow backed warbler, described as chip-er, chip-er, chip-er, chee-ee-ee, are quite distinctive to the bird fan who goes hunting warblers with his binoculars during the spring migration.

New Illinois Bill Aims at Speed Traps

BY HAL FOUST.

The operation of speed traps, the arrest of motorists for profit of police or magistrates, would become a criminal offense subject to penalties under a bill introduced in Springfield last week by Representative Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Mundelein].

"We cannot at any time afford to countenance corruption by police on our highways," said the legislator. "And this summer, with World's Fair visitors traveling our roads, it is particularly important that the motoring public be protected from these pirates who abuse their authority for personal revenue."

Braun Gives Figures.

Attorney Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club, presented figures showing that although Chicago has 76 per cent of the population of Cook county and 78 per cent of its automobiles, yet in one year there were 175,000 traffic arrests with $1,410,000 fines in the county outside of Chicago as compared with 140,000 traffic arrests with $910,000 fines in the city.

"The figures are almost self-explanatory," said Mr. Braun, who has been active in the prosecution of speed traps for more than a decade. "In the rural districts there was a monetary incentive for the police to make arrests and for the justice of the peace to impose fines."

The Lyons bill is aimed particularly at traffic police and magistrates cooperating in getting motorists' money through arrests for trivial or technical offenses, the imposition of fines with heavy court costs, and a division of the court costs between the arresting officer and the trial judge.

Bill Provides Punishment.

The bill provides that any policeman or magistrate found guilty of dividing court fees, regardless of whether the fees are lawfully collected, shall be subject to a $200 fine and removal from office. For acquisitive justices of the peace, there is a provision for a maximum penalty of a year in jail and $1,000 fine for failure to remit fines to the agencies designated by law. A fine of $500 and removal from office is provided for any justice of the peace or police magistrate who fails to keep complete records of his disposition of fines.

"The pernicious practice of justices of the peace charging maximum fees and splitting these with the arresting officers has led to many unjustifiable arrests of motorists," said Mr. Braun. "Despite the fact that the statute permits a fee as low as $2, in approximately 75 per cent of the traffic cases in Cook county, the defendants plead guilty and the magistrates assess a greater fee than $2 for the court costs.

Officers Get Bonus.

"However, the larger fees have not all found their way into the pockets of the justices. They have been split with the arresting officer as a bonus for bringing cases to the justice.

"It is bad enough to mulct motorists with unduly large fees, but the really serious consequences is that greater number of arrests have been made for the sole purpose of personal pecuniary profit to the conspiring officer and justice. The none too scrupulous officer is solicited by the money seeking justice to arrest in order that fees may be assessed and divided.

"It is not too much to say that such corrupt practice is violative of the very principles of democracy and breeds the greatest contempt for law enforcement officers and the judiciary."

U. S. C. VICTOR OVER STANFORD IN TRACK MEET

Los Angeles, Cal., May 6.—(AP)—One world's record was eclipsed and another tied as the University of Southern California track and field team gained revenge over Stanford today by defeating the Indians, 72 to 58, before 10,000 persons. Stanford had triumphed over the Trojans, 67 to 64, two weeks ago.

William Graber, Southern California pole vaulter, whose application is on file for a world's record of 14 feet 4⅜ inches, cleared 14 feet 2⅞ inches today, which is one inch higher than the present recognized mark of 14 feet 1⅞ inches, set by Bill Miller of Stanford last summer.

Norman Paul, who had been rated only second best in the 220 yard low hurdles before the contest, staged a beautiful race to defeat Otto Herbert of Stanford by two strides in 23 seconds. This tied the world record of nine years standing set by Charles Brookins of Iowa.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

OUT OF STATE LICENSES.

Chicago, April 28.—In THE TRIBUNE recently an article told of some one living in Chicago driving a car with a California license. Last summer I noticed so many cars on Chicago streets with California licenses that I often wondered if all these cars really were from that state, but when I heard that a license could be had there for only $3 I was quite certain that many Chicagoans got friends in California to buy them a license and thereby save approximately fifteen dollars. I had very often seen an old touring car always parked in Pensacola avenue, just a half block from North Robey street. I have seen that car driven around this neighborhood many times and it is still with its 1932 California license. It wouldn't be much trouble if policemen would watch for cars with that license and investigate, but I have been told it is a perfectly safe thing to do in Chicago, unless they should happen to have an accident.

CAR OWNER.

CONCRETE VS. ASPHALT.

Chicago, May 2.—The letter by C. P. McNeil of Whiting, Ind., in the "Voice of the Traffic" in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of April 30, commenting on Hal Foust's article "Resurfacing Ordered for Warren Boulevard," must have been inspired by the fear that Chicago may actually go "economic" in the matter of street paving.

If such a miracle were to happen, what a blessing it would be. Then perhaps we, in Chicago, might soon be enjoying physical comfort in our business and pleasure driving over Chicago streets.

Mr. McNeil's statement that "Chicago has built and is still making good asphalt pavement at prices much below the cost of concrete" is so obviously in error that it is laughable. For several years I have had access to facts and figures governing pavement costs of both street and rural highway in the midwest and in no case of comparable design have I found asphalt to be lower in cost than concrete; and these same facts and figures are available to any one who cares to make the investigation.

One glaring example of present prices may be found in the last state letting, it which the low bid for concrete on Foster avenue in Chicago from Central Park to Elston was $128,723.96. The low bid for asphalt was $213,248.82, both exclusive of cement.

In the case of the concrete type, the design called for a 10-10-8-10-10 cross section while the asphalt design called for 3 inches of asphalt on the concrete base 1 inch less in thickness than the concrete type. Incidentally, the asphalt design this year permits a concrete base ½ inch less in thickness than was allowed last year which is obviously "to the advantage of the asphalt pavement."

It is suggested that Mr. McNeil obtain the true facts concerning the subject before attempting to set the public right.

HUMILIATING TREATMENT.

Chicago, April 29.—If our police department had a little more respect for the average person instead of catering only to gangsters and racketeers the average citizen might have a little more regard for our police department.

I am a respected business man with a decent reputation. About six weeks ago I passed through a through street and was given a ticket by a policeman. Among more important matters the ticket slipped my mind for several days. When I went downtown to pay my $2 they would not accept it, saying that a warrant had been issued for me.

I went to my local police department and asked to be served with the warrant and have it over with. They would not do it.

Today a patrol wagon, I suppose especially made for criminals like me, stopped in front of my place of business. I could not convince a member of our "intelligent" police department to allow me to drive in my own car down to the station.

I was pushed through a crowd on the sidewalk into the patrol wagon, where I found myself in company of several evil looking people. I was taken to the station, where I put up a $5 bond.

Today I feel ashamed of myself. I am a criminal, a police character. Was it impossible for the clerk to accept my $2 originally?

PREFERS LOS ANGELES TRAFFIC.

Chicago, April 27.—Having been a visitor to your fair city for the last few months I cannot understand why there are not more accidents daily in your loop. There is such small regard for the traffic signals; men and women whom one would believe [from their looks] to be intelligent dash madly across the streets without even glancing at the signals.

I live in Los Angeles, and any one who has ever been there and tried to cross the streets against the signals knows the result. The Chicago traffic officers—most of them—even beckon you on. Too bad a few Los Angeles cops couldn't have charge of Chicago traffic for a while.

There certainly should be more drastic regulations during the Fair or there will be a great many serious accidents here. I have watched men dashing in front of autos and street cars against the lights as if their very lives depended on gaining the opposite side of the street at a certain second, and when they reach their goal they stand and watch some demonstrator in a window.

No doubt, half of those "dashers" haven't any place to go but stand on the corner, as I've seen several do.

Here is one thing I did find worth while in Chicago, and that is your wonderful newspaper and I also noted on the elevated and street cars your paper was read by most of the folks, both old and young and both sexes. But why not?

ASHLAND AVE. BRIDGE.

Chicago, April 27.—When will the abutments be finished each side of the new drainage canal bridge on the Ashland avenue highway? Bridge was finished last winter. This is the only obstruction to traffic from route 49 at 147th street into the city. Would be a valuable artery to the city and A Century of Progress.

AMERICAN AUTO ASS'N OPPOSES ALCOHOL IN GAS

Claims It Would Add 600 Million to Fuel Bill.

The American Automobile association last week announced its opposition to a proposal pending in congress to legislate an alcohol mixture for gasoline used in motor cars. The proposal has been advanced as a farm relief measure, a means of consuming the surplus grain crops, but the A. A. A. declared that it would add $609,900,000 to the annual motor fuel bill of the country, twenty-five per cent of which is paid by farmers.

The contest board of the association found that a ten per cent alcohol blend with gasoline was 6.5 per cent less efficient than straight gasoline. It is estimated that motorists would have to pay from 2 to 4 cents more per gallon than they now pay for automobile fuel. Engine trouble might also result.

The A. A. A. Findings.

Two factors are involved in the additional cost cited by the A. A. A. First, an increase of $463,650,000 in the fuel bill by reason of a boost in the initial price, and second, an increase of $146,250,000 due to purchase of more fuel to offset the lesser operating efficiency of the blend, or a total of $609,900,000.

The summary of the A. A. A. report continues:

"The $609,900,000 added to the country's motor fuel bill would be equivalent to an additional tax on motor vehicle owners, and, if distributed equally among the owners of the 24,136,879 registered motor vehicles, would be equivalent to an average annual tax per vehicle of $25.26.

"This new tax, added to the average tax per vehicle of $45.28 in 1932, would mean that the average annual tax per vehicle would be raised to $70.54, or an increase of 55.8 per cent.

"The additional cost of alcohol-gasoline blends is exclusive of additional distribution and supervision costs which would be involved.

Added Operating Costs.

"Added operating costs are to be expected as the result of the deleterious effect of alcohol blended fuel on various parts of the system of the motor vehicle.

"While a ten per cent alcohol blended fuel has anti-knock qualities superior to that of ordinary gasoline, these qualities are materially short of the anti-knock value of our so-called treated and premium brands of fuel and would, therefore, not supplant those now on the market.

"For every 25 cents per bushel increase in the cost of corn the motor vehicle owner would be required to pay an additional amount of $154,500,000 per year for fuel, or more than $6 per registered motor vehicle.

"The readiness with which alcohol absorbs moisture will inevitably result in the separation of the alcohol and the gasoline in the blend and involve carburetion and starting difficulties which will increase as the temperature goes lower."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Chrysler Motors' exhibition—largest private exhibit, in area, at A Century of Progress is nearing completion and within a few days will be ready to receive what is said to be the most complete exhibit of automotive engineering ever assembled.

Described in the sequence by which it will be viewed by visitors to the World's Fair, the main parts of the exhibit consist of a "Revolving Cyclorama,"—depicting an airplane trip from coast to coast—a 360 foot long promenade leading to the main building; the building itself housing an exhibit of more than 25,000 different automotive articles; a quarter mile hard surface oval track, and a beautiful sunken garden with a reflecting pool 325 feet in length.

Great interest centers around the quarter mile track. It provides the medium for actually seeing and taking part in many of the gruelling track tests to which Chrysler Motors' products are subjected.

W. R. Bellows, formerly manager of the Brooklyn branch of the Packard Motor Car company of New York, has been made general manager of the Packard Motor Car Company of Chicago.

A team of five Studebaker President Eights—85 per cent stock and all veterans of last year's Indianapolis grind—has been officially entered in the 1933 race under the Studebaker name.

L. G. Peed, De Soto sales manager, and R. M. Rowland, promotion manager, told of improved and improving business conditions in addresses last week before 150 salesmen and dealers assembled for a "drive-away" from Navy pier of automobiles that arrived by boat from Detroit.

AUTO RACERS TO OPEN SEASON IN CHICAGO SUNDAY

Professional automobile racing at opposite ends of the city will be held next Sunday when two Chicago tracks open their seasons.

The Evanston Motor Speedway, Lincoln and Devon avenues, will hold its inaugural meet, originally scheduled for today but postponed when heavy rains made the track too dangerous. There will be five stock car races.

An all-star program of events is scheduled at the Calumet Speed Bowl, 169th street and Torrence avenue.

STATES REPORT ON CAMPAIGN TO FORCE ECONOMY

Some Cut Expenses, Others Increase.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, which for a year has been carrying on a nation-wide campaign on behalf of economy in government, recently requested information from its state chairmen and from state officials as to the results of efforts to slash the cost of government.

So far only a few replies have been received. These indicate that progress has been made in some states, while in others expenditures have increased. Reports of the states reporting so far follow:

ALABAMA.

From D. A. Thomas, state chairman, N. O. R. P. E.

Alabama Economy league figures show expenditures of $47,922,000 against receipts of $44,319,000 in 1930, and for 1931 expenditures of $44,574,000 against receipts of $36,770,000. Accumulated deficit at end of 1931, $12,022,000. Between 1918 and 1930 tax levies for state increased from $5,710,000 to $23,110,000. School taxation—June, 1918 to 1930—increased from $5,944,000 to $19,559,000, or 226 per cent against a 10 per cent increase in school enrollment.

CALIFORNIA.

From James Mussatti, executive secretary, California Taxpayers' association.

1931-'33 biennium shows deficit of $10,000,000. Estimated deficit, 1933-'35 biennium, $60,000,000. Reduction in general fund expenditure, etc., for 1933-'35 biennium of $59,103,000 is proposed in plan submitted by R. A. Vandegrift, state director of finance. Reduction proposals include the elimination of more than 30 bureaus and similar activities; almost $13,000,000 reduction in general fund fixed charges; 20 per cent reduction in highway expenditures, and $23,000,000 saving in school expenditures by state.

IDAHO.

From R. E. Shepherd, state chairman, N. O. R. P. E.

While money figures are not available, there has been a reduction of 33.4 per cent between budgets for 1933 and 1934 and those of 1931 and 1932. Between 1929 and 1932 there was a reduction of 19 per cent in taxes levied. Levies for 1933 are expected to be $5,946,000, or 26.8 per cent under those of 1929. State governmental expenditures will be between 25 and 30 per cent less than those of 1929.

ILLINOIS.

1933-'35 biennium aggregate $65,000,000, compared with $85,000,000 budget for 1931-'33 biennium—a cut of 25 per cent.

IOWA.

From James W. Hubbell, chairman, Iowa Association for the Reduction of Public Expenditures.

Annual state expenditures: 1931, $110,000,000; 1932, $100,000,000; 1933, $90,000,000. Bill now pending for reduction of 25 per cent in levy for 1934 and 1935, which would make income of each year approximately $70,000,000. Governor's plan calls for abolition of 54 boards and commissions.

KENTUCKY.

From William B. Belknap, state chairman N. O. R. P. E., and M. B. Sewell, state inspector and examiner, Kentucky.

Expenditures: 1929, $36,645,903; 1930, $33,656,168; 1931, $43,156,073 and 1932, $40,591,101. Estimated expenditure for 1933 is 15 per cent under 1931.

Local governments said to be in poor shape, due to influence of pay rollers and their large family connections.

Steel Mills Lead Way in Trade Upturn

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The long awaited upturn in the steel industry—historic barometer of American business—is taking place.

From a low production point of 14 per cent of capacity on March 18 the rate of operation has risen steeply, passing through the 1932 level in mid-April and reaching 31 per cent of capacity last week. Thus, in a short period of six weeks, the rate of activity in this basic industry has more than doubled.

As the week closed it was predicted in steel quarters that operations would reach the 35 per cent mark by the middle of this week. At some producing points production is nearing the highest level in two years.

Many Workers Recalled.

At Gary and South Chicago—the great middle western producing centers—hundreds of men have been put back on the pay rolls. From downtown Chicago smoke can be seen ascending from the stacks of the South Chicago mills, telling of the quickening activity.

The expansion in steel buying may be attributed to two factors. The seasonal demand, which has been pent up by financial disturbances of the last two months has finally shown itself forcefully. Second, anticipation of monetary inflation has inspired "protective" buying by many steel users.

The automobile industry has been the biggest factor in the market, augmented by broadening demand from miscellaneous consumers. Users of tin plate have also contributed their share to the expanding production.

Structural Order in Offing.

The demand for structural steel—which comes from the building industry—has lagged but one of the largest orders for this type of steel ever made is expected to be closed in the near future. The order calls for 120,000 tons to be used in constructing the mammoth San Francisco-Oakland bridge. The bulk of this order will be filled in the Chicago area.

The railroads, too, on whom the steel makers depend year in and year out, have not come forward aggressively as yet but there is evidence that the pent up needs of this industry will soon exert influence.

Still another order which will soon come into the market is one for 15,000 tons to be used in the Hudson river bridge. The approval of a 5 million dollar loan by the Reconstruction Finance corporation for this project assures this order, steel makers report.

Steel Scrap Prices Rise.

The scarcity of steel scrap, the price of which is regarded as an unfailing index of industrial activity, has led to mounting prices. Heavy melting scrap in the Chicago area has risen $3.50 a ton in a little over a month and is now bringing $9.00 a ton. At some eastern points this type of scrap is commanding $12.00 a ton.

Pig iron prices have stiffened, with the indices reaching the highest point in more than a year. Prices of finished steel have followed.

Production is now on a par with the highest peak reached last year. It is expected that before the week is out operations will pass the best mark made by the industry in 1932.

CHIEF INDICES OF TRADE SHOW UPWARD TREND

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Statistics appearing during the last week indicated a rising business tendency, according to Moody's index figures for freight car loadings, electric power production, and steel ingot output. These index figures are adjusted for seasonal variation—that is, if the change from the previous week should coincide with the normal seasonal change, the index figure would be unchanged.

FREIGHT CAR LOADINGS FOR 5 YEARS COMPARED

Dollar Rallies; Rumor France to Quit Gold

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—Rumors that France and Holland would abandon the gold standard over the week-end, spreading rapidly through all financial markets here this morning, brought a sharp rally in the dollar.

Although sterling continued to appreciate in dollar terms, rising to $4.05 and closing at $4.01, up 2½ cents, francs, guilders, Belgas and Swiss francs dropped rapidly from the record breaking premiums at which they had been quoted. French exchange, after opening at 4.74 cents fell to 4.55 cents, which was equivalent to a rise in the dollar from about 82.5 cents to 86.1 cents. The franc showed only feeble rallying power and closed at 4.61 cents, off 8½ points.

Get Hints from Abroad.

Financial houses here received strong intimations from their correspondents abroad that action on gold was imminent. In the Paris bourse there was active buying of stocks and selling of bonds, a typical pre-inflation development.

From Amsterdam came word that the Bank of the Netherlands, advising Dutch banks that a speculative "attack" on the guilder from British sources had become evident, had instructed them to discourage speculative foreign exchange transactions and to sanction only commercial transactions. It was recalled that this advice paralleled the orders issued here by the secretary of the treasury shortly before the official abandonment of the gold standard by the United States.

New York Market Quiet.

Despite the wide movements of the exchanges, dealing in the foreign exchange market was lighter than it has recently been. As has been the case lately all of the impetus for the movements came from the European markets.

Sterling "came in" at $4.05, a new high on the move and an overnight gain of 6½ cents. Almost at once it sold off to $3.97½ and the gold standard exchanges began to fade away. Sterling subsequently improved on covering by shorts, but the franc and the guilder were without this support, the short position in those markets being entirely against the dollar.

The Law Is No Guarantee Against Fraud.

In the enactment of legislation by the federal government looking to the better protection of the public against security fraud there undoubtedly lies much good but there also lies some danger.

The danger is that investors will get the false idea that there is now no longer any need for them to keep on the lookout for fraud.

Nothing could be farther from the truth. There never was and never will be a code of laws that provide complete or even adequate protection against crookedness in securities dealings.

Some of the more flagrant abuses of the old boom period of the 'twenties will be prevented. No longer, perhaps, will it be possible to pyramid holding company upon holding company until the equity becomes a thin wisp that evaporates with the first recession of the markets.

No longer will it be possible for a suave foreigner to mulct millions from trusting Americans who do not even check to see whether the assets pledged are forged or genuine.

But there are numberless ways in which people can lose money in stocks and bonds, and there always will be. As the old ruses are prevented a premium is placed upon the invention of new ones.

There's too much money at stake to hope to stamp out security frauds entirely. The potential cleanup is huge enough to attract the sharpest brains.

Somehow many people fail to understand that the law cannot do the job alone. They know that laws against murder do not prevent murder and that laws against robbery do not prevent robbery.

The average citizen would not think of walking down a dark alley with a pocket full of hundred dollar bills depending upon the laws against theft to protect him. That same citizen, however, frequently exposes his hard earned money to as great or greater danger in stock and bond transactions and thinks nothing of it.

These words are not written out of the air. They are not theory. They are the wisdom and experience gleaned from thousands of letters from readers telling how they were tempted, how they speculated, and how they lost.

Being a sucker is not the prerogative of any particular class of people. The millionaire and his poorest clerk often have amazingly similar reactions to "opportunities" in securities transactions.

Laws may help but the individual's best protection against loss is his own common sense. He should remember that no one is out to make him rich or even to provide him with a profit and that no proposition is ever so good that it can't wait until it has been thoroughly investigated.

TREASURY CHIEF ADVISED BANKS WAY BACK IN '65

Advice for bankers is nothing new. Arthur F. Hall, president of the Lincoln National Life Insurance company, has come into possession of a letter written by Hugh McCulloch, Lincoln's secretary of the treasury, to the heads of all national banks in 1863.

"Let no loans be made that are not secured beyond a reasonable contingency," McCulloch advised the bankers. "Do nothing to foster and encourage speculation. . . . Never renew a note or bill merely because you may not know where to place the money with equal advantage if the paper is paid.

"Distribute your loans," he continued, "rather than concentrate them in a few hands. Large loans to a single individual or firm, although sometimes proper and necessary, are generally injudicious and frequently unsafe."

Secretary McCulloch never heard of Samuel Insull although this advice might lead one to believe so. He then adds: "'Splendid financing' is not legitimate banking, and 'splendid financiers,' in banking, are generally either humbugs or rascals."

Several eastern tipster houses are again flooding Chicago with long distance telephone calls urging the purchase of stocks of doubtful quality. One individual whose hobby is getting on sucker lists hung up a new high record. He kept a Boston house on the wire for 17 minutes without having "bit." His Paterson, N. J., record is only 6½ minutes.

La Salle street scene: Crumpled 5 dollar bill lying on sidewalk at La Salle and Adams waiting to be adopted. Five passersby spy it at same time. Short man, perhaps a broker, overcomes distance handicap and gets his hand on bill first. He doesn't stop to talk but disappears in the crowd before a hobo leaning against a building and staring at the sky realizes what all the confusion is about.

Arthur Cutten has a new 60 cent blue neck tie. At least that is what Hogan, La Salle street tie salesman, says. "I got some more just like it," he adds. "They're very, very nice. Good enough for anybody."

* *

With 40 cent silver approaching, many of the deserted mining towns of the west are expected to take on a new lease of life. Mine operators in Montana and Nevada will resume production when the 40 cent level is reached, according to a business review by the Bank of America. Already many of these "ghost towns" are awakening, it is reported.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Numerous cross-currents were apparent in the action of the grain markets yesterday. Uneasiness over what President Roosevelt might say in his speech, which is scheduled to be broadcast to the country tonight, and rumors from London that France might abandon the gold standard over the week-end led to heavy profit taking in wheat. This prevented prices from advancing to new high levels for the season, except for the May delivery.

However, there was a further broadening in the outside interest in corn, oats and rye, and all deliveries sold at new highs for the season. July corn touched 45½ cents, or 20½ cents above the low point established slightly more than 60 days ago.

Expanding Speculation Shown.

The vast increase in speculative interest in the grain markets during the last week was shown by the official statement giving average transactions of 91,000,000 bushels a day, compared with 73,000,000 bushels a day in the preceding week, and 46,000,000 bushels a day during the corresponding period last year. Coincident with the broadening trade has been one of the most impressive advances in grain prices witnessed in a number of years.

As a result of the recent sensational upturn of over 30 cent a bushel in wheat it is figured by some observers that many Kansas farmers are now well on the way to making money on the crop which will be harvested in July.

It is estimated in the main producing area in the central part of the state the producer should receive over 50 cents a bushel for No. 2 hard winter wheat at country loading stations. This figure is based on the price prevailing for the July delivery at Kansas City, and the highest level since the government ceased stabilization operations in 1931.

Profit Taking Is Heavy.

Heavy profit taking developed on the upturns in wheat, and there was also said to have been considerable selling of this grain against purchases of corn. Numerous sharp bulges and breaks were witnessed within a range of nearly 2 cents with the finish ⅝ to ⅞ cent lower. May was 73 cents at the last with July 74 to 74⅛ cents; September, 74¾ to 74⅞ cents, and December 76¾ cents.

The corn market was an active affair yesterday with prices advancing and declining rapidly. There was heavy profit taking by longs and also much new buying. The latter was effective in checking the decline and the market rallied sharply, closing well toward the top with net gains of ⅝ to 1¼ cents, with the May leading. The latter finished at 42⅛ cents, with July 44⅞ to 45 cents and September 46½ to 46⅝ cents.

U. S. Calls on National Banks to Cut Expense

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The pressure of the United States treasury department yesterday was brought to bear on all national banks to scale down their operating expenses and curtail dividend payments.

Following is a letter received by national banks in Chicago from F. G. Awalt, acting controller of the currency:

"Although the declaration and payment of dividends to stockholders of national banks is governed by sections 5199 and 5204 of the United States revised statutes and is a matter for the determination of the boards of directors of each institution, it is believed that in the interest of conservatism and sound banking, every reasonable effort should be put forth during this period where necessary to build up and strengthen the capital structure of our banking institutions.

"If you have not already done so, it is therefore requested that you give special consideration at this time not only to the net earnings but also to the capital and surplus accounts of your institution, salaries, expenses of operation, and to the advisability of reducing or deferring dividend payments to your stockholders for the time being, all in the interest of further strengthening the surplus or reserve accounts of your institution."

Letter Carries Weight.

This communication, although it is not a definite order, will probably have a decided effect upon bank policies, because it has all the weight of the administration behind it.

It has been known ever since the nation-wide bank holiday that the treasury favored reduction or omission of dividends and slashing of salaries and other expenses temporarily while the banks of the nation rebuilt their reserves and strengthen their capital structures.

During the moratorium the treasury at one time was reported to be seriously considering issuing an order forbidding the payment of dividends by national banks.

Anticipating the treasury's present stand, Chicago's two largest national banks, the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and the First National bank, on March 21 omitted their quarterly dividend payments. The third largest national institution, City National Bank and Trust company, was not on a dividend basis.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National, announced at that time that it would be the policy of his bank to conserve earnings and build up reserves during the period of national economic reconstruction.

Earned Dividend Deferred.

The Continental Illinois management stated:

"In harmony with what seems to be the governmental policy of conserving bank assets, although the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company during the first quarter has earned its current dividends substantially twice over, the board of directors has considered it advisable to defer a dividend action."

Banks here have not only omitted dividends but they have reduced operating expenses in many ways, among them the elimination of a number of officers.

New York banks have been slower to adopt the new policy, although they have gradually reduced dividend payments. The treasury's newly announced position, it is expected, will cause them to follow the lead of Chicago national banks in omitting dividends.

Banks' Condition Improves.

Meanwhile Chicago banks as a whole, having weathered the nation-wide moratorium in better shape than banks of almost any other important city, continue to strengthen their condition. Deposits have increased steadily since the holiday.

The improvement has not been limited to the big loop banks. Outlying institutions during this period have made remarkable progress.

"The record made by the outlying banks during the last few weeks has surprised even the most optimistic of us," a clearing house official remarked yesterday. "I know of one bank that had just about exhausted its cash resources when the moratorium began that today is more than 50 per cent liquid.

"People have discovered that they can't get along without the services of the outlying banks and now that confidence has been restored they are using these banks to a greater extent than they have for several years."

PROFIT TAKING AND RUMORS PUT STOCKS LOWER

See Inflation Curb by Roosevelt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—Rumors—supposedly of Washington origin—that President Roosevelt might douse a little cold water on extravagant inflation hopes in the course of his radio "fireside" address tomorrow night had a chilling effect on speculative sentiment in Wall street today. The market after an early show of strength on further weakness in the dollar turned sharply downward and the close found leading issues from 1 to 3 points lower. Business was on a moderate scale, the turnover coming to 2,094,030 shares.

Gossip that France was on the verge of abandoning the gold standard caused concern in some quarters and was probably a factor of some weight in the reaction. The trading community also showed sober interest in the frank statement of Secretary Wallace that the United States still has a big surplus of agricultural products on its hands.

Rail Statistics Delayed.

New found followers of the railroad shares were looking forward to another increase in carloadings when the weekly figures were made public but the change of time on account of the daylight savings calendar delayed publication of the statistics too long for them to have any weight either way. Losses of one to two points or so were suffered by the leading issues of the group.

Profit taking in wheat found an echo in the farm implement division and Case and International Harvester were both sold freely. The first named issue lost nearly 3 points. Mail order stocks played runner up in the usual fashion and both Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck had to surrender some of their late gains.

Utilities Hold Well.

The utilities put up stout resistance to selling for a while and American Telephone succeeded in holding above the 100 mark, although the closing sale showed it more than 2 points below previous closing level. Peoples Gas, Public Service and others were lower.

Selling was persistent in many of the high class industrials. American Can, United States Steel, Air Reduction and other outstanding beneficiaries of the inflation enthusiasm which has lately been running so riotously declined as profit takers rushed to get some of those newly won dollars in hand before something happens.

The oil shares made a better showing than most groups. The street has been hearing of late that the government might step in and lay a heavy hand on price cutting and wasteful overproduction.

Decline Checked in West.

San Francisco, Cal., May 6.—(AP)—Active selling drove prices down rather sharply in the short session on the stock and curb exchanges here today, with many issues dipping below New York closing prices. There was a firming tendency toward the close, however, which about checked the decline.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 6.—Disposition to take profits sent the listed bond market irregularly lower during the brief trading period today when total transactions mounted to $9,614,000, a figure which would come close to a normal full day's business. United States government bonds held steady to firm, with final prices up 6-32ds to off 4-32ds point.

The ground lost by domestic corporation bonds, as a group, was only a small part of the advances scored on Friday. As it was, many corporation issues climbed 1 to more than 4 points. The major losses today did not amount to more than a point or two.

Rails Irregular.

Of the most active issues, American and Foreign Power 5s, due 2030, closed up ⅛; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe general 4s, due 1995, up 1; Baltimore and Ohio convertible 4½s, due 1960, off 1⅛; Boston and Maine 5s, due 1967, up 1½; Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific 5s, due 1975, off ¼; and International Telephone and Telegraph 5s, due 1955, and convertible 4½s, due 1939, off 2¾ and 2⅝, respectively.

Taking cognizance of rumors regarding France's inability to continue on the gold standard, holders of French government and municipal bonds pressed some of their holdings on the market with the net result that the government loans were down ¼ of a point to a point, and the municipals were off half a point to 7 points.

German Issues Mixed.

German government bonds recovered ½ to 2¼ points, but the balance of the German list showed considerable irregularity. The activity dealt in United Kingdom 5½s eased fractionally.

Curb bonds, as a rule, showed a stronger tone than issues on the stock exchange. One feature of the day was the rise of 3 to 5 points in the various issues of the United States Rubber company on a very few transactions. This rise brought the prices of these issues to 59 to 65 cents on the dollar. Foreign loans on the curb were dull and irregularly lower.

NEW MID-CITY NATIONAL BANK OPEN TOMORROW

All Deposits of $2,825,000 Will Be Released.

The Mid-City National bank, 801 West Madison street, will open tomorrow morning as the successor to the old Mid-City Trust and Savings, one of the oldest and largest of the outlying banking institutions.

Authorization for the opening was received late yesterday, Ben Mills, president, announced last night. The new bank assumes all of the deposit liabilities of the old state institution. With the opening $2,825,000 of deposits which have been tied up since the beginning of the banking holiday will be released.

Capital of Half Million.

The new national bank has a capitalization of half a million dollars, with $400,000 of capital, $50,000 of surplus, and $50,000 of undivided surplus. As a national bank it automatically becomes a member of the federal reserve system.

The capital for the new bank was raised entirely by stockholders. No waiver by depositors was involved in the organization. The bank opens on an unrestricted basis, with all deposits of the old bank released.

In addition to President Mills the principal officers of the new bank are D. B. Kennedy, vice president; W. O. Schultz, cashier, and F. A. Groenwald, assistant cashier. There will be no chairman.

Bank 22 Years Old.

The Mid-City Trust was organized 22 years ago. In the last three years it paid off 83 per cent of its deposits and earned the reputation which has been eqalued by few banks during the deflation period. Its peak deposits a few years ago were 15 million, as compared with approximately $3,825,000 on March 4.

A plan to reopen the Suburban Trust and Savings bank, Oak Park, is now being negotiated, it was learned yesterday. The program is understood to have won the approval of the state auditor. New capital is being raised through a stock assessment and depositors are being asked to "freeze" 50 per cent of their claims.

A total of 117 banks were opened throughout the nation last week on an unrestricted basis, according to a compilation of the American Banker. This is the largest number of reopenings since the end of March.

Two more downstate banks, the Frankfort State bank and the Depue State bank, were given permits to reopen Monday by State Auditor Barrett last night.

STOCKS TRADED TO DATE EXCEED TOTAL LAST YEAR

Averages Move Up to Near 1932 Peak.

In harmony with the definite impulse given to steel operations, carloadings, electric power production, and the prices of commodities, in recent weeks, the volume of trading on the New York Stock exchange recorded from Jan. 1 exceeded that of the comparable period of 1932 yesterday for the first time this year. The total number of shares traded in up to and including May 6, 1933, was reported as 137,350,384, as against 136,769,135 for the like period of last year.

Similarly trading for the week ending yesterday attained a total of 26,261,667 shares, unequaled in nearly three years. The preceeding week's turnover in stocks was 18,654,895. The total for yesterday was 2,094,030, against only 639,949 a year ago.

Averages Near September, 1932.

At the same time stock market averages last week approached the level of September, 1932. As early as Monday, April 10, partly as a consequence of anticipation of inflationary measures, THE TRIBUNE's average of the closing prices of fifty leading stocks on the New York Stock exchange, for the first time this year, surpassed the figures for the same day of 1932. The average for April 10, 1933, was $55.67, compared with $53.43 twelve months before.

Moody's index of the prices of fifteen staple commodities moved upward each day since Saturday, April 29, until yesterday, when the figure fell slightly short of the new 1933 high of 110.0 established Friday. During last week prices, measured in the index, were the highest in more than a year and a half.

Steel, Electricity Improve.

Parallel improvements have been manifest in steel operations, which, after starting early in April to exceed activity for the comparable period of 1932, have climbed to 33 per cent, the highest rate of any week since Aug. 18, 1931.

The margin by which national electricity production of each week so far this year has been surpassed by that of the comparable week of 1932 has been rapidly reduced. The country's electric power output for the week ended April 29, the last for which figures are available, aggregated 1,427,960,000 kilowatt hours, representing a decline of only 1.8 per cent from output of 1,454,505,000 in the like week of 1932—the smallest since July 18, 1931.

BUTTER HIGHEST SINCE 1931

Butter and egg futures soared again on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter deliveries making new highs for the year with November at the highest level since the close of 1931. Final sales were up ¼@1c. Eggs gained ¼@½c. Butter opened firm but reacted on active profit taking, but near the close new buying came in with a rush. Covering contributed to the forward drive. Egg futures were firm throughout the session despite heavy profit taking which tended to restrict the price movement. The October came within ⅛c of the year's high. Statistics as usual were bearish and gain had no influence. Sales: Butter, 118 cars; eggs, 126 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 7 cars. Prices follow:

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—SUGAR—Spot raw was quiet today and the only sale confirmed was 11,000 bags of Puerto Rican for prompt shipment at 3.35c, a decline of 3 points from the last previous close. This was concluded late yesterday, and there was no furthrer interest from refiners today, although more was available. After opening unchanged to 2 points lower sugar futures showed further losses under increased liquidation and selling by trade interests, promoted by the easier spot market. The volume of business was only of small proportions and there appeared to be a disposition to limit new commitments and await developments over the week-end. Sales were 12,150 tons. Prices follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close.
July	1.41	1.41	1.37	1.41	1.42
Sept.	1.45	1.45	1.42	1.44	1.45

Refined sugar was unchanged at 4.50c for fine granulated, with second hands still available at 4.35c. The withdrawal demand was more active but new business continued light.

HAY MARKET.

Outside of one car of alfalfa, the local team tracks did not have a car of hay on them. Rain most of the week curtailed country loadings to a marked degree and the recent price advance has not been particularly effective in bringing about any improvement in the size of the day-to-day run as yet.

FOUR FAMED LAKE STEAMERS TO GO ON AUCTION BLOCK

Goodrich Line's 75 Year Record Reaches End.

Assets of the Goodrich Transit company, whose ships have been plying the great lakes for more than three-quarters of a century, will be placed on the auction block next Wednesday, Fred E. Hummel, trustee in bankruptcy, said yesterday.

Chief among the assets to be offered to the highest bidders are the four package and passenger vessels of the company—the steamships Christopher Columbus, Alabama, Carolina, and the Illinois.

These ships have been sailing out of the port of Chicago for many years. Perhaps the best known of the ships is the Christopher Columbus which has been carrying holiday crowds between Milwaukee and Chicago since the World's Fair of 1893.

Proved by Spectacular Test.

The vessel underwent a spectacular test after the Eastland disaster when its owners demonstrated its seaworthiness by loading it with bags of sand to see how far it would tip. The test proved its lake worthiness.

The Alabama was one of the few lake boats to operate the year around. It played a major rôle in many winter rescues.

Founded in 1856 the company remained a family concern until 1920 when Albert W. Goodrich, son of the founder, sold out his interest. The company entered troubled seas in 1930 and was placed in receivership by the United States District court. Unable to right itself financially the company sank into bankruptcy early this year.

Early last month the four ships were offered at auction and brought bids of only $973.08. Referee Garfield Charles refused the bids, saying that he would not give the ships away. The bids were made subject to existing liens and encumbrances. Bonds outstanding against the ships amount to $180,000.

Continues Until 15th.

The steamboats will be offered for sale at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in the courtroom of Referee Charles together with all equipment, tools and fixtures. Other assets will be offered on succeeding days until May 15.

Thursday morning all real estate holdings, irrespective of location, and equipment at Milwaukee and Racine will be offered at auction at Navy pier in Chicago. Other assets including trucks, workshop machinery, furniture, office equipment and the trustee's right to certain parcels of real estate will be offered between the 11th and 15th.

Postmaster General Farley to Open Home Building Conference

NEW IDEAS IN CONSTRUCTION TO BE DISCUSSED

Two Day Sessions to Be at Congress.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Postmaster General James A. Farley of New York City, who heads one of the largest building supply houses in the world, will welcome the building industries at the opening session next Tuesday morning of the national convention for the renewal of home building at the Congress hotel. He will be escorted to the conference by a local committee headed by Benjamin F. Affleck, president of the Universal Cement company.

JAMES A. FARLEY.

The convention, which, it is expected, will be attended by several thousand manufacturerss, architects, contractors, economists, and the general public, will extend through Wednesday.

The conference is being held, according to J. Soule Warterfield, chairman of the convention, for the purpose of reviewing the various factors that point to an early resumption of home construction, and in order to make public to the various trades a variety of new methods, building materials, units and processes that have been developed during the last two years.

Built Around Survey.

The two day conference is being built around a special survey made during the last thirty days by the United States department of commerce which, it is said, will show an accumulating housing shortage throughout the country. An extensive program has been prepared by a committee of business men representing the construction industry who organized the conference.

One of the features of the conference will be a symposium on new designs and inventions which will cover the widely discussed prefabricated homes, the homes without windows, rooms without corners, air conditioning for homes, bathrooms and kitchens completely built in units, and many other features.

Louis Brownlow to Speak.

Among the speakers will be Louis Brownlow, formerly of the New York City Housing corporation and now director of the Public Administration Clearing House at the University of Chicago; Dr. L. C. Gray, bureau of land economics, department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., and Fermor S. Cannon, president of the Railroad Men's Building and Loan association, Indianapolis.

Herbert U. Nelson, secretary of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, who has made a special study of the tax situation throughout the country, will tell the conference visitors that, contrary to popular opinion, taxes on homes are really diminishing.

Other speakers include H. Vandervoort Walsh, professor of architecture, Columbia university; Bennett Chapple, vice president of the American Rolling Mill company, and Alfred K. Stern of the Julius Rosenwald fund.

A Mortgage Holder's Troubles.

TO THE EDITOR: Two years ago my husband bought a mortgage at the ——— bank for $3,500. At that time the bank would take their mortgage back at any time. As the bank stood back of it and recommended it, we never went to see the property. Last August the interest was due—$105—and $500 on the principal. When we went to collect at the bank there was no money.

I went to see the people for the first time. It was a tumbling down old two story frame house. A $1,000 mortgage would be plenty. I asked the people about paying. They said there was no one working. But if we gave them until Jan. 1, 1933, they said, they would try to pay up.

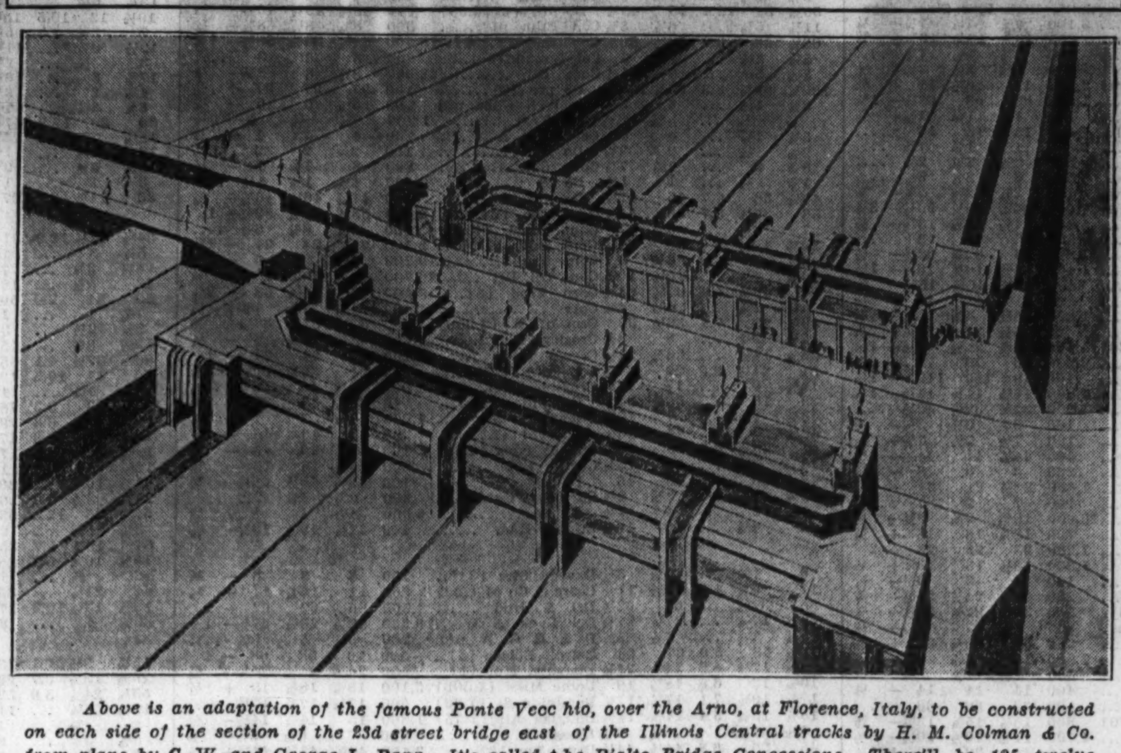
When January came they asked until May 1, no wthey have done nothing. The bank wants $600 at the least. My husband has very little work and we need the money. A year and a half ago we built a garage, figuring on that mortgage money to pay for it. We had to place a mortgage on our home to build the garage. It will be due this fall. What can I do to get some money from the mortgage we hold? J. F.

ANSWER: In case you foreclose, if the price you bid at the sale of the property is not enough to pay the mortgage, foreclosure costs, and taxes, you can have a deficiency decree entered against the debtor. This would be like an ordinary judgment and your chances of collecting would depend upon the extent of the mortgagor's assets and income.

In your case we doubt very much whether foreclosure would do you much good. You would probably have to advance large sums for costs and taxes, if the mortgagor is as hard up as he seems to be from your letter.

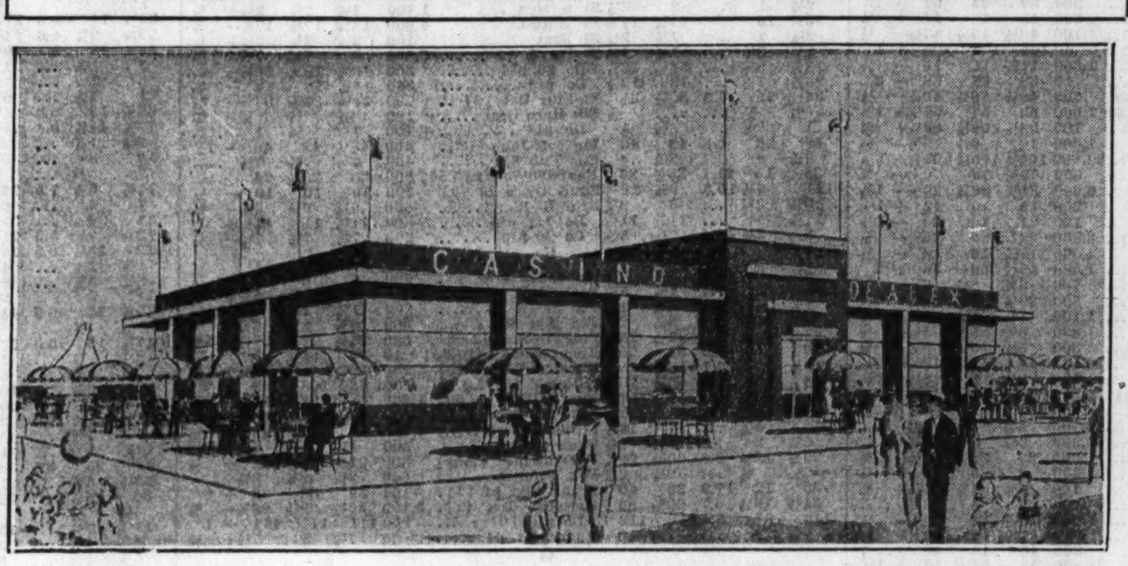
We suggest you formulate several definite plans of payment by the debtor and, through personal negotiation with him, have him choose the one nearest his resources at the present time.

A "PONTE VECCHIO" JUST OUTSIDE THE FAIR



Above is an adaptation of the famous Ponte Vecchio, over the Arno, at Florence, Italy, to be constructed on each side of the section of the 23d street bridge east of the Illinois Central tracks by H. M. Colman & Co. from plans by C. W. and George L. Rapp. It's called the Rialto Bridge Concessions. There'll be 125 twelve foot wide units for shops facing a covered walk 378 feet long. Details are given elsewhere on this page.

A WORLD'S FAIR PLACE TO DANCE AND EAT



Daniel Alexander, owner of the Casa de Alex café at 58 East Delaware place and the Café de Alex at 80 West Randolph street, is to have the above Casino de Alex on the lake shore, next to the General Motors building at the World's Fair. It will have two dance floors, one outside and the other enclosed, with a total seating capacity of 800. There'll be two orchestras. Rabig & Ross are the architects. J. T. Schless & Co. of Downers Grove have the general contract. Work is now under way. H. Peterson made this sketch.

Nixon Building, Clark and Monroe.

I'm interested in knowing the facts regarding the 6½ per cent first mortgage bonds on the sixteen story Nixon building at the southwest corner of Clark and Monroe streets.—N. S.

The junior assistant conservator of the Guardian Trust company of Cleveland, O., has this to say regarding the leasehold bonds in question and the property securing them: "The Nixon building, mortgaged to secure the first mortgage leasehold 6½ per cent bonds of the Loop Building corporation, has been operated by John P. Hooker, receiver, since Aug. 23, 1932. We quote from a letter recently received from Mr. Hooker as follows: 'For your further information, the building is half empty, due to the oversupply of office space in Chicago and general business conditions, and the property is not now earning current operating expenses and taxes.

"'I am, therefore, afraid that the outlook for the owners of leasehold bonds is not bright and, unless a miracle happens, the building and leasehold probably will be forfeited to the owners of the land.'

"The bonds were marketed by Otis & Co., who are in close touch with the situation. Up to the present time no bondholders' protective committee has been formed."

Near North Side Eleanor Club to Be Made Into Hotel

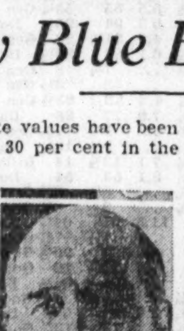
The six story building at the southeast corner of North Wabash avenue and East Erie street, for many years operated as an Eleanor club, has been leased by Paul Kapodistrias and associates for a term of years. After alterations it will be operated as a popular priced hotel. Frank C. Wells of L. J. Sheridan & Co. was broker. The Northern Trust company, trustee, was lessor.

E. S. Hodges Buys a Lake Shore Drive Co-op Suite

Ernest Stanley Hodges, attorney, has bought a coöperative apartment at 1120 Lake Shore drive from Mary D. Farley, widow of Jesse K. Farley Sr. of the Farley Candy company. Leonard M. Prince of Cook & Jackson was broker. The building is under the management of Baird & Warner.

Realty Prices Off 20 to 30% in New Blue Book of Values

Chicago real estate values have been reduced from 20 to 30 per cent in the new "World's Fair edition" of Olcott's Land Values Blue Book of Chicago for 1933, published yesterday by George C. Olcott & Co. This makes a total estimated decline in values since the peak of 1929 of about 50 per cent, Mr. Olcott states.



GEO. C. OLCOTT.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

"It's confidently expected that this will be the last decline in values to be recorded and that future quotations will be upward and not downward," he said. "The recovery will be slow, however.

Difficult to Estimate.

"Without sales or building operations, which reached their lowest ebb during the last year, to guide in making quotations, it was difficult to estimate land values. However, it's certain that land is a staple requirement of life and while many real estate men in a despondent mood exclaim that land has no value, that's not a fact. It only seems so. With these views in mind we've carefully revised every figure in the Blue Book for 1933."

A new feature of the book this year is foot notes at the bottom of each map page, indicating the character of the building improvements in each quarter section of the territory covered by the maps. For this purpose the classification of improvements made by the assessor is itemized. Pictures are given in the front of the book of various types of building improvements and numbered from 1 to 20 as per the manual issued by the assessor.

Shows Nationality.

These numbers correspond to the numbers given in the foot notes on each map page. This will enable any one not familiar with a neighborhood to visualize the kind of improvements in a quarter-section covered. The predominant nationality of the inhabitants, if distinctly marked, also are given.

"Thus without making a personal investigation, an excellent idea may be formed of the different sections of the city," said Mr. Olcott.

Plan American Indian Tea Room on East Adams St.

The store at 61 East Adams street has been leased by Chapin & Gore, Inc., to the American Indian Tea Room for a five year term at a reported term rental of approximately $30,000. Bernard E. Green, of Hooker & Slosson, was broker. The lessees are making extensive alterations and expect to open about May 15. The front part of the store will be equipped with Indian arts and crafts. In the rear will be a restaurant with a combination soda fountain and bar. Indian foods will be sold and there'll be Redskin entertainers. All of the bar maids, waiters, etc., will be native Indians.

PLAN WELDED FRAME HOUSE AT PARK RIDGE

Attorney Charlotte Slavitt, president of the Haco Housing company, states that a welded steel frame and concrete house is to be erected at 235 Ridge terrace, in Park Ridge, by Edward Schmeltkopf, and will be open to the public not later than the first of July for inspection. The architect is Ernest R. Richards and the engineer, Harry Cole.

A model of this house is being made and will be on exhibition at a loop department store and later will be shown at the World's Fair, it is stated.

It is stated that the Park Ridge house is the first of several to be erected in the Chicago area. According to Mr. Cole the Park Ridge house can be built on a thirty foot lot if necessary for about 25 cents a cubic foot. It is claimed that construction of the first floor, containing three and one-half rooms, and a full basement, will cost about $2,800. A small second floor with two bedrooms can be built later.

PLAN A B-G INN AT WORLD'S FAIR SEARS BUILDING

The B-G Sandwich shops are to have charge of the restaurant in the Sears, Roebuck & Co. World's Fair building, it was announced yesterday. In addition to having accommodations for the self-serving of 5,000 people daily, there will be a roof garden overlooking the grounds, where light lunches and fountain drinks will be available.

The main restaurant will have a seating capacity of 300. It will be decorated in gray, yellow, and blue, with chairs and tables red. The floor will be of blue tile. It will be called "The B-G Inn," according to Robert M. Felsenthal, in charge of Sears' World's Fair participation.

This restaurant brings the total number of people that can be served on the exposition grounds daily up to 45,000, according to Victor Rubin of the World's Fair.

M'Key-Poague Report 28% Rental Gain

The first four months of 1933 have shown a gain of 28 per cent over the same period in 1932 in the number of units rented by McKey & Poague's six south side offices, according to Frank J. O'Brien, vice president of the firm.

"The month of March was by far the best renting month ever experienced by the organization," he said. "During April, four of the six offices showed decisive gains over a year ago and two offices were slightly under the same period last year. The general average for all offices is in excess of 1932.

"Lease renewals for March were ahead of last year, three offices showing perfect records. April renewals exceeded those of a year ago. The net result of the so-called spring season is found in the smallest decrease in occupancy after a renting season that has been experienced for the last three years.

"In spite of the March moratorium and the resultant confusion, collections, which were delayed over ten days, rapidly improved and the percentage of delinquency was only 1.3 per cent over March, 1932, and .3 per cent over the previous month."

REPORT RENTAL ACTIVITY IN ONE LA SALLE

Upwards of 25,000 square feet of floor area in the One La Salle Street building was absorbed in leases effective May 1, according to L. J. Sheridan & Co., agents of the property. An entire floor in the tower section has been taken by McInerney, Epstein & Arvey, attorneys; approximately entire floors were leased by General Food Sales company and Heth, Lister & Collins.

Other new tenants include Evans, Marshall & Pease, accountants; Edward R. Hills, Morris Schaeffer, Harry Freeman, Eugene H. Garnett, Smith, Dawson & Horner, Howe, Rademacher, Kreamer & Stalling, and J. T. Kiggins and R. Jones, attorneys; P. G. Dallwig, insurance; James E. L. Hall & Carl Stockholm, Inc.

The Monarch Life Insurance company, Apartment Selection bureau, New England Life Insurance company, and Selected Shares corporation, old tenants, have expanded their space.

43 HOMES BEING CONSTRUCTED ON KEENEY'S FARMS

Forty-three new homes are now under construction on Keeney's Lake Street Farms on Lake street, a little west of Bloomingdale, which is evidence, Mr. Keeney states, of the interest the public has in small farms. Mr. Keeney some time ago divided a 240 acre farm into 115 small farms of one, two, three, four, and five acres. They sold rapidly.

"This home building activity isn't the result of promotion work of contracting companies," said Mr. Keeney. "The owners, in almost every case, are doing the greater part of the work themselves, as well as planting hundreds of trees and shrubs and cultivating many vegetable gardens."

Electric service is soon to be installed in forty of these homes, and many of them are to have gas service also.

Jesse Livermore Rents Estate at Lake Forest

Jesse L. Livermore, well known Wall street operator, who secretly married Mrs. A. Warren Noble, Omaha society woman and concert singer, last month at Geneva, Ill., yesterday leased a large residence at 1200 North Green Bay road, Lake Forest, from the estate of Fred A. Preston. The term is from May 15 to Oct. 1. Mr. and Mrs. Livermore are now living at 232 East Walton place.

BRIDGE OF SHOPS PLANNED FOR 23D STREET ENTRANCE

Plans were announced yesterday for what will be the World's Fair second "Ponte Vecchio." With the famous bridge at Florence in mind, M. H. Colman & Co. are to erect a series of shops on both sides of the section of the 23d street bridge east of the I. C. right of way. They have leased air rights for their project from the Century Service corporation, which will operate a vast parking station for 7,000 cars under the bridge and north and south of it.

According to Mr. Colman work will start within a few days, but it'll not be possible entirely to complete the bridge shops for the opening day. There'll be two rows of shops on each side of the bridge, 378 feet long, with a covered walk between.

The space will be divided into 125 spaces, each twelve feet wide, and arranged so that any number can be used for one tenant. It's expected to have a large restaurant at the northeast corner of the bridge, overlooking the fair grounds. C. W. and George L. Rapp are the architects.

The entire Rialto Bridge concessions, as the project is called, will be just outside of the fair grounds. Inside the fair, extending from the 23d street plaza to Northerly island, will be another "Ponte Vecchio"—a bridge lined with shops. The fair authorities, however, have given it the commonplace title of "Circle bridge."

EXPECT RECORD ATTENDANCE AT REALTY MEET

World's Fair to Be Great Drawing Card.

With the World's Fair as the great drawing card for the 26th annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, to be held in this city June 12 to 17, a record attendance is predicted. Of the several thousands expected by the more optimistic at least one thousand will be women, according to Mrs. William H. Wright of Oak Park, chairman of the ladies' convention executive committee. Most of the thousand will be wives and daughters of the realtor delegates to the real estate gathering.

MRS. HENRY G. ZANDER JR.

Mrs. Wright is being assisted on the executive committee by Mrs. Henry G. Zander Jr., wife of the president of the Chicago Real Estate Board, and Mrs. Herbert U. Nelson, wife of the secretary of the national association. Mrs. Wright stated that many prominent Chicago society women and noted civic figures, such as Mrs. Graham Aldis [Dorothy Aldis, the authoress], Jane Addams, and others will assist in entertaining the women guests at the convention.

Plan Series of Tours.

"While our program is not yet definitely outlined, we've decided on certain features," said Mrs. Wright. "These will include a tea and style show at one of the large department stores, a series of tours throughout Chicago and its suburbs, and three dances. One dance will be at A Century of Progress, the second at the Stevens hotel, and the third at the Chicago Real Estate board rooms.

"Among places to be visited on the motor tours will be the University of Chicago, Chinatown, Maxwell street, Hull house, the Fair grounds, the parks, Northwestern university, the Art institute, the planetarium, Field museum, Shedd aquarium, the principal bathing beaches, the leading outlying communities, many of the suburbs, and possibly the stockyards.

Headquarters at Stevens.

"In addition we're planning a shopping tour of the loop department stores and are arranging for several lake excursion trips. In fact, we hope to entertain the women at the convention every morning, afternoon, and evening they are here.

"The women's convention headquarters will be in a suite at the Stevens hotel. In addition there'll be an information bureau at the Chicago Real Estate board, which is acting as host to the convention delegates. Miss Catherine Cotter will be in charge."

MILLINERY CHAIN RENTS STORE IN MARQUETTE BLDG.

Millinery Stores, Inc., have leased the store at 54 West Adams street, in the Marquette building, for a ten year term at an undisclosed rental. The firm, which operates forty stores throughout the west and midwest states, has five in Chicago. The space just leased will be its first loop unit. It will open in about two weeks after extensive alterations. W. H. Ames of L. M. Willis & Co. represented the lessee and Earle Shultz, agent of the building, represented the lessors.

FANNIE MAY TO HAVE NEW STORE IN MILWAUKEE AV.

The Fannie May Home Made Candy Shops yesterday leased the store at 2662 Milwaukee avenue from V. and William Vaselopolus for a three year term on a percentage and guaranty basis. Gilbert Keebler of E. F. Keebler & Co. was broker for the lessee. The new store, which will open next Thursday after considerable alterations will take the place of the branch shop at 2545 North Kedzie boulevard, which has been in operation for the last eight years.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago for the week of April 28 to May 4, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled fifty-eight, with a combined total cost of $366,300. Of these twenty-nine contracts, totaling $217,000, were at the world's fair. Outside the fair there were twenty-nine, totaling 149,300. There were ten building permits issued at the city hall calling for an expenditure of $26,750.

WANTED MEN—WOMEN

Ambitious to Get Into Business For Themselves.

OWNER-MANAGERS NEEDED FOR NEW "CHAIN STORE" SYSTEM NOW SWEEPING COUNTRY.

Chance to Make Up to $15 a Day

NO CAPITAL OR EXPERIENCE REQUIRED.

How would you like to be the Owner-Manager of a new kind of "Chain Store" with a chance to earn as much as $15 in a day? You won't have to invest a penny in stock or fixtures. I'll show you how to operate right from your own home.

A Real Opportunity.

L. C. Van Allen of Illinois quit a $23-a-week job to start one of my "Chain Stores" and shortly afterward reported earnings of $125 in a single week. Mrs. B. L. Hodges of New York says, "Making more money than ever before . . . from $18 to $20 a day." W. A. Marek, 21-year-old Connecticut boy, has often earned over $100 a week. These exceptional earnings show the tremendous possibilities of my wonderful new plan.

Brand New Plan.

My "Chain Store" plan is entirely different from all others. I supply groceries and other household products to people direct from my mammoth factory. At first you'll distribute introductory packages of my products in your community. For this work you must be satisfied to earn $25 to $30 a week at the start. Then your work will be calling on steady customers, taking their orders, delivering the goods and handling the money. This is the work with which Mr. Van Allen, Mrs. Hodges, and Mr. Marek made such unusual profits.

No Experience Needed.

If you think you would like a steady position that will be just like running your own business write to me and I'll send you all the facts. Don't hesitate because you haven't experience. You don't need it. You can take my word for it and I'm the head of an old, reliable million-dollar company. I'll PROVE to you how simple it is. The more quickly you mail the coupon the quicker I can get you started.

—MAIL COUPON TODAY—

ALBERT MILLS, President,
6759 Monmouth-av., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Without obligation tell me how I can become an Owner-Manager of one of your new "Chain Stores" and make up to $15 a day.

COTTON HIGHER, TRADE ACTIVE; SOUTH SELLING

Cotton prices advanced 17 to 22 points at the start as Liverpool was up equal to about 25 American points and much better than expected. A new high price level was reached which brought active trading with liberal selling for profit, in which the south took an active part.

Toward the last prices weakened and the close on futures in Chicago was at net gains of 4 to 7 points, with other markets up 1 to 9 points. Spots were up 5 points at New York at 8.60 cents; New Orleans up 20 points at 8.35 cents; Galveston, 8.30 cents, and Houston, 8.40 cents.

There has been liquidation on for several days and it is said to be well over. Trade sentiment seems to favor buying on all weak spots. Prices follow:

ALL LIVE STOCK NEAR TOP MARKS FOR THIS YEAR

Cattle, Lambs Up Sharply; Hogs Gain Less.

Cattle and lambs last week made a sweeping advance to the highest price levels in two months, shunting aside the few bits of bearish news that were more effective in halting the upturn in swine toward the end of the week. Hogs closed 10 cents under the high point of the week, but 15 cents higher than a week ago, with the top at $4 and the average at $3.90 yesterday.

All live stock compared very favorably with other periods this year. The week's average price of cattle at $5.25 stood within 10 cents of the highest weekly price since Christmas. The hog average at $3.90 was the same as a week ago, but only two weekly averages have been higher since last October. Lambs averaged $5.85, highest since the week ending Jan. 28.

Hogs Higher at Chicago.

While hogs were not as susceptible to the bullish element, as were cattle and lambs, Chicago prices have held relatively higher than those at other points in the country, despite the fact that local receipts have been heavier than at other points. Members of the trade attribute this to the fact that packers here anticipate a marked increase in demand for meat during the World's Fair and are stocking up.

However, current demand is fair and the accumulation has not been large, despite the largest receipts of cattle and hogs this season. During the last two weeks Chicago packers slaughtered 268,000 swine, making a total weight of 67,000,000 pounds. The total number compared with 195,506 for the two preceding weeks and with an average of 190,000 for two-week periods over the last two months.

Packers are said to be making a little money on hogs at going prices. They were invariably on the "red" side of the ledger when the market was down around a 3 cent average. Soaring grain and security markets, the highest hide and wool prices in many months and the marked improvement in some food products were the bullish factors in the trade.

Expect Orderly Meat Market.

It was estimated late in the week that the weekly flow of money from all packing centers back to the farmer has been increased $4,000,000 by the advance in live stock over the low point of the winter. Fresh meat that must be moved immediately into consumption has been the high hurdle for live stock for many months. The creeping advance of the last two weeks in fresh meat prices was cheering news, although the rise in this end of the packing house market was slight.

No sharp recovery is anticipated in the fresh meat trade. After all, packers point out, the unemployment situation is the main factor to be considered, and any big bulge in the fresh meat trade would seem inordinate, without a corresponding gain in employment. A slow orderly rise in meat prices is to be hoped for, they contend.

The GUMPS.
ALMOST SUFFOCATED BY THE HEAT AND SMOKE, THE TWO BOYS HUDDLED BENEATH THEIR WET BLANKET UNTIL THE FIRE BURNED THROUGH ONE WALL OF THE SHACK— THEN, FIGHTING FOR THEIR LIVES, THEY BROKE THROUGH THE FLAMES AND ESCAPED—
SIDNEY SMITH
IT'S TOO BAD WE HAD TO BURN THEIR SHACK DOWN LIKE THAT—WELL— IT SERVES THEM RIGHT— THEY WOULD HAVE LEFT US THERE TO DIE—
WHAT A SIGHT TO SEE THE SMOKE BILLOWING UP TOWARD THE SKY— AND THE FLAMES ROARING AROUND THE VERY SPOT THEY HAD JUST LEFT—
IT WAS A DESPERATE TRICK— BUT IT WORKED— CHESTER AND HIS NEW-FOUND PAL HAVE ESCAPED AT LAST FROM A DREADFUL FATE IN THE OLD SHACK AT THE HANDS OF THE MOUNTAIN DESPERADOES— BUT EVEN AS THEY WATCH THE ROOF CAVE IN AND THE WALLS CRASH, WHAT IS THAT FEARSOME SOUND THAT COMES TO THEM OUT OF THE STILL NIGHT AIR? IT IS THE CLATTER OF HOOFS, DOWN THE CANYON— RED RIGGLES AND HIS GANG HAVE SEEN THE FIERY GLARE IN THE SKY FROM AFAR AND ARE RACING LIKE MAD BACK TO THEIR CAMP— WHERE WILL THE TWO BOYS HIDE NOW?
GEE— HERE THEY COME— DO YOU THINK WE CAN ESCAPE?
HELP ME MOVE THESE ROCKS AWAY— QUICK!
JUST THE THING— IN THE NICK OF TIME THE BOYS DISCOVER A CAVE IN THE WALL OF THE NEARBY CLIFF— NO TIME TO LOSE NOW—
NO SOONER HAD THEY CRAWLED INTO THE CAVE THAN RED RIGGLES AND HIS MEN GALLOPED UP— HOW THE BANDIT LEADER'S EYES NARROWED TO THIN SLITS AND HIS JAW JUTTED OUT IN GRIM FURY AT THE SIGHT THAT MET HIS EYES— HIS SHACK IN RUINS— BURNED TO THE VERY FLOOR-BOARDS— AND NO SIGN OF HIS TWO LITTLE PRISONERS—
THOSE LITTLE SCOUNDRELS! THEY'LL PAY FOR THIS—
WHAT A ROAR OLD RED-WHISKERS LET OUT— THE SHACK WAS IN EMBERS— ONLY THE FLOOR WHICH THE BOYS HAD SPRINKLED WITH WATER REMAINED—
THANK OUR STARS WE GOT HERE JUST IN TIME TO SAVE THE FLOOR—
THE TREASURE— THE TREASURE— WHAT ABOUT IT? IS IT SAFE?
OH— SHE'S HERE— THE BAGS OF GOLD ARE STILL HERE—
AND HERE'S THE BOX OF CASH— THEY DIDN'T GET AWAY WITH A THING—
LEAVE IT TO OLD RED AND HIS BOYS TO HIDE THE SWAG— WHEN WE HIDE A THING IT STAYS HID—
IT'S A LUCKY THING WE HAD THE $50,000— IN PAPER BILLS LOCKED IN THIS IRON BOX—
IF THE FLAMES HAD EVER GOTTEN AT THAT IT WOULD HAVE BEEN JUST TOO BAD—
WE GOT TO PLANT THIS STUFF SOME PLACE QUICK— BEFORE DAYLIGHT COMES AND SOME ONE SEES IT—
THERE'S AN OLD HOLE BACK OF THOSE ROCKS IN THE SIDE OF THAT CLIFF— IT'S JUST THE THING TILL WE GET A GOOD PLACE—
LOOK AT THAT FINGER— POINTING RIGHT AT THE VERY SPOT THE TWO BOYS ARE HIDING—
THAT'S THE STUFF— SHOVE IT WAY BACK IN THERE—
NO ONE WILL EVER KNOW IT'S HERE—
ROLL THOSE BOULDERS UP CLOSE— WE CAN'T TAKE ANY CHANCES—
DON'T WORRY— THIS CAVE IS AS GOOD AS A SAFE— AND WE'RE THE ONLY ONES THAT KNOW THE COMBINATION—
AND NOW TO CATCH THEM TWO RUN-AWAYS— THEY CAN'T BE FAR— GIDDAP!
BREATHLESS, CHESTER AND HIS PAL WAIT FOR THE CLATTER OF THE HOOFS TO FADE OFF DOWN THE VALLEY— HOW THEY ARE CHUCKLING TO THINK THAT IT IS FOR THEM THE DESPERADOES ARE SEARCHING— AND SO CLOSE TO HIS BOOT THAT IT CLINKS WHEN CHESTER MOVES HIS FOOT, LIES THE TREASURE— BAGS AND BAGS OF GOLD—

GASOLINE ALLEY
by J. King
FRIENDS, LAST WEEK SPUD AN' WHIMPY AND YOUR ANNOUNCER SKEEZIX, RESCUED A SUNKEN BOAT AND HAVE MADE HER SHIP-SHAPE FOR AN AFRICAN CRUISE AND EXPLORATION TRIP. TODAY WE OUTFIT HER. NEXT— WELL TUNE IN NEXT WEEK AT THIS SAME HOUR AND SEE FOR YOURSELF.
I'VE GOT CANNED GOODS AN' A RADIO AN' AN ALARM CLOCK— BECAUSE WE'VE GOT TO SHOOT THE SUN AT EXACTLY 12 O'CLOCK NOON EVERY DAY.
HOW WE GOIN' TO SHOOT THE SUN IF WE HAVEN'T GOT ANYTHING TO SHOOT IT WITH?
I'VE GOT AN AIR GUN I CAN BRING ALONG.
SHUCKS, YOU CAN'T SHOOT THE SUN WITH THAT!
WHAT DO YOU SHOOT IT WITH?
I DUNNO. ONLY I KNOW THAT'S WHAT THEY DO OUT ON THE OCEAN.
HEY, DON'T LOAD HER UP BEFORE SHE'S LAUNCHED. SHE'S HEAVY ENOUGH TO HANDLE WITHOUT A CARGO.
GEE, I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT.
YA, WE'D BETTER SEE IF SHE'LL FLOAT FIRST.
WAIT! SHE'S GOT TO BE NAMED BEFORE SHE HITS THE WATER.
TOO LATE! SHE'S HIT!
LOOK! SHE SWIMS!
SURE SHE SWIMS! WHAT DID YOU THINK?
GEE, FELLAS, THERE'S A SWELL NAME FOR HER— I SWIM!
THAT'S NO NAME. WHOEVER HEARD OF SUCH A NAME?
LET'S CALL HER DAWN OR PETUNIA OR SOMETHING.
WE DON'T WANT ANY SISSY NAMES LIKE THAT.
HOW ABOUT ROVER OR SEA URCHIN?
YES OR SPRAY?
THE INDIANS NAMED THINGS AFTER THE FIRST THINGS THEY SAW. OR THAT SOMEBODY SAID. I THINK I SWIM WOULD BE KEEN.
OKAY. YOU'VE GOT TO PAINT IT ON, SKEEZIX.
YES, PICK OUT SOMETHING YOU CAN SPELL.
I CAN SPELL I SWIM, ALL RIGHT.
SKEEZIX! YOU'RE PAINTING IT UPSIDE DOWN.
THAT'S WRONG!
LOOKS OKAY FROM HERE!
THAT ISN'T I SWIM THAT'S WIMSI!
WHAT OF IT? WIMSI IS A GOOD NAME TOO.
WIMSI
WIMSI IT IS. NEXT WEEK WE'LL BE ALL READY TO GO EXPLORING TO AFRICA.
YEP, WE'LL BRING BACK IVORY AND GOLD.
AN' I WANT TO GET A COUPLE OF PYGMIES ABOUT SO HIGH FOR PETS.
TO BE CONTINUED.

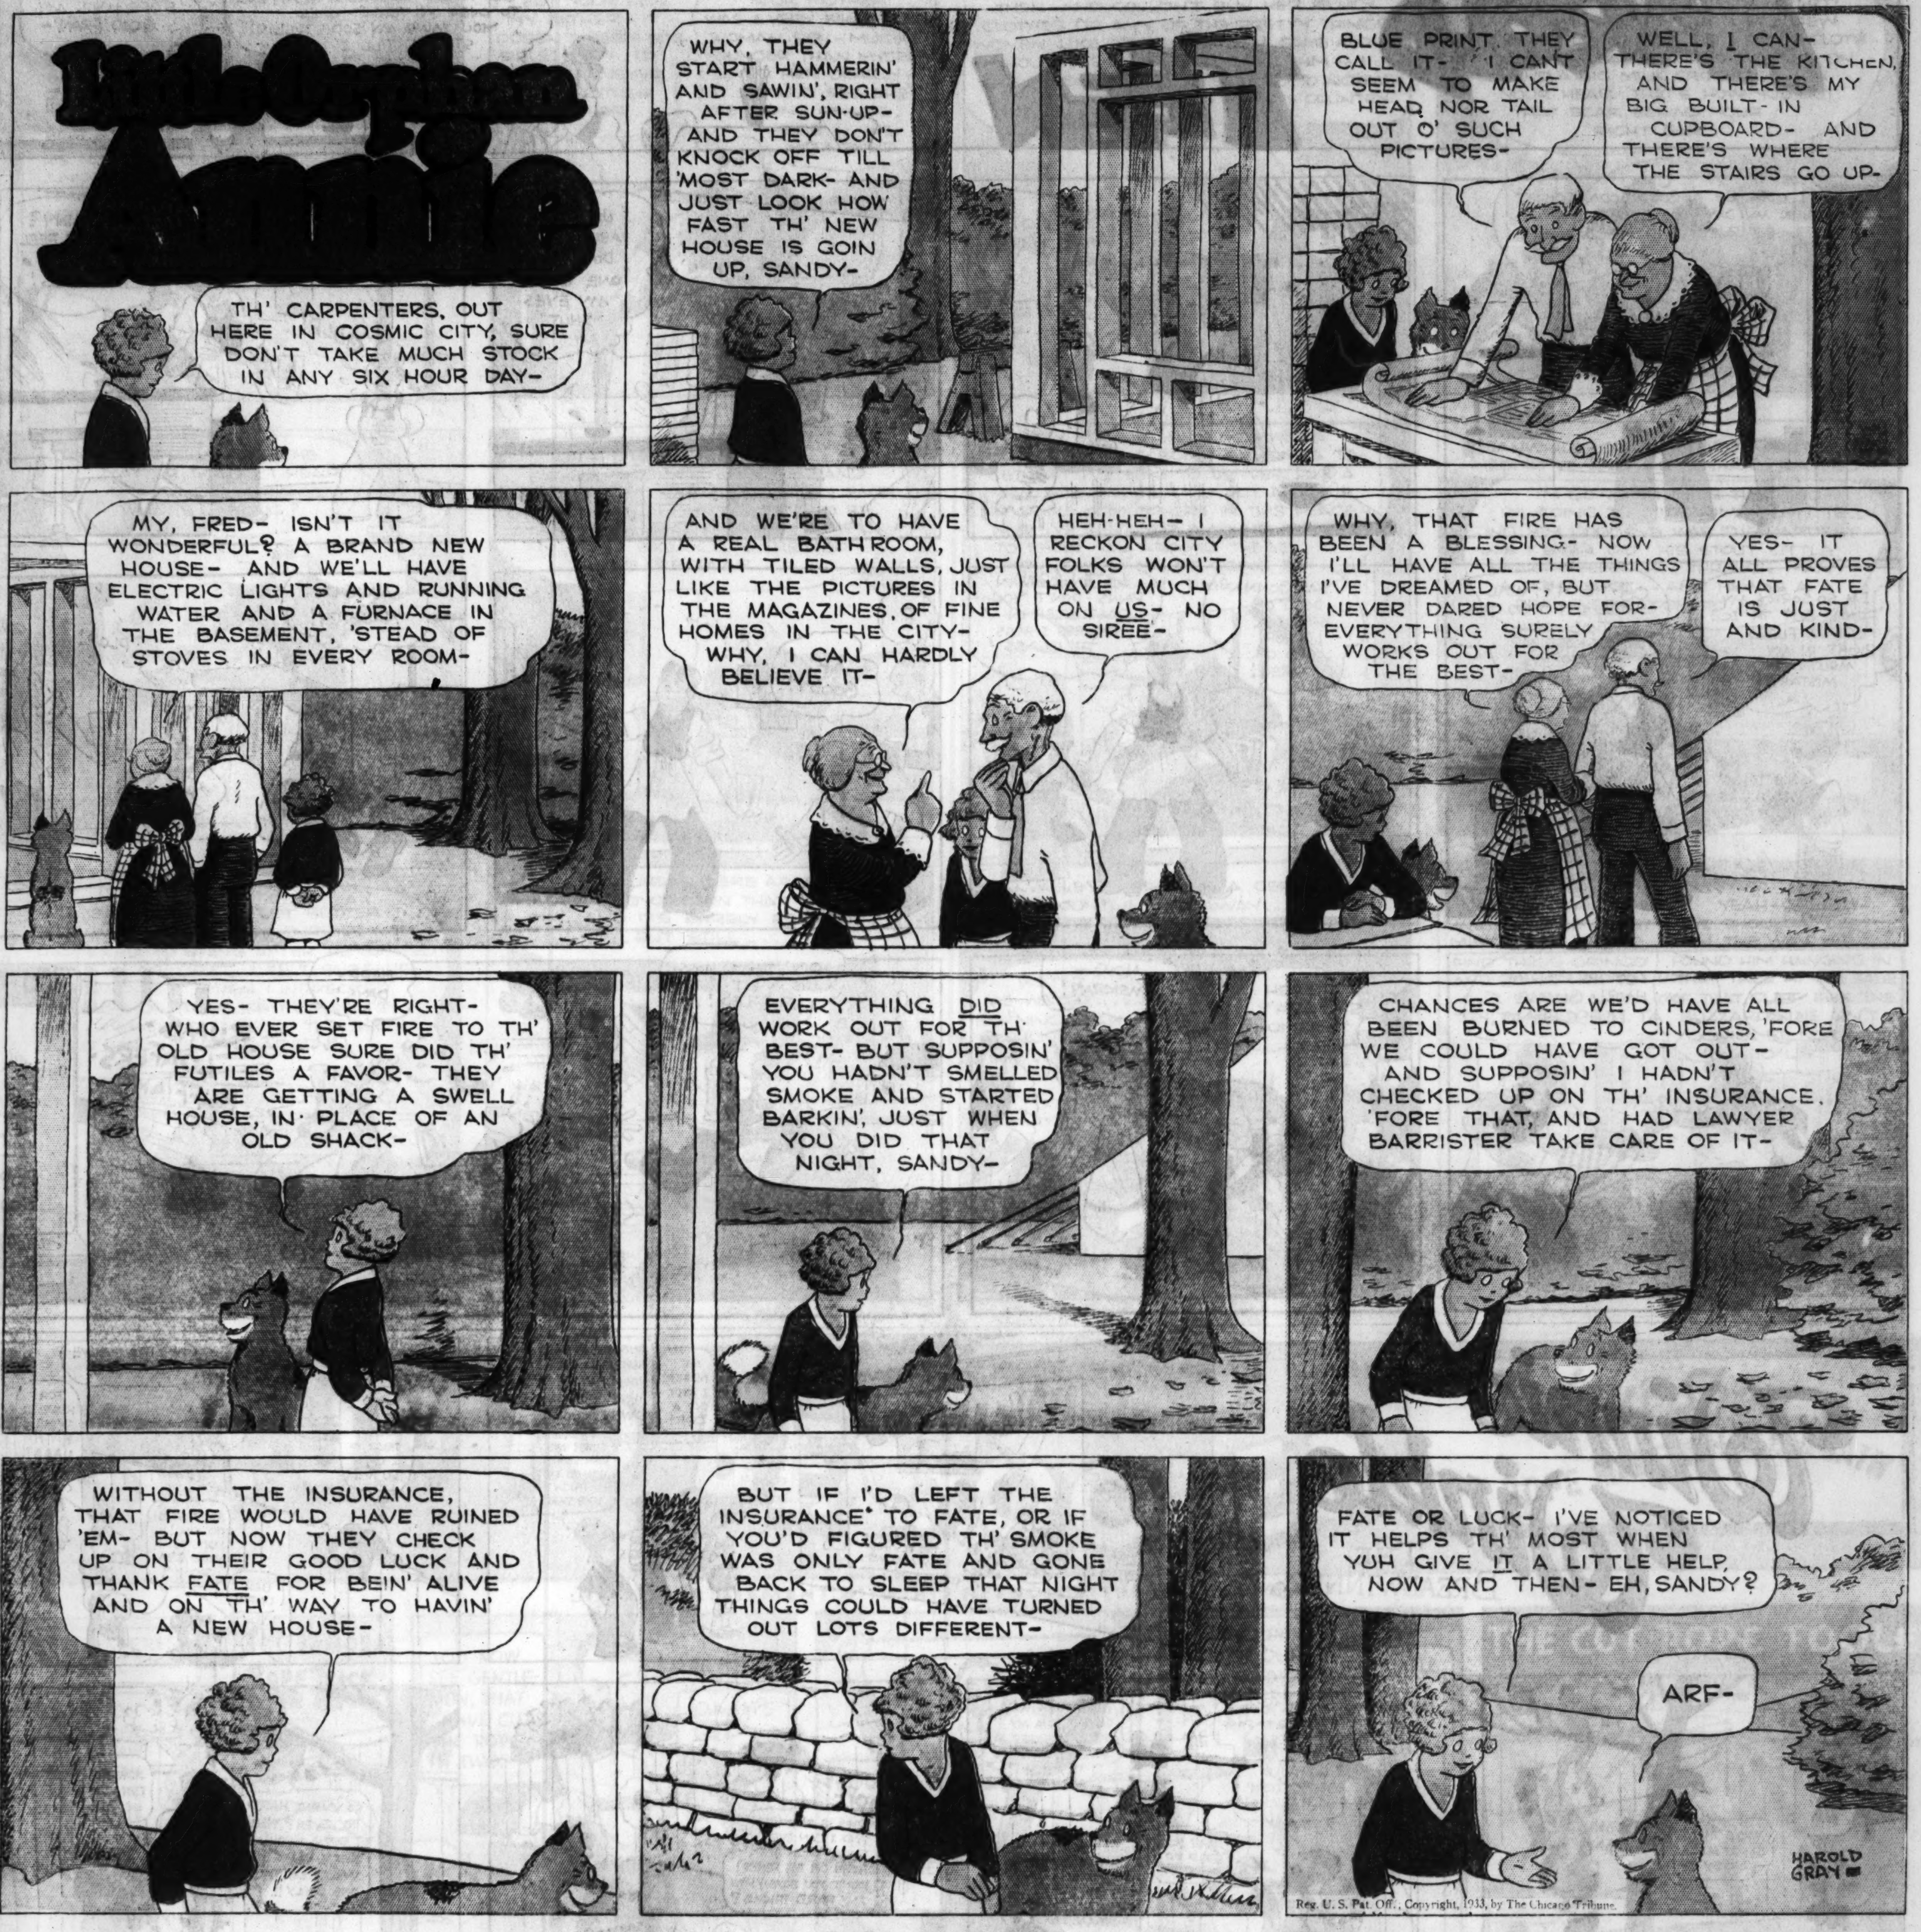
I SUPPOSE I SHOULD BE THANKFUL THEY'RE NOT GREAT DANES.

IT RAINED CATS & DOGS.



Little Orphan Annie
TH' CARPENTERS, OUT HERE IN COSMIC CITY, SURE DON'T TAKE MUCH STOCK IN ANY SIX HOUR DAY-
WHY, THEY START HAMMERIN' AND SAWIN', RIGHT AFTER SUN-UP- AND THEY DON'T KNOCK OFF TILL 'MOST DARK- AND JUST LOOK HOW FAST TH' NEW HOUSE IS GOIN UP, SANDY-
BLUE PRINT THEY CALL IT- I CAN'T SEEM TO MAKE HEAD NOR TAIL OUT O' SUCH PICTURES-
WELL, I CAN- THERE'S THE KITCHEN, AND THERE'S MY BIG BUILT-IN CUPBOARD- AND THERE'S WHERE THE STAIRS GO UP-
MY, FRED- ISN'T IT WONDERFUL? A BRAND NEW HOUSE- AND WE'LL HAVE ELECTRIC LIGHTS AND RUNNING WATER AND A FURNACE IN THE BASEMENT, 'STEAD OF STOVES IN EVERY ROOM-
AND WE'RE TO HAVE A REAL BATH ROOM, WITH TILED WALLS, JUST LIKE THE PICTURES IN THE MAGAZINES, OF FINE HOMES IN THE CITY- WHY, I CAN HARDLY BELIEVE IT-
HEH-HEH- I RECKON CITY FOLKS WON'T HAVE MUCH ON US- NO SIREE-
WHY, THAT FIRE HAS BEEN A BLESSING- NOW I'LL HAVE ALL THE THINGS I'VE DREAMED OF, BUT NEVER DARED HOPE FOR- EVERYTHING SURELY WORKS OUT FOR THE BEST-
YES- IT ALL PROVES THAT FATE IS JUST AND KIND-
YES- THEY'RE RIGHT- WHO EVER SET FIRE TO TH' OLD HOUSE SURE DID TH' FUTILES A FAVOR- THEY ARE GETTING A SWELL HOUSE, IN PLACE OF AN OLD SHACK-
EVERYTHING DID WORK OUT FOR TH' BEST- BUT SUPPOSIN' YOU HADN'T SMELLED SMOKE AND STARTED BARKIN', JUST WHEN YOU DID THAT NIGHT, SANDY-
CHANCES ARE WE'D HAVE ALL BEEN BURNED TO CINDERS, 'FORE WE COULD HAVE GOT OUT- AND SUPPOSIN' I HADN'T CHECKED UP ON TH' INSURANCE, 'FORE THAT, AND HAD LAWYER BARRISTER TAKE CARE OF IT-
WITHOUT THE INSURANCE, THAT FIRE WOULD HAVE RUINED 'EM- BUT NOW THEY CHECK UP ON THEIR GOOD LUCK AND THANK FATE FOR BEIN' ALIVE AND ON TH' WAY TO HAVIN' A NEW HOUSE-
BUT IF I'D LEFT THE INSURANCE TO FATE, OR IF YOU'D FIGURED TH' SMOKE WAS ONLY FATE AND GONE BACK TO SLEEP THAT NIGHT THINGS COULD HAVE TURNED OUT LOTS DIFFERENT-FATE OR LUCK- I'VE NOTICED IT HELPS TH' MOST WHEN YUH GIVE IT A LITTLE HELP, NOW AND THEN- EH, SANDY?

WHAT'S THAT THING THEY'RE BUILDIN'?
THAT, MADAM, IS THE NEW MONUMENT TO ETERNITY- NOTHING CAN EVER DESTROY IT-
IT IS FOUNDED ON SOLID ROCK- IT IS PROOF AGAINST THE ELEMENTS AND THE RAVAGES OF TIME- IT DEMONSTRATES MAN'S MASTERY OVER NATURE-
IT WILL STAND FOREVER-
YEAH? THAT'S A LONG TIME, AIN'T IT?
WELL, MAYBE SO- IT'S QUITE AN IDEA, ANYWAY- IT'D BE INTERESTIN' TO SEE HOW IT WORKS OUT-
HA! THERE'S SOME O' THOSE NEWS PICTURES PASTED IN TH' WINDOW- IT'S ALMOST LIKE TAKIN' A TRIP, TO SEE THOSE PICTURES O' FOREIGN LANDS AND STRANGE PEOPLE AND THINGS-
HM-M-M- RUINS OF AN ANCIENT CITY THEY'VE JUST DUG UP- NOW THAT'S INTERESTIN'- BEEN BURIED FOR OVER TEN THOUSAND YEARS, THEY FIGURE-
STREETS AN' HOUSES, NOT SO MUCH DIFFERENT FROM WHAT WE HAVE TODAY- AND THEY FIND WHAT APPEARS TO BE TH' RUINS OF A MONUMENT, AND PART OF A TABLET-
IT SEEMS THIS MONUMENT WAS BUILT TO LAST FOREVER, BUT THERE'S NOT ENOUGH LEFT OF IT TO GIVE 'EM MUCH IDEA WHAT IT LOOKED LIKE- TH' WHOLE PLACE WAS WIPED OUT, TEN THOUSAND YEARS AGO-

DICK TRACY
AFTER BEING PERSUADED TO STAY WITH HIS FATHER AT LEAST TEMPORARILY — JUNIOR REMAINS IN COLORADO WHILE TRACY SPEEDS BACK EAST. IT WAS AGREED JUNIOR SHOULD GO EAST AGAIN SOON TO VISIT TRACY. MEANWHILE — HANK STEELE HAS PLANNED FOR THE BOY'S SCHOOLING AND EDUCATION . . .
BUT YOUR BEIN' MY FATHER — IT DOESN'T SEEM POSSIBLE! WHY, I'D DECIDED I NEVER HAD NO FATHER 'N' MOTHER.
YOUR MOTHER WAS A VERY BEAUTIFUL WOMAN, SON — MUCH YOUNGER THAN MYSELF. I LOVED HER DEARLY — BUT I COULD SEE SHE WAS TIRING OF LIFE HERE IN THE MOUNTAINS.
I WAS JUST A POOR PROSPECTOR THEN — AND COULDN'T BUY HER FANCY CLOTHES OR ANY OF THE PRETTY THINGS WOMEN LIKE — BUT WHEN YOU CAME ALONG I THOUGHT SHE MIGHT CHANGE — HM — I WAS WRONG! IT ONLY SEEMED TO INCREASE HER HATRED FOR THIS MINER'S COUNTRY.
YOU WERE A SPRY LITTLE GEASER RIGHT FROM THE START! WHY, WHEN YOU WERE JUST A FEW WEEKS OLD YOU PULLED A TABLE CLOTH THAT HAD SOME DISHES STACKED ON IT AND A BIG MILK CROCK FELL ON YOUR HEAD. THAT'S HOW YOU GOT THAT SCAR BEHIND YOUR RIGHT EAR.
WHY.. WHAT'S THE MATTER, SON?.. I HEAR SNIFFLING... SAY... WHAT'S WRONG?
OH — I KNOW YOU'RE MY FATHER — AND YOU LOVE ME.. AND ALL... AN' I'M GLAD WE FOUND EACH OTHER.. BUT... I DON'T WANT TO BE AWAY FROM TRACY — HE GAVE ME MY FIRST BREAK.. HE TREATED ME REGULAR.
NOW YOU LISTEN TO ME — WE'RE GOING TO HAVE SOME BIG TIMES TOGETHER. I'VE SENT TO DENVER FOR A NEW HOUSEKEEPER — TO PUT A LITTLE HOMELIKE ATMOSPHERE IN THIS PLACE — AND I'VE SENT FOR A YOUNG FELLOW TO SHOW YOU AROUND THESE MOUNTAINS — YOU'RE GOING TO HAVE A GREAT TIME!
MEANWHILE — TRACY SPEEDS EASTWARD — MEDITATIVE AND SOMEWHAT WORRIED . . .
I'M GOING TO MISS THAT KID — I'M GOING TO MISS HIM A LOT! TELLING HIM GOODBYE WAS THE HARDEST JOB I EVER DID. HIS STOUT LITTLE HEART PULLED HIM THROUGH MANY A TIGHT SPOT — AND HE WAS A REAL INSPIRATION TO ME . . .
BUT I'D FEEL A LOT BETTER IF I WAS ABSOLUTELY SURE OF WHAT HAPPENED TO STEVE AFTER HE JUMPED OVER THAT PRECIPICE. I FELT SURE HE WAS DEAD — BUT WHEN I INSPECTED THE BASE OF THE CLIFF I COULDN'T FIND A SINGLE TRACE OF THE BODY — IT HAD DISAPPEARED!
OF COURSE, THERE ARE A LOT OF COYOTES IN THAT VALLEY.. MM.. AND IT'S BARELY POSSIBLE. — BUT STILL — .
MEANWHILE.... BACK IN A CERTAIN MOUNTAIN HIDEAWAY...
WATER.. GIVE ME WATER.... I'M BURNING UP.. I CAN'T STAND IT.. OH, MY LEG.. MY LEG.. WATER..
HERE Y'ARE, HOMBRE.
SENOR — I THINK WE MAKE ZE GREAT MISTAKE WHEN WE FIND THEES GRINGO AND BRING HIM TO OUR SHACK AND TRY TO HELP HIM.
YEAH — GREASY — WE SHOULDA LEFT HIM THE WAY WE FOUND HIM HANGING IN THAT TREE AT THE BASE OF THAT CLIFF FOR THE BUZZARDS. HE AIN'T GONNA BE NO GOOD TO US.

THE ALPS MOVE RIGHT INTO YOUR KITCHEN when you taste this GORGEOUS SWISS CHEESE

THEY USED to say that only a Swiss could make Swiss Cheese. But Borden has disproved that. Borden has actually out-Swissed the Swiss. Borden has brought you the grandest Swiss Cheese that ever made an appetite glow with joy. And not because we say so either. Hundreds of people tasted both this cheese and imported Swiss without knowing which was which—and the great majority of them voted for Borden's Swiss. Just get a package at your grocer's—and taste it. Then try to stop eating. You'll keep right on and on. For here is glorious Alpine flavor—here is richness—here is sheer mellow goodness. And the more of Borden's Swiss you use, the more economical you'll find it is. There is no waste. There is no rind. It is easy—very easy—on your pocketbook. Makes Your Child Hungry Even for Vegetables

And Doubles the Amount of Milk He'll Drink

By Aiding Digestion and Speeding Up Digestion, This Remarkable Food Discovery Actually Creates the Feeling of Hunger. Such Things as Spinach and Milk Are Taken More Willingly—And More Nourishment Gained from Other Foods Eaten.

HERE'S real news for every mother with a growing child. Especially if your child rebels at milk and "won't" eat vegetables!

For science has at last discovered an amazing natural way to make "poor eaters" eat. Not merely "tempt" the appetite—but a way to create the actual sensation of hunger!

A way to make the fussiest children hungry enough to relish any sort of normal, healthful food—even such vegetables as spinach, carrots and lettuce. And to double the amount of milk they'll willingly drink each day.

Literally Creates Hunger

Called Ovaltine, this unique discovery has been endorsed by more than 20,000 doctors and child specialists. It acts two ways to create hunger in the "fussy" or "picky" child.

First: Besides being extremely nourishing and easy to digest—it is particularly rich in the appetite-producing Vitamin B.

Second: Important and unique—Ovaltine contains a high proportion of a remarkable food element called "diastase." This substance has the ability to digest the starch content of other foods regularly taken into the stomach.

This means that Ovaltine not only aids a child's digestion, but also has the power to speed up the process so the stomach is emptied sooner. This, in turn, makes a child hungry. For hunger is a sensation caused by the walls of an empty stomach drawing together.

Quicker Digestion—Added Weight

This speeding up of the digestive processes is tremendously important. For specialists will tell you that the child with slow digestion is the one who eats poorly—who shuns vegetables—who objects to drinking milk.

But once digestive processes are accelerated, a definite change takes place. The old objection to everyday foods gradually disappears. Milk is readily taken (because it's delicious when Ovaltine is added) and even a "vegetable-hunger" is built up day by day!

With better appetite and increased nourishment, weight is usually added at the rate of a pound a week or more—steady gains in excess of 5 pounds a month have frequently been reported.

See for Yourself

For the sake of your child, try Ovaltine. Note how eagerly he commences to eat the vegetables and other healthful foods he formerly refused. Keep track of the extra amount of milk he drinks each day. Note, too, the almost immediate increase in weight—in nerve poise, and in strength.

You can get Ovaltine at any drug or grocery store—directions are on the can. Or, if you prefer to try it before you buy, mail coupon below for trial supply.

NOTE: Thousands of nervous people, men and women, are using Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. During the World War, medical authorities made it a standard ration for invalid, nerve-shattered soldiers. It is also highly recommended by physicians as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged.

FRENCH STYLES SERVED À LA CARTE

Paris Couture Now Trying to Please Clients

Customers Pick Outfits to Suit Own Figures, Needs, and Their Pocketbooks.

By BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—(Special.)—The way in which the Paris style moguls toss off summer styles for grand occasions, which most of us never have, may seem foolish, but there's a reason behind it. New faces are popping through the too sacred portals of the big dressmakers, and there's a paucity of the once-familiar million-dollar lineaments that used to make the couture cash registers work at white heat.

A yard or so of chiffon and a string once served to keep this instrument ringing up five-and-three-zeros francs per, all day long in spring and summer. Today, the new breed of customer is one who takes her clothes à la carte, and picks something that suits her own digestion—which doesn't like fat figures and skimpy uniform clothes. Customers being in such demand, the dressmakers have gone back to that quaint old custom of trying to please. Hence, the big variety of fare; hence, the styles à la carte.

Semi-precious clothes are having a run here in Paris, where the social season gets hectic when the weather is fine in May and June. Women around town wear them a lot because they ignore the 7 o'clock closing law for daytime styles, and because they are not too precious to wear before dark.

Laxity About Clothes.

There's a great laxity about the rules for these clothes. They come entirely à la carte, and though variously dished up they are decidedly in style. A grim minority of ladies, backed by their pet dressmaker, are wearing mannish dress-up clothes, but they are grim and minor. The clothes that have an atmosphere of the 1900 era are much more numerous. Great popularity is given to wide brimmed hats strewn with flowers or ribbon, and to foolish little bonnets of lace, both out of that era. Big, fat quantities of 1933 faces look better for this bit of 1900 shadowing-down of imperfections. Veils, too, are slung over any and all kinds of millinery structures.

Dead-black frocks of chiffon, starched organdy, and such semi-transparent stuffs are right on top of the dizzy peaks of Paris chic for afternoon and evening. Women who go in for dead-black also huddle into little transparent shoulder capes of cotton or silk cut with a kind of quaint skimpiness. Capes, in fact, give atmosphere and chic to the biggest class of semi-precious clothes this summer—the purely modern, simple kind that outnumbers the other kinds by a juicy quantity. The Famous Forty keep on being simplicity-drunk, you might say, and wear clothes that merge into the fashionable atmosphere instead of yelling out startling style messages.

Ankle-Length Skirts.

Paris has accepted the ankle-length skirt for any wear that could be dubbed formal, either afternoon or evening. You see them at the races and under dinner tables, or on the dance floor. Printed silks, rather than chiffon dresses, with ankle length skirts and either matching jackets or little swagger wraps of transparent material, draw a big gate of fashionables. Pure white prints

Above is the way, with lace and chiffon, 1900 is made 1933 by Chanel. The hat is on a wire frame.

PARIS SNAPSHOTS

The smart bride may go away in bright red this summer. Worth has designed a vivid red tailored suit in which Mlle. de Gaiffier d'Hestroy started off on her honeymoon after her recent marriage to Comte de Mortemart.

Wool materials with gold woven into them somewhere are being worn by some fashionable Parisiennes. Princess Faucigny-Lucinge wears a gold-dotted beige wool ensemble from Worth at the races.

Girls with a head for chic are wearing their hair brushed back, and banked high with curls at the back. Combs and metal circlets are permitted to keep it in place.

Hands across the scene of Paris styles are clad in organdie, pique, satin, taffeta, and net gloves this summer. Fingerless mittens of silk from Patou are also seen.

The Mushroom Gives Delicious Fillip to Meal

Select Long Stemmed for Stews, Soups, Stuffings; and Short for Broiling.

BY MARY MEADE.

YOU don't believe in elves? O, you must! Surely you've seen those wandering rings of green and brown on the lawn—or in the park where pixies have frolicked and worn out the grass? And haven't you noticed, every time May showers fall, that prudent fays put up their umbrellas and sit snuggly under till it's bright again?

But if you have not—still the gods smile. For sprites run off with the sunrise—but leave their umbrellas behind them! And it's upon these squat parasols which mushroom up so obligingly when it rains—that our cook's tale hangs this morning.

It seems that it all got started ages ago when the ease-loving Romans lolled luxuriously and dunked a strange new fungus in wine sauce. About the same time Grecian epicures were waxing ecstatic over that same delicacy baked with snails. A good bit later a classifying Frenchman decided it must be a moss and called it "mousseron." Day before yesterday grandfather found it in the woodlot and grandmother served it up as "mushrumps." Yesterday small brothers accused it of being "toadstools," and let it strictly alone. . . . And today, with glass houses and dark cellars working overtime to supply the demand, the gay kitcheneer, with smart dinner plans in her eye, orders "mushrooms" by the pound from her pet grocer . . . rolls up her sleeves . . . and the fun is on!

Appetizing Variations.

First try a snappy meat and mushroom canape. Or perhaps some mushroom-glorified fish snacks for appetite teasers. Or, if you appetized the folks with chilly fruit juices, follow with a cream soup lusciousness floating the palest bits of mushroom gills and topped with crunchy croutons. Or for a luncheon entree, make it butter-broiled mushroom caps, served up on toast with a dash of minced parsley and paprika. But more of that in a jiffy.

For its a big relief to be able to raise huzzahs over mushrooms because we like them—and not because somebody vows that they'll make brain, brawn, or beauty. And it's the cheerful truth. Mushrooms just can't claim much in the way of nutritive value. They're too large a percentage of water.

They do, however, boast a pretty good dose of vitamin B to insure husky appetites and normal growth. They even chalk themselves up with a large amount of iron—almost as much as spinach can claim. And since iron in foods is a safeguard against anemia, that's something to toot the horn about. But all in all we eat them—because we just can't let them alone!

So, to start off with a palate tingler for the first course. Did you clip the tangy mushroom and mince ham canape recipe that I gave some time ago. If not, you will welcome it now.

Mushroom, Ham Canape.

To make broiled mushroom and ham canape cut thin slices of bread into rounds (use a baking powder can top or a cookie cutter) and toast them on one side only. Now spread the untoasted side with a mixture of equal parts of minced pickle or relish and deviled ham, moistened with mayonnaise. Add a sprinkling of lemon juice. Have ready fresh cleaned mushrooms. Slice them in thin slices and place several on each canape. Dot with butter and broil under an open flame. To serve, spangle with paprika and offer with lemon wedges.

Another hunger tempter in the mushroom line is an appetizer which may be served in wee canape dimensions or may be glorified to a luncheon plate size.

For mushroom toast you will need one good sized peeled mushroom cap apiece for each hungering diner. Take in addition about 1½ cups mushrooms, peeled and chopped, plus the chopped stems of the whole mushroom caps. Simmer the cut up mushrooms in a little butter in a frying pan together with a dash of salt, lemon juice, and mace. At the same time, fry the whole caps separately in butter. When all are tender, scoop them out and spread the chopped mixture over rounds of toast which have first been spread with lemon butter. Top each round with a mushroom cap and dust over with minced parsley.

Or it's just as knowing these spring days to appetize the family with soup. And if we can quite truly capture that fresh, tangy mushroom flavor, and swim it in the soup bowl, happiness reigns!

MUSHROOM BISQUE.

2 tbsps. butter
1½ cups minced fresh mushrooms
½ cup finely chopped celery
1 tbsp. minced green pepper
1 tbsp. minced parsley
2 tbsps. minced onion
6 cups meat stock, preferably chicken
1-3 tsp. sugar
Salt, pepper and mace to flavor
½ cup rolled cracker crumbs
1 cup cream or evaporated milk

Melt the butter and add the finely chopped vegetables, simmer for 7 minutes, add the seasonings and meat stock, and let cook gently till the vegetables are tender. Just before serving add the cream and cracker crumbs.

Next for tips for mushroom cooksters. First, don't over cook. The flavor of mushrooms is very delicate. Long cooking destroys it. Select fresh mushrooms which are white or creamy in color, firm and moist. Avoid shrunken ones or caps that are dry and rubbery. Dark spots as a rule are a sign of decay. If you are interested in stews, soups, or stuffings, select the cheaper, long stemmed mushrooms. If they are to be for broiling, the large-capped, short-stemmed ones are the thing. You may figure that to serve 4 persons with broiled mushrooms you will need 1 pound of them. If they are to be creamed, 1 pound will serve 5 or 6.

Then about skinning. If your mushrooms are fresh and tender, skinning should not be necessary. When you cut the whole mushroom for creaming, do it from top to bottom, leaving the stem on and making the slices thin. And don't ever throw away these stems. For instance, when big fat fellows are to be stuffed, chop the stems and use them as part of the filling. This way—

MUSHROOM FARCI.

6 large white mushrooms
1 tbsp. butter
2 tsps minced onion
1 tsp. minced parsley
3 tbsps. chopped meat
2 tbsps moist bread crumbs
Salt and pepper to taste

Clean the mushrooms and peel, removing the stems. Chop these stems and simmer in the butter till tender. Then add the onion, parsley, meat, crumbs, and seasoning. Moisten with hot water and pack back into the 6 caps. Sprinkle buttered crumbs over the tops and slip onto a baking sheet. Bake in a moderately hot oven [375 degrees F.] until the mushrooms are tender—about 20 minutes.

Or, if time is precious, let it be baked mushrooms conjured in the most delicious, yet quickest possible way.

BAKED MUSHROOMS.

1 lb. fresh mushrooms
1 tsp. salt
Dash of pepper
3 tbsps. butter
¼ cup cream

Clean the mushrooms and place them in a baking dish. Season and dot with butter. Add the cream and bake, covered, till tender in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.]. Most mushrooms will need about one-half hour to cook. The recipe will serve four.

Another versatile mushroom creation is simply a savory mushroom sauce. Try it on steaks and on all sorts of meat patties and croquettes. Blanket it over vegetable fritters or cereal croquettes. Serve it with souffles or omelets filled with bits of meat or more mushrooms. A hundred uses turn up once we pick up the knack of preparing—

MUSHROOM SAUCE PIQUANT.

2 tbsps. butter
3 tbsps. flour
1 cup meat stock or water.
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
½ cup sliced mushrooms
1 tsp. minced onion
2 tbsps. minced green pepper
1 tbsp. tomato catsup

Melt the butter and blend with it the flour. Heat gently until the flour has browned. Add the stock and cook till the sauce boils. Then add the seasoning and simmer 6 minutes longer. Now cook the mushrooms, onion, and green pepper for 7 minutes in an additional tablespoon of butter. Finally add them, with the catsup, to the waiting brown sauce. Serve hot.

MUSHROOM OMELET.

6 eggs, separated
¼ cup water
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
2½ tbsps. butter

Beat the egg yolks till fluffy. Add the seasonings. Beat the egg whites till stiff, adding the water when half beaten. Fold the yolks and whites together and pour into a hot frying pan containing the melted butter. Bake in a moderately slow open [325 degrees F.] for 25 minutes. Then take out, crease in the middle with a knife, and spread mushroom sauce over one-half. Fold over and turn out onto a hot platter with parsley garnish.

SCRAMBLED MUSHROOMS.

Prepare a regular egg scramble with seasoning to taste and 1 tablespoon of milk for each egg used. Add ½ cup of chopped fresh mushrooms for each 6 eggs and turn the mixture into a hot buttered frying pan. Cook gently, with frequent stirrings until all the egg is cooked. Serve hot on buttered toast.

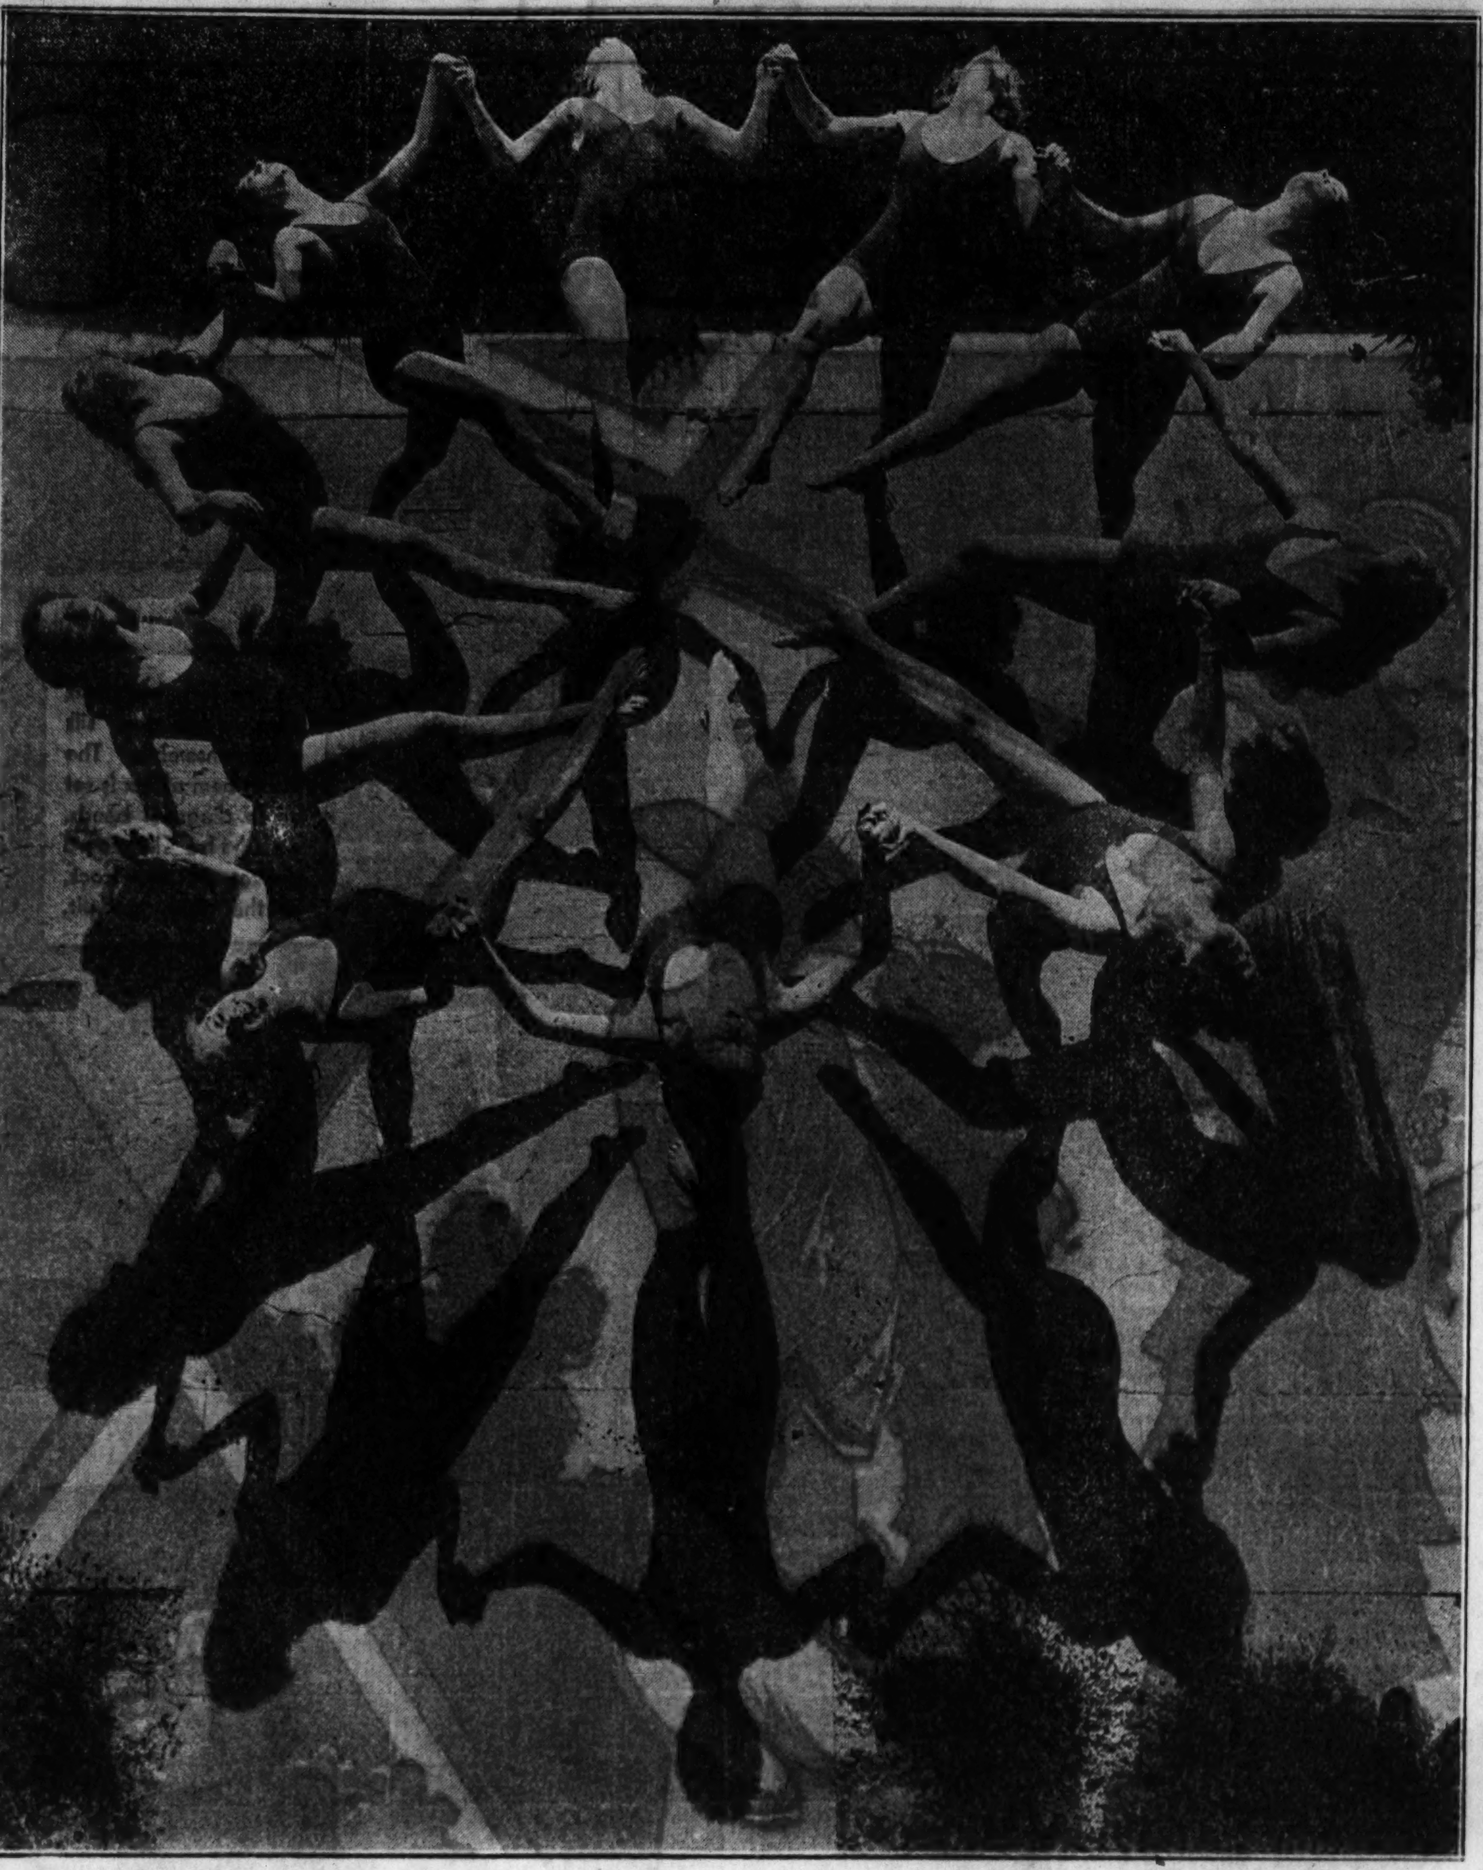
Point the Toes Straight Ahead for Foot Comfort



Ruth St. Denis dancers rehearsing a routine automatically go through the leg exercises that insure foot health and beauty.

The Exercises Designed to Strengthen the Arches Take Only a Few Minutes Daily but Will Prevent Many Hours of Pain.

By Antoinette Donnelly.

AT the first ache or pain in the arch or up the back of the leg, take action. Begin to toe straight ahead, even turning the feet in slightly. Walk a chalk line for practice, if necessary. Learn to walk without pounding your heels. When you stand point the toes straight ahead and hold the feet three or four inches apart for better balance. Keep the ankles straight and support your weight on the ball and heel of the foot.

Pull up your chest to get a better weight distribution on your feet. Throw away shoes with sagging arches. And keep your heels straight, never letting them run down.

Promiscuous buying of arch supports is not advisable. If supports need to be worn, they should be fitted expertly to the individual arch need. An orthopedist is the one to consult in an emergency.

Simple Exercises to Strengthen the Arches.

In the early stages of arch trouble, the arches can be strengthened with exercises.

To strengthen the long arch that extends from heel to toe, do the simple rising on the ball of the foot and down lightly on the heel. Up and down. Up and down—twenty, thirty times. Also walk around on your toes.

Walk, toeing in slightly, around the room.

Stand with the feet parallel, keep the toes on the floor, and raise the inner border of the sole up and out, keeping the knees straight. Repeat a number of times.

Sit or stand with the feet parallel on the floor. Spread the toes, then pull them in and under as if gripping the carpet.

Sit with the knees crossed. With the foot of the leg on top describe circles. Reverse the knee position and circle with the other foot.

Do the arch exercises in bare or stockinged feet.

Sterilize Instruments Used in Home Treatments.

A good chiropodist is recommended strongly for the immediate relief he can give a corn sufferer. His [or her] implements are so efficient and so carefully sterilized and the general skill of the performance is so satisfactory that it is foolish to go around for days and weeks suffering agonies. Possible infection from careless work or from unsterilized implements is eliminated with the choice of a reputable chiropodist. The fee is usually moderate.

Relief can be got from home treatments, but you must be careful about using only sterilized paring and cutting implements. You can sterilize them by boiling them for five minutes. Corns should be cut down only after the bath.

Soft corns between the toes are created by heat and moisture and shoe pressure. Medicated talcum dusted between the toes will give relief, and a bit of cotton will absorb the moisture.

If the corn festers, full strength peroxide should be applied on medicated cotton and laid on the spot for a few minutes. Dust afterward with an antiseptic powder. Sprinkling sulphur between the toes is an old remedy. But the main thing is to keep the feet clean, dry, and free of perspiration. The shoes, after wearing, should be dried out and aired. Looser footwear should be adopted until the areas are well cleared.

After a hard corn has been pared down, apply a lotion made of 15 grains extract of cannabis indica, 1 dram of salicylic acid, and 1 ounce of flexible collodion. Mix well and apply with a tiny camel's hair brush, repeating nightly until the corn disappears. There are good corn remedies on the market if you don't want to bother preparing the above.

Painful corns should first be treated to several applications of tincture of iodine to subdue the pain before attempting to pare or treat them.

Rounded Corners Lead to Ingrowing Nails.

Cut the nails straight across. Don't try to round off the corners. This, together with the precaution of having your footgear neither too short nor too narrow, will prevent ingrowing nails.

If an ingrowing nail has reached the very painful stage, scrub the toe thoroughly with a small brush, then lift the ingrowing corner of the nail and push a small pledget of cotton into the space. Slowly increase the size of the piece of cotton until the edge of the nail is permanently lifted above the flesh and the irritation stops. If the flesh shows signs of growing over the nail, push it back and fasten it in position with a strip of oxide of zinc plaster.

Rub callous spots with pumice to smooth down the hard skin. Grease the part with vaseline or cold cream to soften it. Soaking the feet in hot water into which a handful of sal soda is thrown may preface the pumice rubbing or other form of removal.

Cold, clammy feet indicate poor circulation. General circulatory improvement must be sought. More exercise is needed. Try cold water showers on your feet after a warm dip, and then rub briskly with a towel. This will stir up the circulation.

Foot gymnastics help, such as lowering and raising the body on the toes, practicing dance steps, and bending the feet from the ankle joints. Rope skipping is good. Anything that will set the blood in motion will help.

After a day of shopping, standing long hours, or dancing until the feet are weary, throw a handful of coarse salt into a foot tub of fairly hot water. Let the feet soak a couple of minutes. Then turn on the spray, letting it run cold and colder. Rub briskly, powder, and you will find relief.

Semi-Precious Outfits Created for Parisienne

Plain, unpatterned silks are worn even more than printed materials, when Paris dresses up for semi-precious goings-on. The simple white silk frock, shown at the lower right, is one on which some of the most fashionable women have put their money. It is girlish, and a kind of slap in the face to masculinity in modes. Schiaparelli, who made it, gives it a modest square unadorned neckline, fits it to the waistline with tucks, and ties it up with a sash of self material that wears its bow on the left side back instead of the center back. The skirt is a slightly flared gored affair. The sleeves are made of three rows of quaint green satin ribbon embroidered with bright flowers. They are stiffened so they stand out in triple ridges away from the arms, and widen the shoulders. The bag, made of the same satin ribbon, is closed by a gold bar, and is the only accessory necessary to this frock.

Worth Ensemble of Black Chiffon, White Organdy.

At the extreme left is a picture of Worth's most successful informal evening gown, called Kebas. It is made of extra heavy black chiffon, cut princesse, and with wide bands of white, tucked organdy making a sort of yoke around the arms, held together by a diamond bow-knot pin across the chest. This dress buttons down the back on diamond buttons, so it's easy to get into. The little white organdy cape, shown in the foreground, has five tiers with tucked edges. Among the smart women to select this model are Comtesse Elie de Ganay and Comtesse Henri de Beaumont.

The all-black frock that has the French okay is shown in upper left. This is a Chanel creation, and adorable. It is made of black chiffon and black lace, the ankle length skirt being covered with alternating bands of chiffon and lace that are ruffled at the sides. This skirt is only gracefully wide—not at all flared. The black chiffon blouse is surpliced in front, and fastened at the right side of the waistline under a little bow of black lace. One big rever edges the right side of the surplice, which is filled in with a ruffle of black lace that makes a tour around the neck in back.

A tiny lace capelet covers the shoulders and ends in the raglan seams of the sleeves in front. The loose, three-quarter length sleeves are edged with lace. The small hat is made of black lace on a fine wire frame and has a bow at the back into which a pink rose is tucked.

Next to this Chanel frock on the right is shown a Molyneux ensemble that the simplicity-ridden sisterhood picks every time. It is elegant and dignified, and made of black silk crêpe patterned with white flowers. The medium length jacket is straight and loose, with a small collar and three-quarter length sleeves. It is hemmed with pale beige fox, set on in slanting, overlapping bands. The ankle length dress is made with a bias cut, slightly flaring skirt, and the simplest of bodices with short, slit, kimona sleeves and a neckline draped up to a bow on the right shoulder. The belt is a crushed girdle of the silk, and the big, black leghorn hat is trimmed with white ribbon.

These models represent four brands of semi-precious clothes that are favorites of the fashionable woman in Paris.

145,000 Women, Girls Without Homes in U. S.

Nearly 145,000 women and girls are among the estimated 1,250,000 persons without homes in the United States.

Families Can Live Amicably in Same Home

Situation Demands Daily Exercise of Patience and Much Tolerance.

done. Two families can live under one roof and extract comfort and happiness from each other's company there.

"Perhaps a word of testimony from one in my situation," volunteers Mrs. O. L., "may give comfort or encouragement. It is altogether possible and not so difficult as at first appears to live happily under such conditions.

"After having lived under my own vine and fig tree for many, many years conditions became such that it seemed best I should come into my son and daughter-in-law's home. They have a family of three. This was an altogether unexpected move for me. At first I was hardly prepared to acquiesce. I had been in public service for so long, with an office of my own. But after I saw the move was unavoidable I consented.

Realized Her Presence Was Burden in Home.

"I realized that it could not be other than a real sacrifice to them to have the regular order of their home changed, and knowing their financial conditions, I knew I was adding to their burden. So I determined that I would not unnecessarily increase their burden and would observe the following:

"First, not to interfere with suggestions concerning methods of conducting the household.

"In no case to interfere with their privacy.

"To deny myself, if necessary, in order to render whatever little services I could.

"To refuse absolutely to entertain uncharitable, unkind, or suspicious thoughts, or to believe that I might be an unwelcome guest.

"I soon began to appreciate that they were making real sacrifices for me and without complaint. There could be no other sequence to this than that I came to love my daughter-in-law dearly.

"I am daily practicing the counsel of a sainted mother—to keep the two bears, Bear and Forbear, with me always — the finest lubricant where otherwise there would be friction. Of great value, I believe, is my fixed purpose, to which I've strictly adhered, to make no complaint to any one or to permit myself to say one word that could be construed as family gossip.

"For the party of the second part [the other in-law], being patient with the 'second childhood' of the older one is needed. It might help them to remember that there was a time when this older dependent found it a real joy to minister to helplessness."

Living Together an Art That Life Should Teach.

From a matron whose last two years have been spent under an in-law's roof we have this advice:

"The greatest needs are understanding, tolerance, and patience. These should come from both sides—but particularly from the younger folk, as they, at least, have hope and faith in the future and, in most cases, their nerves can better stand the strain.

"Of course, arguments will arise. Though they may not be completely avoided they can be treated lightly—and forgotten quickly. Living together is an art which life should teach us. A simple application of the golden rule will help.

"I should like my own home. I should like more control over my son's management and environment. I should like to be able to entertain, to be able to express myself in a number of ways—but this living together is an emergency which will not last forever, so I must make the best of it."

Benefits Do Accrue from Necessary Doubling-Up.

Because one cannot have things all her own way, Mrs. John K. thinks the in-law problem is intensified through inability to see the benefits that do accrue from the necessary doubling-up.

A fairly large country house near a beach, where the youngsters get health benefits not possible in the city, is but one of Mrs. John K.'s advantages, which she doesn't forget. True, she'd like her own home. But the in-law parents never make it apparent that they'd like theirs to themselves. So, Mrs. John maintains a sympathetic silence on this and other of the usual features that disrupt the peace of such households.

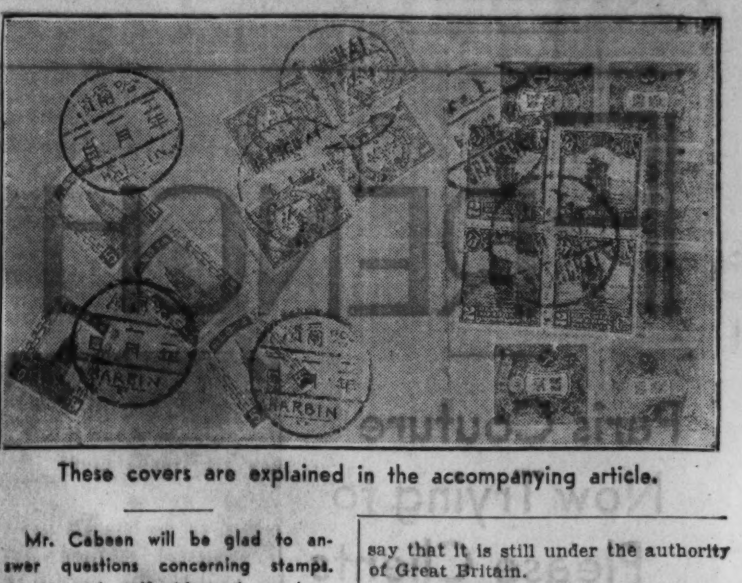
Some of the in-law parents are angels in disguise, as "Spanish" will testify. Married a year and a half, Spanish and her mate are permitted to live under the roof of her husband's people and save money. Very little is asked of them. The parents desire to see the young couple set up in their own nest as soon as possible. The young husband and wife work. They come home from business and are met with a smile and a good hot supper. Some daughters-in-law would find it convenient to complain of the supper, no matter how good or hot. But not this one. She can't be too grateful to the older woman for her kindness—and she's not afraid to express her gratitude in words and frequent little tokens.

And that's how some folk manage to turn an emergency need into a venture minus the prejudices, bickerings, and ugliness common to two families under the roof.

Trousers Are Prohibited for Minneapolis Women

Women in Minneapolis, Minn., are prohibited from adopting the mannish mode of trousers. An ordinance, passed in 1877, specifies that "no person shall appear on any street, or in any public or exposed place in the city in a state of nudity, or in any dress not belonging to his or her sex."

The Stamp Collector



These covers are explained in the accompanying article.

Mr. Cabeen will be glad to answer questions concerning stamps. A stamped, self-addressed envelope should be inclosed in case a personal reply is desired.

By Richard McP. Cabeen.

FOLLOWING the suspension of the Chinese postal service in the Manchurian provinces, a series of stamps was issued for the new republic of Manchukuo on July 26, 1932. These were no doubt printed in Japan. The Republic of China does not recognize the new republic and there is no postal treaty between the two countries. The covers in the illustration show how mail matter is apt to be treated unless there is a convention binding the various countries to respect the stamps of each other. Both covers are addressed to Shanghai, the first originating in Harbin and is franked by Manchukuo stamps to the value of 25 fen.

These were necessary in the new republic but not recognized in China, for the cover bears Republic of China postage due stamps to the value of 26 cents. The second cover was mailed at Mukden and bears 18 sen in Japanese stamps, which apparently are good for postage in Manchukuo. These stamps likewise are not recognized by the Chinese authorities, for China and Japan are not speaking, let alone writing to each other, and 13 cents has been collected from the addressee as evidenced by the Chinese stamps canceled at Shanghai which overlap the original Japanese stamps.

The Manchukuo postage stamps come in two designs, one of which is shown on these covers. This has a pagoda for the central feature. The other set bears a portrait of President Pu Yi who was formerly the emperor of China.

Uruguay Airmail.

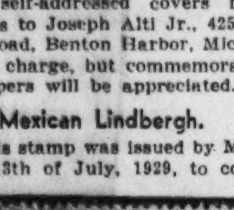
In selecting Pegasus as the symbol of her airmail service, Uruguay made a very happy choice. Pegasus was one of the messengers of Zeus, the mythological god of the ancient Greeks. The particular duty of Pegasus was to carry the thunder and lightning.

Blossom Festival Cachet.

Cachets for the 11th annual Blossom festival, May 7 to 14, and for the Stamp and Hobby exhibit, May 11 to 13, will be sponsored by the Twin City Stamp Club of Benton Harbor, Mich. Send stamped, stuffed, sealed and self-addressed covers for both events to Joseph Alti Jr., 425 Territorial road, Benton Harbor, Mich. There is no charge, but commemoratives on wrappers will be appreciated.

The Mexican Lindbergh.

This stamp was issued by Mexico on the 13th of July, 1929, to commemorate the anniversary of the death of Emilio Carranza which occurred on that day one year before. Originally issued for three months only, it was later made available for continued use by the surcharge "HABILITADO—1930."



New Stamp Issues.

The vote of western Australia to secede from the Commonwealth of Australia is of interest to collectors for it probably means a new issue of stamps for that British colony. Its political status is indefinite, but it is safe to say that it is still under the authority of Great Britain.

Nazi control of Germany will bring an alteration at least in the stamps of that country. Any values which bear the portrait of President Ebert probably will be supplanted by some other design for Ebert's political ideas were at variance with those of the present authorities.

Your Questions.

D. A. W.—The postal rates covering the period during which postage stamps have been used, have been as follows for domestic letters within the United States:

July 1, 1845—Under 300 miles, 5 cents; over 300 miles, 10 cents per half ounce. July 1, 1851—Under 3,000 miles, 3 cents if prepaid, 5 cents if unpaid; over 3,000 miles, double these rates, and all based on one-half ounce. July 1, 1855—Prepayment of postage made compulsory. Jan. 1, 1856—Use of stamps made compulsory. July 1, 1863—Uniform rate throughout the United States of 3 cents per half ounce. Oct. 1, 1883—Rate lowered to 2 cents per half ounce. July 1, 1885—Allowable weight for minimum rate raised to one ounce. Nov. 2, 1917—Rate raised as a war measure to 3 cents per ounce. July 1, 1919—Two cent rate again effective.

Footwear Is Stepping Onward in the Fashion World

Lacings Hold Sturdy but Lightweight Sports Shoes Together; Perforations, Small and Large, in Evidence

Slippers of Silk Moire Featured for Evenings

By Rhea Seeger.

PARK your fancy hats, fancier gloves, and other airy costume trifles and get down to earth about the new footwear collections. They are startlingly different from any you have seen in weeks, very diversified collections, ready for any prowling shopper. You'll see shoes for street, oxfords designed for heavy-going down damp country lanes, sports shoes for active, free striding female athletes, and snappy spectator footwear that will make every one in the grandstand sit up and take footnotes.

Afternoon slippers are as complicated, as intricate as the frilly, filmy afternoon frocks. According to past fashion history, it was a simple thing to acquire a shoe wardrobe. A few classic opera pumps in various colors or color combinations, a smart duet of street oxfords, in either black, tan, or all white—and the job was done . . . but this year you'll probably spend many an hour selecting a good spring and summer assortment.

Sports shoes will take a great many of your best adjectives and a lot of your perfectly good gold standard dollars. Look for the new rubber affairs that are fully capable of fitting as snugly as your own skin. The rubber portion runs horizontally around the heel to each side, and the colorful striped front section meets the rubber at right angles. They are heelless, infinitely attractive, and quite the smartest things you can wear for beach, bicycling, and tennis.

Sports Shoe Held Together by Contrasting Lacings.

Next are the California made, hand laced leather sandals, oxfords, and T strap models with price tags that will make your eyes blink. Contrasting lacings hold the various parts together. In fact there are only about two inches of machine sewing on the entire area of the shoe. You will cheer loudly for these obliging new sports shoes, for you can unlace the upper part, discard the worn sole, take on a new sole, and lace it into the upper part. New soles are supplied from the factory for a very modest sum.

Suede sports shoes have been astonishingly successful. You can buy ginger brown, stone gray, a light golden tan—all with thick, swanky looking crêpe rubber soles. You wear them all day in the country. They are perfect for sailboating, motor boating, golf, tennis, and any other active recreation, besides being decidedly decorative for general outdoor wear.

White shoes will burst into glory the first few warm days. . . . Every knowing buyer insists that white will cover all the smartest feet in town. Buckskins, cool linens, crisp cotton fabrics, and all kinds of open meshed materials. To match all the flattering new shades of natural colored linen coats and suits and frocks, you will be able to find natural colored linen footwear in pumps, oxfords, and T straps.

New Shoe Perforations Both Small and Large.

Shoemakers have practically punched every shoe they have full of holes . . . meshed holes and deliberate perforations, small pin size up to circles that could almost pass for portholes. . . . The newest, smartest summer shoes are literally full of holes. No reason for torrid toes this summer, or, for that matter, frizzled feet. Everything has an air cooled surface, with plenty of ventilation.

And how they trim these summer numbers . . . bands of contrasting colored leather, also perforated, are appliqued on the surface of perforated white areas . . . plain cool novelty cloth pumps are handsomely decorated with insets of light colored mesh. Stunning effects are achieved with light colored mesh insets that are superimposed with dark colored patterns to match the dark color of the shoe. Perfectly matched handbags also with mesh insets decorated with dark colored patterns are available for some of these newer models.

The most important fashion information about hosiery is the fact that all new shades are neutral. . . . The greater number of spring 1933 tints can be worn practically with any colored shoe you may buy. Heather is one of the neutral shades that should take the hosiery buyers by storm. For summer, you will select a lovely sun tanned shade called freckles, a shade that is cool looking, yet summery, and perfect with all white and summer colored footwear.

Ten of Smartest Spring and Summer Shoes.

Ten new spring and summer models have been sketched. . . . No. 1 is the hand laced sports shoe called dun-deer. This is the incredibly featherweight shoe that can outwear half a dozen soles, as you can exchange soles in a few minutes, having sent for extras from an obliging factory.

No. 2 is the simple, well designed suede sports shoe featuring the thick crêpe rubber sole . . . a shoe for active sportswear.

No. 3 is a speckled suede sports model with a fringed flap. It is contrasted with trimmings of leather.

No. 4 is a T strap sports sandal of suede in gray, brown, or tan, trimmed with perforations.

No. 5 is a new white sports sandal made of popular meshed fabric combined with leather. The widened T strap is unusual, and the combination is one of the smartest white models for summer.

No. 6 is a white street oxford, also trimmed with contrasting bands of brown leather that are perforated in the new manner. The straight dark heel does grand things to shorten the foot.

No. 7 is a street oxford of tan suede contrasted with dark brown leather. The heel is new, and various color combinations, such as gray with dark blue, gray with brown, and gray with black, are available.

No. 8 is a gunmetal kid pump, with a bow of grosgrain ribbon and lacings of matching gunmetal ribbon that wander around the entire slipper. The dusky steel gray shimmer of these new, good looking pumps combines with all the various shades of gray wool, silk, and even cottons that every one is wearing.

No. 9 is a new fabric shoe made with contrasting insets of mesh designed to slenderize the foot. Matching handbags of the same fabric and mesh are also available.

No. 10 is the spring and summer evening slipper featuring white silk moire, with geometric trimmings of both silver and gold kid, to match the heel. The silk moire may be tinted to match your evening gowns.

Perhaps 3 R's Are Frills of Our Education

They're Not Nearly So Important as They Were Once Considered.

called the protective foods—the diet that will protect children's present vital growth—that will insure them against future consequences of undernourishment. These are the fundamental foods—the things on which they grow and develop.

Where the depression has concerned schools, where the income of communities has been cut there has been a great deal of talk recently about economizing on the "fads and frills" and confining education to the wholesome, old-fashioned fundamentals, such as the three R's. These budget makers take for granted that the three R's are the fundamentals of education.

But are they? Do readin', 'ritin' 'n' 'rithmetic constitute a protective education? And is it the experts in education, comparable to the food experts mentioned, who recommend for growing minds a diet cut down to the three R's?

Three R's Called Tool Subjects, Nowadays.

I'm afraid not. It may be people concerned with schools who call the three R's fundamentals. It certainly is not those who are educators in the deep, wide and progressive sense of the word who want to cut out everything but these three R's which are, after all, only simple tool subjects.

It is not the real educator who thinks that any right economy is effected in school or city budgets by eliminating all the enriching subjects which tend to make a live, well-rounded, deft, adaptable, thinking person of a boy or girl. And our boys and girls must grow into live, well-rounded, open-eyed, adaptable, thinking men and women in order to live happily and to play their part in the world of today and tomorrow.

If you have not been thinking about these things or if your mind is set you may feel this is an impractical viewpoint of mine, or the viewpoint of a person who is talking from theoretical sidelines. It is not, indeed. However, it may interest you to hear what a well known superintendent of schools has to say on the subject. The educator, Carleton Washburne, said in a recent talk:

"In training our citizens there is also the need for bringing them into close contact with daily living—today's life. Schools in the past and still, to a large extent, are cloistered. They are full of artificial things. We spend a lot of time teaching children things that really don't matter a great deal. We teach them things that aren't related to the life outside.

Many Subjects Considered Irrelevant to Life.

"When they are parsing sentences, when they are learning how to solve algebraic equations, when they are learning many of the rather useless parts of history and geography as commonly taught, when they are dividing a fraction by a fraction—when they are doing most of the things that they are doing in school—they are dissociated from the life that is going on around them."

Carleton Washburne, as you may know, is the superintendent of the Winnetka, Ill., schools. He points out:

"Here we are in the midst of tense, exciting events; the world is changing more rapidly, as I said before, than ever before in its history; the problems that are confronting us are so great that none of us knows what the solutions are—and in the midst of this intense life the children who are to be citizens are given a nice, cloistral education in aridities and things of the past." Isn't that too true?

Teaching Child to Think Is Fundamental.

"Every once in a while in these days of retrenchment we hear people talking about 'cutting out the fads and frills and getting down to the fundamentals.' What do they mean? Do they know what the 'fads and frills' are? They assume that the parsing of a sentence and the dividing of a fraction are fundamentals; and the things which will give children contact with life they call 'fads and frills.'" There is something to bite on.

"The fundamentals, it seems to me, consist of giving children the ability to think through the kind of problems that they as citizens are going to have to face—to think flexibly—to think with a background of understanding of what has happened in the past, but with a freshness of approach that will make it possible for them to get better solutions than we adults have been able to get."

It is that sort of education that the three R's do not provide. Perhaps we should rather call them the fads and frills of our schools and call the others the enriching parts of the curriculum and the fundamentals; that is the really nourishing protective mental diet. For as Dr. Washburne says: "We are going to have to develop a new race of citizens—a race of citizens which is keenly in touch with contemporary life and which approaches that contemporary life not with a set of fixed ideas but with a sense of the livingness—the growingness—of the human organism."

For those who are interested in this kind of education we have a brief list of entertaining books on the subject.

The quotations given here appear in a recent book called "Developing Attitudes in Our Children," published by the University of Chicago Press. The price is $1.50.

Pretty Models Just the Thing for Wear Now

Picture Charts Enclosed Simplify Sewing Tasks of Home Dressmaker.

By Clotilde.

ISN'T the dress made by pattern No. 3251 charming for general daytime wear? It has the smart new cape neckline and a nice feature of it is that you can easily remove the cape and wear the dress without it.

The dress closes on the left shoulder and under the left arm. These closings are not difficult to make if you have the seam lines clearly marked. The front seam edge is turned under to make a hem, and the back seam edge is clipped so it will stand out and make an extension hem. Then the smallest size snaps are put on—spacing them three-fourths inch apart, and setting them in one-eighth inch from the edge.

The waist is cut with the neck square in the front, and high in the back, and long or short sleeves may be used. The six piece circular skirt [with the front and back cut in one with the yokes] is attached to the waist under a removable belt. The side front and back skirt sections are basted to the center front and back sections, turning in the front edges of the side pieces and basting over the front and back pieces—always working from the top towards the bottom. The skirt should then be basted together on the sides, and carefully fitted over the hips.

The cape is buttoned to the front of the waist, and there are stunning buttons to choose from. A navy blue crinkled silk crêpe will be a good choice.

Jumper dresses seem to be as popular for small maidens as for the grown-ups, and this cunning dress made by pattern No. 3404 simply pretends a jumper through its contrasting brief yoked bodice and puffed sleeves. Inverted plaits in front and back provide a graceful fullness at the hem.

The shoulder straps with perky bows complete the dress. The original was made of red and white linen with plain white linen for the contrasting color.

Pattern No. 3320 is for one of those simple sports type dresses that are so becoming. This frock has exceptionally pretty sleeves—large ones that are gathered into fitted bands just below the elbow. The high neckline, and the unusual front line are all smart details. The skirt is in two pieces, and is circular in cut, and there is an inverted plait at the center front, giving a becoming flare to the bottom.

The original dress was in plaided woolen in tones of gray, from pale to mouse gray. The suede belt in brown added chic. Antique gold crêpe with brown crêpe is another nice scheme, so also is navy blue with white.

WINSTON CHURCHILL Tells the Story of Tess of the D'Urbervilles

Famous English Statesman-Author

By Thomas Hardy

This Sublime Old Tragedy of a Young Country Girl Whose Life Was Badly Twisted by Fate Is Set Forth Complete in This Issue.

HERE is tragedy, sublime, inexorable, annihilating. It is tragedy on the grandest scale, but also presented in its most pitiful guise. The author has known how to combine the forces of fate and passion with the weary pressures of humble, frugal, stinted existence. Thomas Hardy's art has drawn together in these pages all the promptings of proud and ancient blood and all the simplicities and embarrassments of poverty. Not only does he slowly close the shears of doom; he tortures with all the pinchers of commonplace need. Yet it is only from so complex and disproportionate a foundation that the character of Tess could have arisen immortal in all its womanhood and nobility.

THE story opens in the Vale of Blackmoor, a fertile and sheltered tract of green fields so small that the hedges look from above like the meshes of a net; a broad, rich mass of grass, and trees, and running streams; the air is languorous and tinged with azure. Here on a May evening the "haggler," John Durbeyfield, was lurching homeward on his rickety legs, his empty egg basket on his arm, when Parson Tringham on his gray mare saluted him: "Good evening, Sir John!"

John was puzzled by the address, and the parson explained that he had been digging out genealogies and discovered in him the representative of the great Norman family of d'Urberville, who once had vast estates and houses in the south and a vault of knightly graves at Kingsbere, but had taken a downward turn in the seventeenth century and sunk into the common ruck. John is dazzled; he sits down by the roadside to think it out, and when a country lad passes by he tells him the news.

"There's not a man in South Wessex that has grander skillentons in his family than I," he says, and sends him for a carriage from the Pure Drop at Marlott.

Outside the village the annual "club walking" is in progress—an ancient May ceremony in which all the women, young and old, dress in white and go in procession to dance in the fields. Tess Durbeyfield, a beautiful girl of seventeen with a skin of cream and roses, masses of dark hair and the stature of a goddess, is astonished to see her father driving past in state, but she cannot leave the dance. A little later three young gentlemen, evidently brothers on a walking tour, stop to watch the proceedings and the youngest, whose name is Angel Clare, stays behind to dance with one of the village girls. His appearance has a grace and distinction such as Tess has never seen and she wishes he had chosen her, but he does not notice her till he is hurrying off to catch up with his brothers. Then he has the same wish, but it is too late.

Tess goes home and finds her parents agog with the new found glories of their birth and state. Her mother, Joan, remembers hearing of a rich Mrs d'Urberville who lives some miles away at Trantridge. She must be a relation and will no doubt welcome her new kinsfolk and help the lovely Tess to a grand marriage. John shambles off to celebrate at the public house, after a time Joan goes to fetch him, leaving Tess in charge of her little brothers and sisters, Liza-Lu, aged 12; Abraham, aged 9, and four still younger.

In the end, Tess has to fetch both her parents home herself, and John is so drunk that he cannot start next morning at 2 o'clock, as he should, to haggle his hens at Casterbridge, so Tess and little Abraham have to go in his stead. Tess falls asleep and the poor old horse, Prince, taking the wrong side of the road, is killed in the dark by the mail cart as it dashes along.

THE loss of Prince spells ruin to the family fortunes and poor Tess, in her remorse for her share in the accident, overcomes her reluctance to thrust herself upon her supposed grand relation The kinship is mythical, for the lady was the widow of a north country manufacturer and money lender who had bought an estate in Wessex on his retirement, and with the aid of a faked pedigree coolly assumed the grand old local name.

But Tess could know nothing of this, and when, by van and on foot, arrayed in her best white muslin, she made her way to The Slopes she was surprised to find a brand new red brick house surrounded by trim lawns and acres of glass, very unlike the notion she had formed of the home of her ancestors While she hesitated at the entrance a young man, evidently the son of the house, came out of a tent on the lawn and asked her business. He was a flashy fellow, the reader perceives, tall, swarthy, near handsome, with full red lips and bold, black, rolling eyes.

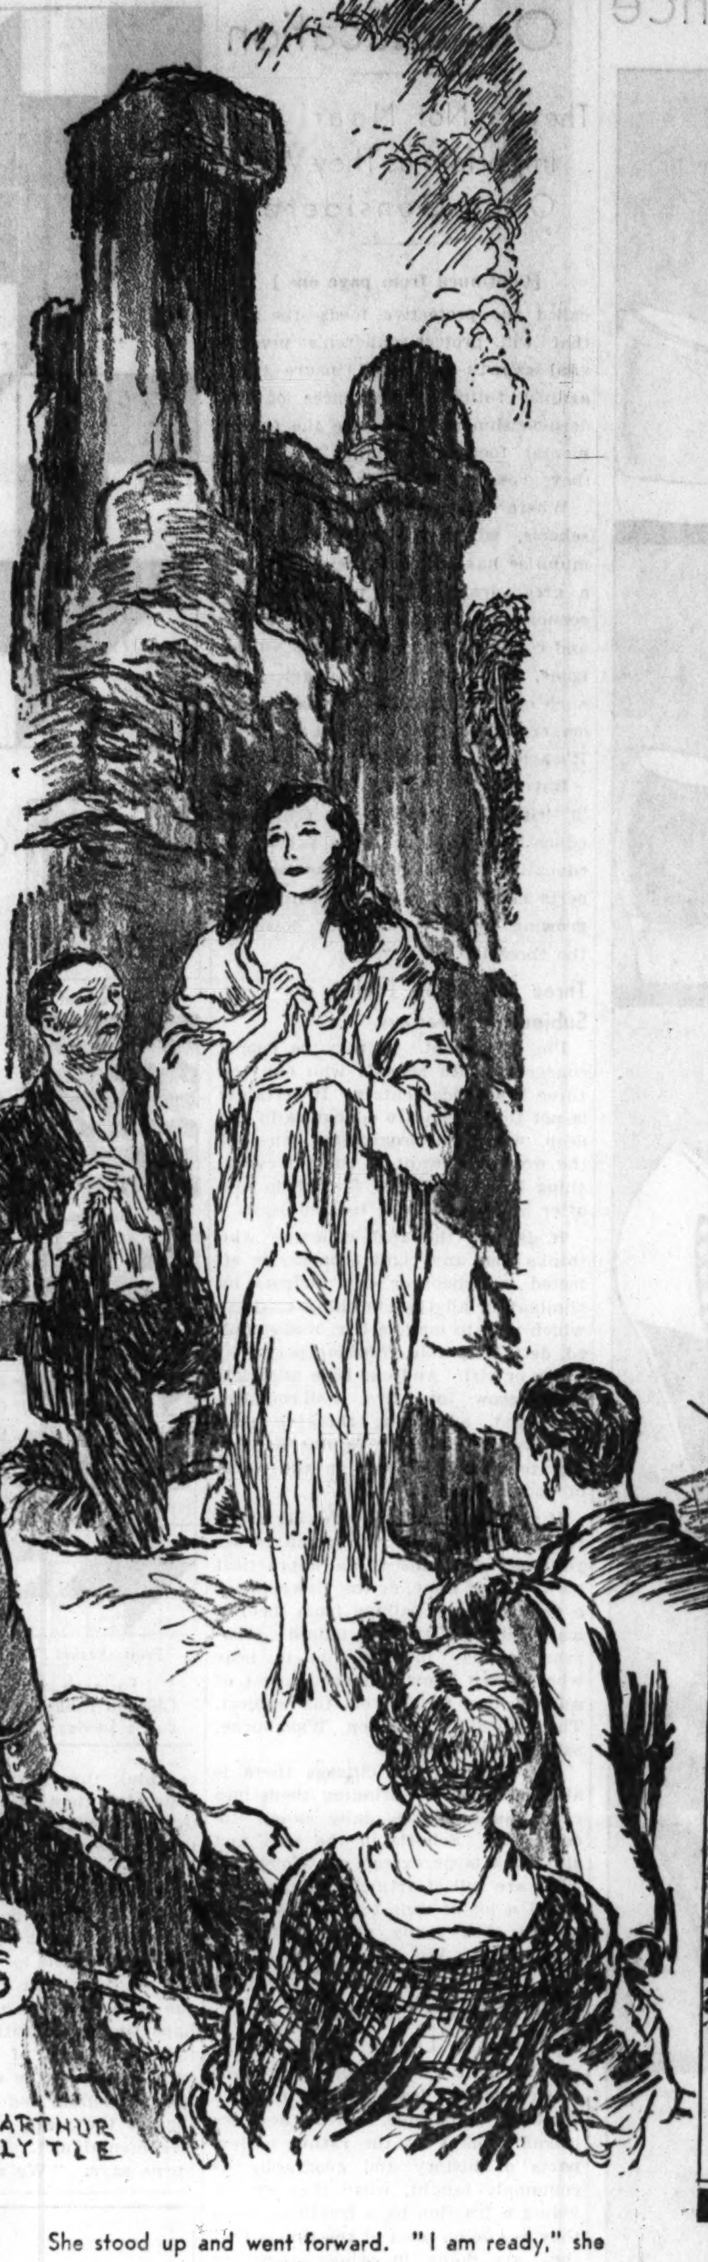
Alec, for that was his name, accepted the cousinship with amusement, fed her with strawberries in the hothouse, and sent her home loaded with fruit and roses. Letters in a masculine hand arrived at the cottage signed with Mrs. d'Urberville's name, offering Tess the charge of a fowlhouse and giving her directions for journeying by cart to The Slopes. But the cart turned out to be Alec's own gig, driven by himself, and his behavior caused Tess such grave misgivings that she let her hat blow off and, after dismounting to pick it up, insisted on walking the rest of the way while Alec drove beside her at a foot's pace.

Her sense of duty to her family held her to her engagement. Mrs. d'Urberville proved to be a blind old lady whose chief interest in life was a daily visit from her cocks and hens, each of which she knew by touch, so Tess was left to her own resources against Alec's persistent advances. For three months she held her own. But then, on the return from a collective expedition of the villagers for Saturday dancing and drinking at Chaseborough (Cranborne), Tess was involved in a brawl and set upon by two jealous castoff mistresses of Alec's, nicknamed Queens of Spades and Diamonds.

Suddenly a horseman appeared upon the scene and came to the rescue. It was Alec d'Urberville. Taking her upon his saddle, he rode off with her through the autumn mist towards the Chase forest. After a time they were lost and he bade her wait for him while he sought the road. When he came back she was sleeping on the leaves and ferns. There in the darkness and the silence, under ancient oaks and yews, he had his will of her. Doubtless, suggests the author, some of Tess d'Urberville's male ancestors rollicking home from a fray had dealt out even more ruthless measure towards the peasant girls of their time.

The next phase is nearly a year later. Tess in her trouble has been received into her happy-go-lucky family with whimsical disappointment but little reprobation. She has passed through many pains of soul and body. The bogus d'Urberville had disappeared — Tess had been to proud to invoke his proffered aid. The birth of her baby restored her once again to touch with life. We see her by August in the harvest field suckling her little son when Liza-Lu brought him at midday. There is a pitiful account of the infant's death and of his burial among the nettles in the unconsecrated part of the church-yard, with a little home made wooden cross at his head and flowers in a marmalade jar at his feet.

In the following May she heard of a vacancy on a dairy farm in a valley many miles to the southward of Marlott, among the former estates of the d'Urbervilles, and with her unexpended youth surging up in her once more, bringing with it hope and the invincible instinct towards self-delight, she set out for the Vale of the Var.



She stood up and went forward. "I am ready," she said quietly.

In the end, Tess had to fetch both her parents home herself.

Besides the three dairymaids, Marian, Izz, and Retty, with whom Tess shared the farm dormitory, there was only one inmate, Angel Clare, the youth who had taken part in the club walking at Marlott. His father was vicar of Emminster, an Evangelical clergyman of the straitest Pauline sect, and he had been destined, like his two elder brothers, for the church, but the difficulties about the thirty-nine articles had supervened and he was now at the age of twenty-six a free thinker and a rebel against all conventions, studying the dairy business with the view of becoming a farmer. Tess recognized him at once.

AS the splendid summer went slowly by the two were thrown together in the idyllic intimacies of the dairy farm, from the early morning twilight when Tess walked like some primeval goddess through the luminous gloom of the pastures till dawn transformed her into a piece of merely human loveliness, and on through the long golden days till the gray of evening they were together and love grew up between them. The other three maids were all in love with Clare, but in the simplicity of their generous natures they recognized without jealousy that they had no chance against Tess' beauty, her intelligence, and her natural distinction.

Poor Tess was ill at ease, for since her seduction she had made up her mind that she could never marry, but though for this reason she would not stand in the way of the other three there was a secret joy in every proof that she was preferred. It was not till August that the supreme moment came. One afternoon when Clare and Tess were milking together in a lonely field he looked up and on a sudden saw her beauty with new eyes; a breeze passed through his nerves and he almost fainted; then he kicked over his stool and, kneeling by her side, clasped her in his arms. Her heart went out to him and she sank on him with a cry of ecstasy; they told each other of their love, and from that instant the world was changed for them both.

After some family consultations he asked her to be his wife. She told him that she loved him but could not marry him, and though the reasons she gave were incoherent he thought it best to give her time.

The following months were spent in a growing intimacy. Clare told her of his free thinking, of his social creed, and his hatred and contempt for the great ones of the earth, especially for the old tyrannic families from one of which, though he did not know it, she was descended. Time and again he repeated his proposal of marriage and on each occasion came closer to her defenses—it became evident that she had some one definite reason for her refusal. One afternoon on the drive home from taking the milk to the railway station he insisted on her telling him her secret and she gathered up her strength to reveal it, but at the last moment her instinct of self-preservation was too strong for her and she pretended that the barrier was her descent from the d'Urbervilles.

It was a great relief to Clare to find that this was all, and something in him that had nothing to do with his theories was secretly pleased that after all Tess was a kind of lady, so he thought it would be easy to reassure her. But Tess had lost her chance of confessing and her perplexity was greater than ever. She wrote to her mother, and got an answer advising her to keep her secret to herself.

But now there were practical questions to be faced. Tess would not be wanted at the farm in the winter, and Clare was planning a study of flour milling at another farm called Wellbridge, which was one of the old d'Urbervilles' houses fallen from its high estate, and he urged her to fix a day for the wedding, so that they could go there together. Day after day he pressed her and her courage always failed, but at last she agreed to New Year's eve.

On Christmas eve they went shopping in the town and two men passed them. "A comely maid," said one. The other was a Trantridge man and Tess remembered his face.

"Comely enough," he replied, "but no maid." Clare heard him and gave him a blow which sent him staggering. Her sense of guilt rushed in upon her and with it the resolve at all costs to expose the truth. It seemed less hard to write than to speak.

THE next day she thrust a full confession under Angel's door and awaited the consequences. Nothing happened. He gave no sign of having read it, and when on the wedding morning she crept up to the room he had left she found her letter still sealed under the edge of the carpet.

So they were married and she had told him nothing! They went to the church in a very ancient vehicle, stately, rickety, a relic of bygone times produced from the local inn There was a legend in the d'Urberville family of a spectral coach and horses which were seen or heard by those of the blood when disaster or crime impended upon them. Tess knew nothing of this story, but she felt she knew all about the coach from the inn.

"It is very odd," she said. "I must have seen it in a dream." He told her casually that a certain d'Urberville of the sixteenth or seventeenth century had committed a dreadful crime in his family coach, and that there was a local superstition about it. As they drove away from the farm to their new house at Wellbridge a cock crowed three times in the afternoon. It was an evil omen.

The house at Wellbridge stood near a ruined abbey, and was itself the remains of a partially demolished mansion which had belonged to the d'Urbervilles. Built into the staircase wall were two portraits of women, whose proud and treacherous faces bore a sinister family likeness to Tess. Her inner anxieties persisted, but she was diverted by a package from Clare's father containing jewels, a diamond necklace, bracelets, and earrings which had been left by his wealthy godmother to be given to his bride and made an heirloom.

Tess put them on and they gave a new luster to her beauty. As the two sat hand in hand by the warm firelight, which sparkled in the diamonds which she wore on her neck and arms, she poised once more upon the verge of confession. Suddenly he anticipated her with a confession of his own. He could not be at ease till he had owned, as he put it, that he had "plunged into forty-eight hours of dissipation with a stranger." So he, too, was not without guilt, and she on her side, thank God, had something to forgive.

With a gasp of relief she began her own story. This is the climax. The fire in the grate looked impish and the fender grinned. As she bent forward each diamond on her neck gave a sinister wink like a toad's. All material objects around them announced their irresponsibility with terrible iteration as in a low, level voice, Tess, murmuring the words without flinching, recounted her acquaintance with Alice d'Urberville and its results.

Angel Clare only realized gradually what she was saying He stirred the fire; he walked about the room. By the time he sat down he knew what he thought, and he told her without reproof but with determination that she was no longer the woman he thought he was marrying. He was not angry, but his love for her was gone. It was not a case of forgiveness. She was a different person.

She pleaded with him, crouched at his feet, at first white faced in an insane dry voice of terror, then in a rush of weeping which lessened to an intermittent catching gasp, and at last she spoke in her natural tones, submissively.

"I shan't do anything," she said, "unless you order me to, and if you go away from me I shall not follow; and if you never speak to me any more I shall not ask why. I will obey you like your wretched slave, even if it is to lie down and die." But nothing moved him, and after a time he walked out into the night, which was clear and starry.

Tess followed him with dumb and vacant fidelity, over the great bridge into the fields and through the abbey ruins; then, catching him up, she pleaded with him again, but still to no purpose. She offered to drown herself in the river, but all he would say was that he forgave her but could never love her again. At last he bade her go to her room, and she went back to the house and fell into a deep sleep under a now ironic bunch of mistletoe which Clare had hung over the bed. Clare came in later and listened outside the door to her calm breathing. Then he lay down on the couch in the sitting room.

When they met the next morning they were but the ashes of their former fires. To the hot sorrow of the night heaviness had succeeded, and Tess told and Clare heard with dull apathy how she had always supposed that if he wished he would be able to divorce her, and that had not her courage failed she would have hanged herself in the night under his mistletoe. Clare was shocked but not touched. He was a rare but limited being. At the core of his gentle, affectionate nature there was a vein of unconquerable hardness. To such feeling as he still had for her she was too simple and too humble to appeal with any art; she accepted his judgment of her and thought all evil of herself, none of him. So they passed three days in estrangement, and Tess, giving up her last hope, told him that she would go home to her parents.

A few days later they drove away towards Marlott, and just outside the village Clare stopped the fly and led her down a lane. There they parted.

He told her gently that though there was no anger there was that between them which he could not endure. He would do his best to endure it, and if he could he would come back to her. If he did not she must not come to him, or write, unless she were ill or in want. He gave her money and said he would send the diamonds to the bank. Then he led her back to the fly, bade her good-by, and followed the carriage with his eyes, suddenly hoping that she would look back, but she was lying in a half-dead faint inside. When she passed over the crest of the hill he turned to go his own way, hardly knowing that he loved her still.

For the next three weeks he wandered about looking half-heartedly for a farm that would suit him, but finding himself quite unable to recover his balance. Then he paid his parents a visit at Emminster and told them he was emigrating to Brazil, giving them to understand that Tess had agreed to live with her family for a year while he made a home to which he could fetch her when he was ready.

Next he went to settle up with the farmer at Wellbridge, and there he ran across Izz Huett, the dairymaid from Talbothays. He found that she was still in love with him, and in the degradation of his misery and loneliness he asked her to come with him to South America. Perhaps she would have consented, but he tried to make her say that she loved him more than Tess had, and she was too honest.

"Nobody could love 'ee more than Tess did," she told him. "She would have laid down her life for 'ee. I could do no more."

At these words he had a sudden revulsion, and all the reward that poor Izz got for her honesty was that he left her, having broken her heart for the second time. Soon after he sailed for Brazil, and to the reader's relief he passes out of the story for a while.

Meantime Tess had found that there was no place for her at home. Her mother took her downfall with her usual inconsequence: Tess had been a fool, but accidents would happen, and her father brooded over it with sudden mortification. After a few days she went off to work on a distant dairy farm, leaving her parents twenty-five of the fifty pounds that Clare had given her.

Taking her upon his saddle, he rode off with her.

When October came there was no more work for her at Port-Bredy and her money was all gone, but just as she was growing desperate she heard from Marian of a vacancy at a farm in another part of the county. Flintcomb-Ash was a very different scene from the Vales of Blackmoor and Var, and Hardy gives us a third of his surpassing landscapes. It was a "starve-acre place." The work was swede-hacking and swede-trimming; the winter was severe.

ONE day in these hard times Tess stopped to listen to a "ranter," an itinerant evangelist who was putting the fear of hell into a small audience of villagers—and who should he be but Alec d'Urberville? She fled, but not before he had recognized her, and she had not walked far when he came running after her. He had experienced a sudden conversion, he told her, and by a strange coincidence it was old Mr Clare who had changed his heart. He had never forgotten her, but now she need not fear him His dearest wish was to share with her his new salvation.

Yet even while he spoke her beauty began to work on him again, and he was afraid. They walked on together till they reached the Cross-in-Hand, the most forlorn spot in all that bleached and desolate upland, named after a strange and sinister monolith of unknown origin, on which a hand was roughly carved, and there, putting her hand on the stone, he made her swear that she would never tempt him.

But the oath was of no avail. From that day forward, though nothing was further from her thoughts or wishes, Tess was an obsession to him. At first he asked her to marry him, and forced her to tell him she had a husband, but his fit of piety was as brief as it had been intense, and it was already yielding to his revived passion when a short conversation in which Tess retailed some of the free thinking arguments with which Clare had undermined her own faith sufficed to drive it away for good and all. Thereupon he resumed his original morals and with them his old get-up as a provincial masher.

Time after time he came to her when she was alone—in the turnip field, in the cottage, on the platform of the threshing machine, where she had stayed to have her luncheon while the other threshers ate theirs out of sight in the field below. At last he boldly invited her to go away with him, and she struck him on the mouth with her farm gauntlet. In the afternoon he came back and asked her pardon, offering his help for herself and her family. Poor Tess saw no escape from his resourceful siege, and that evening she wrote an exceedingly beautiful and touching letter to Clare, telling him she was in danger and imploring him to come to her or let her go to him. But Clare in Brazil was stricken down by fever.

Soon after this Liza-Lu came to Flintcomb-Ash with the news of illness at home. Tess returned to Marlott and took charge. On a March evening old d'Urberville dropped dead of heart disease. This meant that the family was turned out of the house and they planned to take up their abode at Kingsbere, where the ancient d'Urbervilles had their burial ground. On the evening before their departure Alec appeared and proposed that Tess should go back to her old post of poultry keeper at The Slopes and install the family in the fowl house. Maddened by his persecution she was seized for the first time with resentment of Clare's neglect and wrote him an angry letter of protest, telling him that she could never forgive his cruel injustice and would try thenceforth to forget him.

Next day the Durbeyfields, with all their wretched belongings, drove to Kingsbere, only to find that the rooms they had counted upon were occupied. There was nothing for it but to unload their furniture and encamp for the night in the church yard under the wall of the d'Urberville Aisle. When she had put the children to bed Tess entered the church and surveyed the ruined tombs of her ancestors. On one of them there was a recumbent effigy, and as she passed before it the figure seemed to move. With a shock she recognized Alec, who had pursued her even there. He went away when she bade him, but she wished that she herself were buried in the vault. . . . Here Hardy parts company with her for a time and we have to imagine the final stages by which she became Alec's mistress for the second time.

MEANWHILE Clare had been greatly changed by his experiences in Brazil. His dreams of successful settlement had gone up in smoke, his health was ruined by illness, and he had learned through suffering to discredit the appraisements of the morality in which he had been brought up. The beauty or ugliness of a character was found, as he now saw, not only in its achievements but in its aims and impulses; its true history lay not among things done but among things willed.

Tess appeared to him in a new light. The strength and simplicity of her devotion far outweighed the lapse for which he had cast her off, and when her first appealing letter reached him he made up his mind to go back to her at once. When he came to Emminster he was so altered that his father and mother could hardly believe it was he.

You could see the skeleton behind the man, says Hardy in a vivid phrase, and almost the ghost behind the skeleton. Tess' second despairing and accusing letter was waiting for him and it filled him with remorse. He tracked Tess to a stylish lodging house at Sandbourne (Bournemouth).

The landlady showed him into the dining room and Tess came down to him, more beautiful than ever, in an embroidered cashmere dressing gown He held out his arms, but she stood still in the doorway. "It is too late." she said in a hard voice, with unnaturally shining eyes; and at first that was all she would say. Gradually he forced her to tell him how she had waited and waited for him, how Alec had been kind to her and her family, and how at last he had won her back. They parted. As Tess went upstairs a surge of hatred for Alec swept through her being. How he had ruined her. How he had lied to her. He had sworn that her husband would never come to her again, but he had come back. Too late. Too late! Her beloved had returned and she was barred from him forever by this man who had pursued her to her doom.

The landlady, full of curiosity about the early visitor and his abrupt departure, crept upstairs and put her eye and her ear to the keyhole of the room to which Tess had retreated. She could see her kneeling beside a chair and hear her moaning and accusing herself of she knew not what. Afraid of being found spying, she went to her kitchen and soon after saw Tess leave the house in her walking dress. Pondering over the problem of these doings she lay back in her chair. Suddenly she noticed a tiny dark spot on the ceiling. After a while she saw that it was red. Presently it grew into a large ace of hearts

Running upstairs she paused at the bedroom door. The dead silence within was broken only by a regular beat. Drip, drip, drip. Within, Alec was lying on the bed with a carving knife through his heart. There was a dangerous streak in the d'Urbervilles.

Clare had gone to the station, but there was no train for an hour. He couldn't keep still, so he set out on foot for the next station on the line. As he walked Tess came running after him, pale, breathless, and quivering in every muscle. She told him she had killed Alec because he had come between them. Surely he would love her now? Clare was dazed, but the one certainty was her overpowering love for him and a passion of tenderness drove every thought from his mind.

He kissed her endlessly with his white lips and promised to protect her whatever she might have done. A strange, intoxicating happiness came over them and hand in hand they wandered on through the green forests like two children without a plan. At last they came to a large old country house, with a board announcing that it was to let. Clare left her sitting in the garden and came back with food and the news that the house was empty, only visited on fine days by an old caretaker from a hamlet nearby.

Within, Alec was lying on the bed with a carving knife through his heart.

THEY went in and found a bedroom with crimson damask hangings and a huge old four post bed. In this room they stayed for six days, undisturbed by the old woman, who never came upstairs. Then one morning she opened their door, and, seeing them asleep, went off to consult the neighbors. Tess awoke with the consciousness that some one had been in the room and they decided to leave the house and walk northwards, hoping to reach a seaport, where nothing would be known of the murder and sail from thence.

"Ah! happy house," she exclaimed with a gesture of farewell.

About midnight they passed through Melchester (Salisbury) and followed the turnpike road, which, after a few miles, plunged across an open plain. The moon had sunk and the night was as dark as a cave, but they groped their way along till, on a sudden, Clare became conscious of a vast structure rising sheer from the grass in front of them. It was a group of colossal rectangular pillars, through which the wind boomed like the notes of a gigantic one stringed harp, and he knew it must be Stonehenge.

There they lay down and slept till dawn. When Clare awoke the eastward pillars stood up blackly against the growing light and a figure was approaching from the hollow beyond the Sunstone. He heard the brush of feet behind him and before he was aware there was another at hand on the right and another on the left till he was surrounded by sixteen men.

"Let her finish her sleep," he begged, and the police consented. All stood silently watching her till a ray of light in her eyes awoke her.

"What is it, Angel?" she said. "Have they come for me?"

"Yes, dearest, they have come."

"It is as it should be," she murmured. "This happiness could not have lasted. I have had enough and now I shall not live for you to despise me." She stood up and went forward.

"I am ready," she said quietly.

SOME weeks afterwards, in the early morning, Clare and Liza-Lu were walking hand in hand, with bowed heads, up the measured mile which leads from the western gate of Winchester. When they had nearly reached the top of the great west hill the clocks in the town struck eight. They walked on to the first milestone and there suddenly stood still, turned, and waited in paralyzed suspense beside the stone. On a high tower, rising far below against the east horizon, they saw something move slowly up the flagstaff and spread itself on the breeze. It was a black flag.

"Justice" was done and the President of the Immortals had ended his sport with Tess. And the d'Urberville knights and dames slept on in their tombs unknowing. The two watchers bent themselves down to the earth as if in prayer, while still the flag waved silently. As soon as they had strength they rose, joined hands again, and went on.

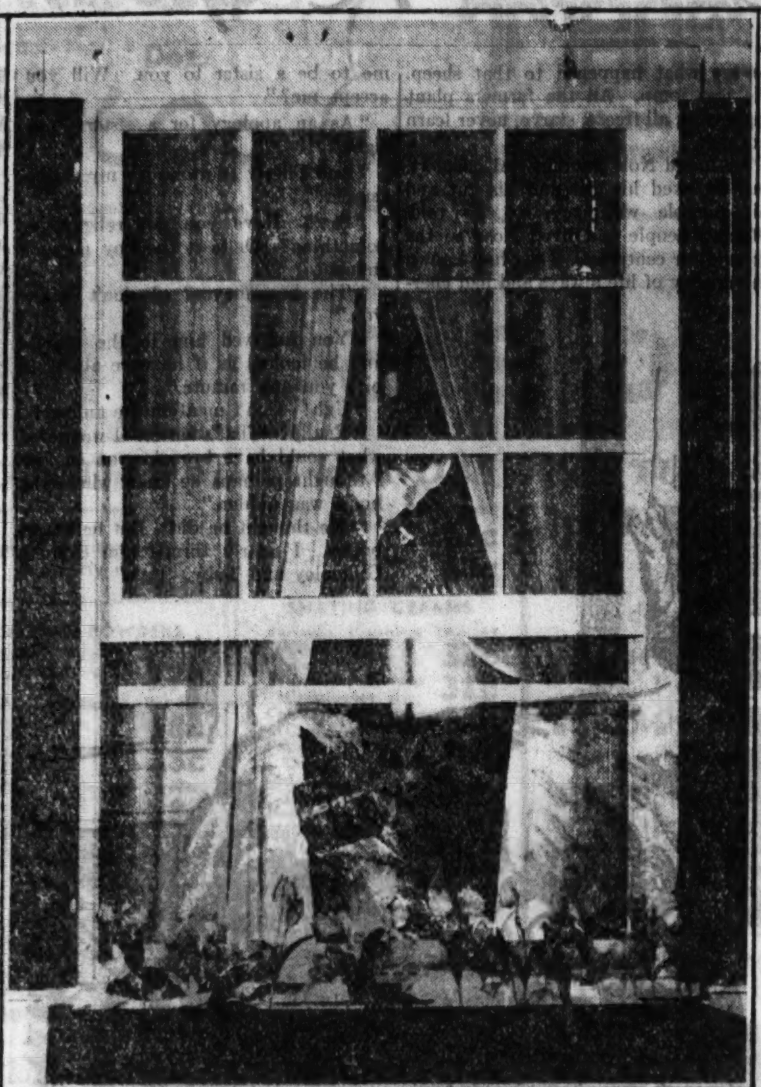
Well Fitting Screens Add to Window Beauty of the House

Screens that lock are a big protection where there are children in the home, while screens that fit snugly are quite effective as a barrier against many disease germs.



It is easy watering your window boxes when your window has been given the rolling type of screen. This type can be used for either casement or double hung windows. It spends its winter atop the window in a neat little metal box all its own, and when spring comes you roll it down like a shade!

Screens can be made with modern glass which admits many of the ultra violet rays of the sun. Thus, on cool days as well as warm a porch so screened is an ideal spot for the baby in the home, as well as for grownups who would enjoy the benefits of the sun's health rays, no matter whether breezes are chill or warm.

Roll Away Type Does Away with Winter Storage

Rustless Variety, Though a Bit Costly, Is Cheapest in the Long Run.

By Louise Bargelt.

SNUGLY fitting screens are one of the best of health insurances. They keep out of our houses disease-spreading pests. We screen our houses as a matter of course, but upon the way the screen is made and the tightness of its installation depends the efficacy with which it serves us.

We have a wide variety of screens to choose from, according to the amount of money our budget permits. For little cost we can make our own screens. Or we can buy sturdy, simple screens which are also very inexpensive, and by careful care of them make them last a considerable length of time.

Besides this health and comfort angle of the screen as a protector against such arch destroyers as insects, dust, dirt and all their attendant contagion, the screen can add to the good looks of a home. Its various colors can harmonize with the house, as can its framework.

Cloth Blankets Used in Pioneer Days.

In pioneer days our ancestors had to devise some sort of protection against the plague of the insect and they nailed cloth blankets across their cabin openings. A bit stuffy and darkening, but they served their purpose. Next came cheesecloth, which let in more light, but not much more air, and after that the old time mosquito bar or netting. A big improvement again over cheesecloth and blankets!

Today, however, we have moved so far forward that it is hard to imagine summer without our modern screens mounted on their wood or metal frames. They are so essentially an integral part of our house. As most windows in our present homes are double hung or casement, the screens we find offered us are generally manufactured for these types of windows.

It is simple building our own screens, buying screen molding, screen stock and metal corners. These metal corners are a good investment, since they not only improve the appearance of the screen and save time, but also add to the screen's strength.

Now's Time to Prepare for the Summer.

This is fix-up, paint-up, mend-up month, with summer almost on us. We are taking out our screens, checking up on their condition, repairing them and repainting them, or putting in orders for new screens where the old ones are found to be worn out. That is, unless we happen to be the possessors of the rolling type of screen which is a permanent part of our house and which spends its winter atop the window in a neat little metal box all its own.

The framework of our screens can be of metal or wood. When a house has wood trim on its exterior, many prefer wooden frames to harmonize with it. Metal frames have become widely popular these last years, however, and are made in a variety of finishes to blend with almost any exterior. They come in copper or bronze combined with screens of bronze mesh and in steel for use with steel mesh. This metal framework is of light construction to afford strength with little weight. When you select a new screen you will find the better grade screens have the wire cloth firmly locked in a groove by means of a metal or wood strip.

It is important to obtain a standard gauge in a screen you buy—standard, that is, for the climate you live in. Also, where they can be afforded, rustless screens are an excellent investment. They can honestly be said to be the cheapest in the long run. Bronze screens at the present time retail for about 40 cents a window more than screens which are not impervious to rust, and such an investment eliminates frequent paints and patchings and even periodic rescreening.

However, if one's budget will not stand for the extra cost, get as good and substantial a screen as one can afford and keep it well painted. Paint will protect them and insure maximum service from them.

Store Screens in Dry, Clean Place.

Proper storage of screens is important from a standpoint of their longevity. If they have not been kept in a dry, clean, well guarded storage spot this last winter they will need additional touching up this spring.

The rolling screen is a modern development of the screen problem, and one which eliminates entirely taking screens down every fall and putting them up again in the spring. These rolling screens, which can be used for either double hung or casement windows, work on the same principle as the roller shade. When the screen is raised a wire cloth rolls up into a metal case at the window top. There it stays all seasons when it is not wanted for active service.

During the summer it can be raised or lowered as often as the window shade itself and is a permanent part of the home. When pulled down the screen locks automatically and this point is a measure of protection against prowlers or where there are children in the home.

Window Washing Easy with Rolling Type.

There are also sundry other points of convenience about these rolling screens, if one is making any changes in screens this year and the budget will permit a little stretching. Window washing is easier and this type of screen can be counted on to contribute its share to the preservation of the window beauty of the home.

The remodeling-minded home owner can also consider some interesting units which are composed of windows and frames, weather strips, screens and ventilating storm sash. Such units as these, giving all year round weather tightness and protection, mean not only good windows which are economical—the storm sash and flush mold screens, prefit to frame openings, saving on installation costs—but also future fuel savings as well in the cold weather months.

Indeed, there has been as much improvement in screens in the last decade as in other building materials and equipment. With casement windows the problem of window screening has been ingeniously solved in various ways.

Where the casement swings in the screen can be placed on the outside. Where the casement swings out the screen can be of the fixed type, the hinged type, the cross-sliding type, or the rolling type. When the screen is placed inside a casement there are different special adjusters installed for the opening and closing of the casement window.

Sliding Arrangement for Double Hung Window.

For the double hung window we have the sliding screen, which usually works on tracks attached to the jambs. There are different varieties of these, but the principle back of them is the same. Then, there is the top hung screen which reaches to the full height of the window frame, like many storm windows, and swings outward at the bottom.

Where windows are of unusual shapes or sizes, or if one has an old fashioned type of window such as the pivoted sash, there are special solutions for these which experts can offer—and solve. There is really no need for any window to go unscreened these days!

Entrance doors should be protected as well as windows, and the porch which is well screened gives a lot more satisfaction in hot weather than the porch which is left unprotected. Get expert advice if you are planning to spend the money to screen your porch.

Screen doors may be purchased as individual units or may be secured in units which are a combination screen and storm door, the glazed storm sash and galvanized wire screen frames interchangeable so that no tool is needed to change from storm door to screen door as the season dictates.

And, incidentally, screens are now manufactured in conjunction with modern glass which admits many of the ultra-violet rays of the sun. On cool days then a porch so screened is an ideal spot for a child and serves a sort of double duty, warm and cool weather alike.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Dental Instruments, Tea Cart, Magazines for Some One; Clothing, Bed Lamp, Radio and Scout Uniforms Needed.

By Sally Joy Brown.

WE have so many important letters this week that I'm not going to waste any of your valuable time or my precious space with preliminaries. The following paragraphs speak for themselves:

Mrs. M. B. writes as follows from a small town in Illinois:

"Dear Miss Brown: I shall be glad to pass on my husband's dental instruments [not stainless] to any dentist who is willing to pay postage charges."

This offer should be a very welcome one to any young man about to embark on a dentist's career. If you would like to have the instruments write to Mrs. B. in care of this office. We cannot, of course, undertake to reply to all letters, but will notify the person who is to receive them after the selection has been made. Please do not telephone.

Here's an appeal from the infirmary of a large institution:

"Dear Miss Brown: I wonder if any one has an old D. C. radio no longer in use. I have been confined in a hospital for many months with a broken back and was recently sent out here. Days pass slowly and a radio would be a source of pleasure to every one in the ward. A. A."

If you've moved from a direct current to an alternating current district won't you let this man have your discarded set? You'll enjoy the baseball games so much more if you know that the patients in this ward are able to listen in, too.

Or if you have an alternating current radio we have a similar request from a group in the eye ward of a charity hospital. Many of these patients are blind in one or both eyes. Here are two most worthy cases!

"Dear Miss Brown: I have a number of copies of the Christian Century Magazine for ministers which, while not fully complete in a few instances, still have some worth while material. I shall be glad to mail them to any one who would find them useful.

"B. M. H."

If you'd like these magazines write to Mrs. H. immediately in care of this department. Please do not telephone.

"Dear Miss Brown: As I will be in this sanitarium for some time I wonder if it would be possible for you to obtain a bed lamp of some kind for me. The evenings are so long and I am unable to read without a bed light.

"M. S."

This letter comes from a sanitarium in a small town in Wisconsin.

Dear Miss Brown: My husband is unemployed. We have four children—two boys, 8 and 6, and two girls, 5 and 16 months old. My two boys are sadly in need of knickers. I've mended theirs time and again, but every day or so they break out in a new spot. I should so appreciate some discarded knickers size 9 for them. And my baby girl 16 months old is also badly in need of clothing. I'll be glad to call for anything offered. MRS. J. G."

If your husky son hasn't quite ruined his outgrown trousers won't you let Mrs. G.'s boys have them? And hasn't any one some rompers or dresses for the baby?

Furniture of Contemporary Design Finds Increasing Interest Among Modern-Minded Folk

Many Displays in Chicago Stores Foreshadow Work That Will Be Seen at Fair.

By Edith Weigle.

IN less than a month now A Century of Progress Exposition will open, and with it comes a renewed emphasis on modern architecture and decoration. To thousands of people the contemporary furniture in the houses in the small housing group will be a revelation. Many are not acquainted with the new movement; others have confused it with the wave of bad and bizarre furniture that made its appearance in this country some years ago.

As a forerunner to the interior furnishings that will be in the limelight at the Fair several Chicago stores are now showing contemporary ensembles in modern settings. These strike the keynote; the Exposition wil enlarge on the theme. It's not necessary to wait until June 1, then, to find out what all the shooting's for in the field of 1933 furniture styles and backgrounds.

And if you want to see what two of the greatest authorities on the subject have to say about it, read the articles by Josef Hoffmann of the Vienna Werkstätte and Donald Deskey of Radio City fame in the April issue of the London Studio magazine. They sum up the modern movement, its aims and accomplishments here and in Europe.

Speaking for the Austrians, Hoffmann says: "Above all, the guiding purpose of this development has proved to be the recognition of purpose, that comfort and not representation is the object, that work should be in the spirit of the material employed, that the freedom to create should be without hankering after past styles, that there is a connection between the house and its landscape and in the planning and laying out of the garden."

The Austrians and Germans emphasize the harmony necessary between furniture and accessories and their background. Contemporary furniture, according to them, should be shown only in a modern setting. They also believe in doing away with past styles altogether.

In the lumber institute's house at the exposition, the furniture of which, though made by different companies, is all designed by Wolfgang Hoffman, the son of the head of the Vienna Werkstätte, you will see just what the Austrians mean by modern design.

There is another group of 1933 enthusiasts who do not, however, go all the way in contemporary decoration. While in sympathy with its aims, they do not entirely discard the past. They merely modernize classic styles in furniture design. They build on what time has decreed the best, using it as a foundation, but adapting lines and using materials that suit the present.

Thus, fo rinstance, they use aluminum instead of wood in some furniture construction, at the same time making their chairs and tables in the modified manner of their predecessors. Or, they put Biedermeier or Directoire or Empire furniture against a modern background, using modern fabrics and treatment of window draperies, and new accessories, etc. Or they introduce one or two modern chairs, or a coffee table and lamp, or a divan into a room that is, perhaps, 18th century English, or one of the other periods.

Of course, a dyed-in-the-wool modernist turns up his nose at all of this, just as a semi-modernist [we'll call him] shies away from what he feels is a bit ultra. So, there you are. You take your choice.

One of the State street stores has a most interesting modern house on its furniture floor. Here you see 1933 styles in a wide range of prices. The picture today shows a modern vanity sold by this and other Chicago shops. Of walnut, it rests on a narrow slab of a lighter wood and the interesting drawer pulls also contrast with the darker shade. On one side of the long mirror are three drawers, while on the other side are the same number of open shelves for cosmetics, perfumes, and toilet articles. The accompanying bench is extremely simple with its deep cushion and solid sides to the floor.

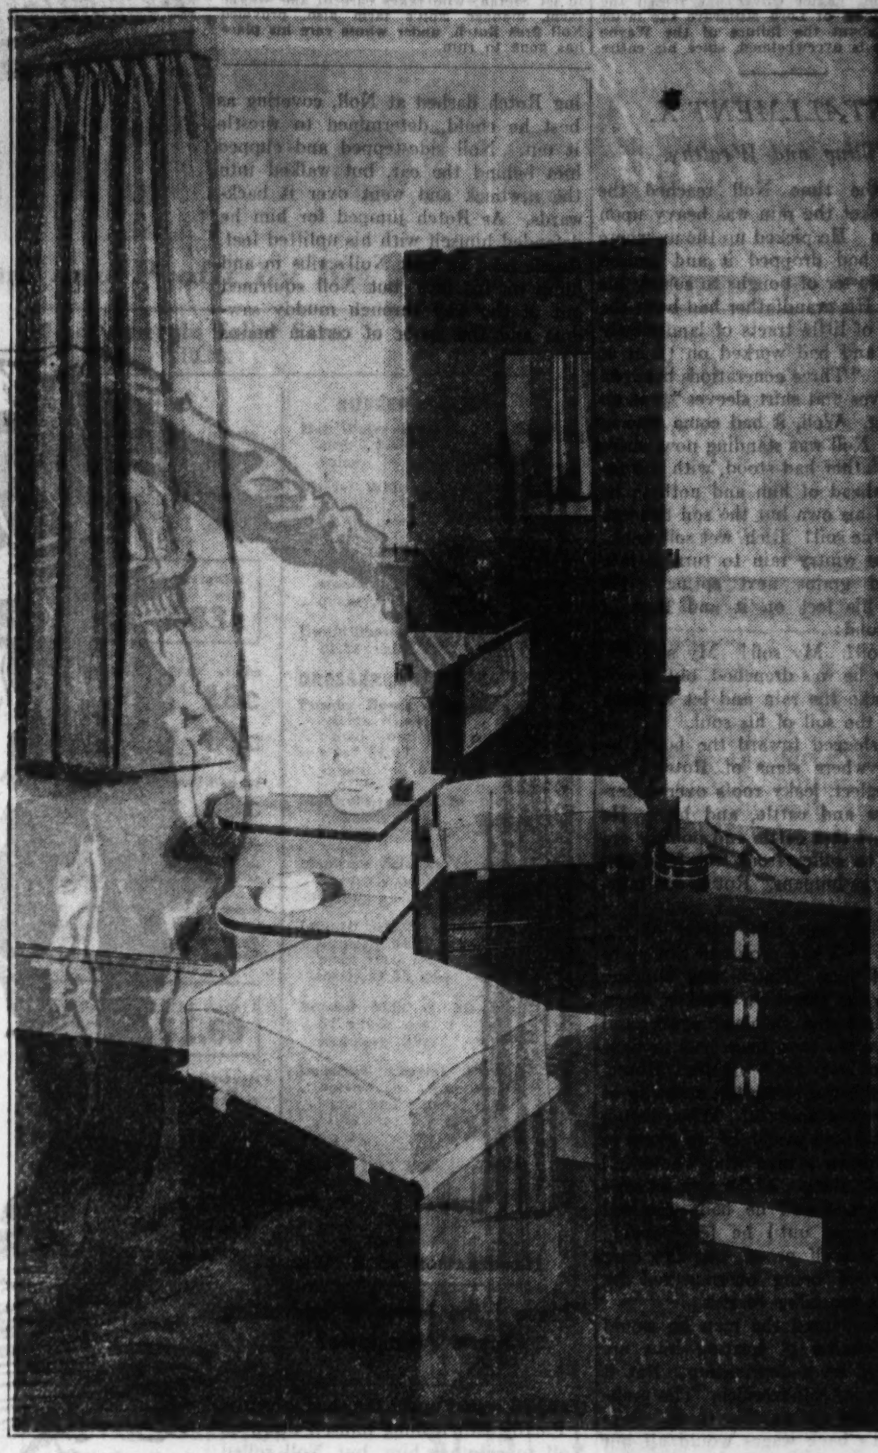
In one corner is a desk with single drawer and top of black bakelite. The curving supports are of tubular chromium. A small black and white lamp is used for illumination.

Shades of our Victorian ancestors, the S-shaped tête-à-tête chair is back again, looking as modern as if it had been born yesterday! It's made of silver aluminum, if you please, and upholstered luxuriously in a delicate coral colored silky homespun material that is like an elegant, angora monk's cloth.



This vanity in the modern manner was seen at the American Furniture Mart and is now on sale at several Chicago stores. It is of walnut and is inexpensively priced as is a great deal of the good looking 1933 furniture of contemporary style.

The UPHILL ROAD By Rupert Hughes

THE STORY SO FAR:

Dicey Wayne and Oliver Treadgold, known as Noll, quarrelsome friends since childhood, disagree over his decision to stay in England and settle down as a country gentleman. On her way to America Dicey learns that her father's chain of banks has failed. She goes to his farm. After Oliver has rented the ancestral home of Lord Mulgrave the latter tells him about the failure of the Wayne banks. He is overwhelmed, since his entire fortune was held in trust by Guilford Wayne. When Oliver returns to America Dicey prevents him from annoying her father. Dicey plays around with Ben Laraway to get him to save her father from indictment. Noll meets Wayne, and pities him. Wayne agrees to let Stefan, who takes care of the Wayne farm, manage Noll's farm also, provided Noll fires Rotch, under whose care his place has gone to ruin.

INSTALLMENT X.

Willing and Wealthy.

BY the time Noll reached the thicket the rain was heavy upon him He picked up the ax where he had dropped it and paused under a cluster of boughs to survey his domain. His grandfather had built the farm out of little tracts of land slowly acquired and had worked on them as a laborer. "Three generations between shirt sleeves and shirt sleeves" was an old saying. Well, it had come true in his case. Noll was standing now where his grandfather had stood, with the future all ahead of him and nothing he could call his own but the soil beneath him. Noble soil! Rich, wet soil drinking in the wintry rain to turn it into trees and grains next spring! He stamped his feet on it and thought almost aloud:

"My soil! My soil! My soil!"

By now he was drenched, but it was well to take the rain and let it reach his flesh, the soil of his soul.

As he slogged toward the house he saw everywhere signs of Rotch's renewed neglect, leaky roofs over suffering horses and cattle, and hay He had learned that cattle and poultry are as liable to suffer from wet feed and bad colds as humans. Rotch was murderous.

But Rotch was still master of the farm and Noll had promised Stefan to be rid of him. Rotch was slipping back into his slovenly, drunken ways. He was growing insolent again and Noll had more than once had to fight himself to keep from fighting Rotch. When Rotch was sober the outcome of a battle looked doubtful. When Rotch was drunk there would be no glory in knocking down a man who would fall down if left alone. Noll's own muscles had toughened and he had practiced shadow boxing until he felt capable of doing himself proud, but the bare possibility of being overpowered by Rotch was too odius to risk.

If he discharged the man he would lose the chance of beating him up. That would be a deprivation. But it was a time for self-sacrifice. The problem of money was another thing. Paying Rotch's back wages would all but wipe out Noll's cash reserve. Still it had to be done and he hoped that Rotch would put up a fight.

Noll found his man seated in the dry corner of the woodshed smoking a pipe, while his ax lay out in the rain with a heap of untouched wood. He was in an amiable humor—just to make it more difficult for Noll But as he waved a friendly hand he spat voluminously almost on Noll's feet—which made it easier. Noll said:

"Rotch, you're a luxury."

"What's that?" Rotch growled, rising to his feet at the assumed insult.

"You're a luxury," said Noll, "and you're giving up the farm."

"O, I'm givin' up the farm? And who's takin' it up?"

"I am."

The picture of Noll as a farm manager sent Rotch into a paroxysm of laughter. Noll was much obliged to him for his ridicule.

"How much notice do you need? When can you go?"

"Pay me what's comin' to me and a month's notice and I'm on my way now."

"I'll pay you what I owe you and in lieu of your month's notice you can keep the years' ruin you owe the farm."

"Like hell I will. You'll take nothin' out o' my pay."

"No? How are you going to collect it?"

"I'll get it all right, all right."

"Yes?"

Rotch watched anxiously as Noll wiped off the ax. Rotch remembered the pitchfork.

"You plannin' to use that ax?"

"Not on you. I want to keep it clean and dry. I want to apologize to you for using the pitchfork before. And I apologize to the pitchfork, too. It was an honest pitchfork."

As Noll hung the ax up in a sheltered spot Rotch's insolence returned.

"You're a goin' to give me a month's extry pay."

"I haven't got it."

"Then I'll take it out o' your hide."

"Help yourself. Here's the hide." Noll advanced temptingly.

"Why, you—you—I've half a mind——"

"You flatter yourself."

ROTCH made a pass at him with his hand open to cuff him down. Noll put up his open left hand, stopped the blow, and threw Rotch's arm back so sharply that he swung around into an open handed smack on the cheek that enraged more than it hurt.

He let drive with his right hand fisted. Noll took it in the palm of his left hand as in a catcher's mitt, and as Rotch lurched forward with the drive Noll's right fist slugged him on his red, red nose. With a woof of pain Rotch fell on Noll for a bearlike hug, but Noll broke his arms apart and, finding him wide open, let him have a one-two on the right and left cheeks.

Rotch stared at him in surprise. He brushed his streaming nose with a ruddy thumb and sniffed.

"You think you're purty good, don't you?"

"I'd like to find out. I'll tell you later—or you can tell me."

"Well, I'll tell you right now that you're a——"

Whatever the word was it was pushed back through Rotch's teeth and it did not taste good. Blood from the mouth joined blood from the nose and Rotch was an unpleasant opponent.

Noll's own knuckles were raw from Rotch's teeth and ached as if they were broken.

After spewing, spitting, and thumbing Rotch dashed at Noll, covering as best he could, determined to wrestle it out. Noll sidestepped and clipped him behind the ear, but walked into the sawbuck and went over it backwards. As Rotch jumped for him he defended himself with his uplifted feet. Rotch tried to kick Noll's ribs in and jump on his face, but Noll squirmed out of the way through muddy sawdust and the spoor of certain horses that had rested under the shed recently

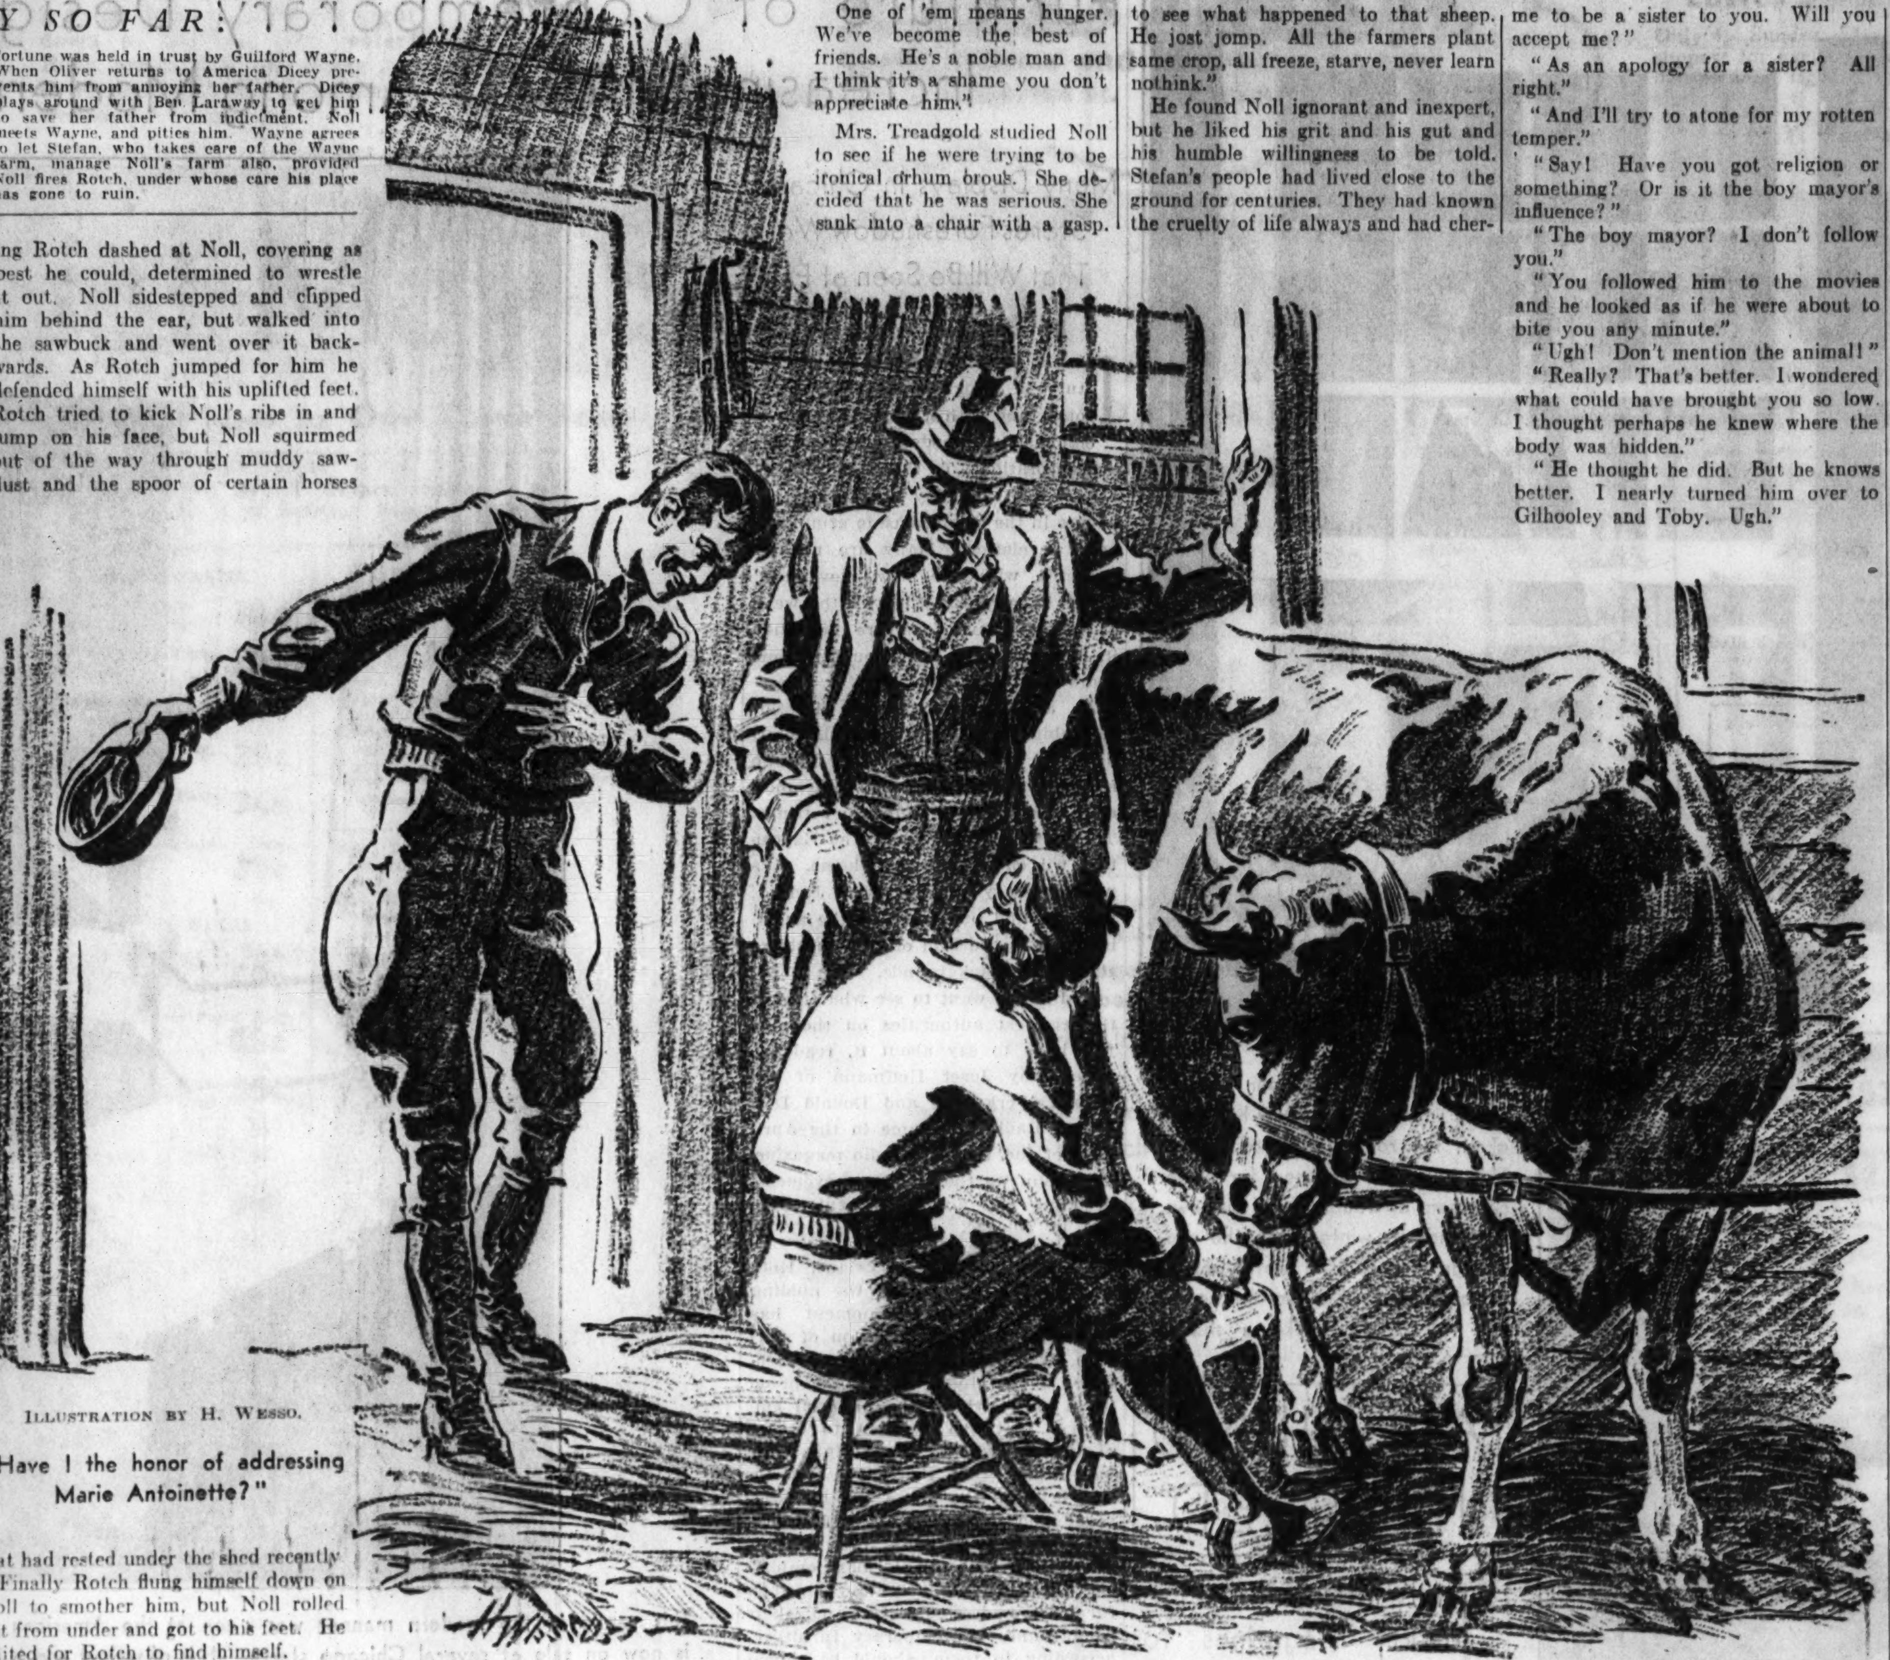

ILLUSTRATION BY H. WESSO.

"Have I the honor of addressing Marie Antoinette?"

Finally Rotch flung himself down on Noll to smother him, but Noll rolled out from under and got to his feet. He waited for Rotch to find himself.

The rain in his face was refreshing. He could drink it as it ran down his cheeks. He was enjoying the bout, growing cooler and craftier every moment as his confidence in himself grew with his contempt for his blundering victim.

But in ducking one right cross, however, he dropped into such a left uppercut that he thought his head would go sailing over the woodshed. His neck held on, however, and he sparred and dodged until his brain was clearer, thanks to the cold shower bath in which he fought.

ROTCH thought slowly and his plans could be read on his face before he tried them out. Sometimes he announced them in words meant to terrorize: "I'm goin' to twist that head of your'n right off and take it with me."

"Two heads are better than one But yours would be no good to me whatever. Take it with you when you go."

Breathing was an increasing problem for both men and their gulps for air bent and heaved them as if with pump handles. Noll's heart was going like a jazz band drum and apparently making ready to hop out of his mouth, which he had to keep open for breath He must win soon or lose all.

He darted at Rotch with a tattoo of blows that Rotch could not parry. He tried instead to seize Noll's wrists and drag him in. Failing that he turned an' ran for the ax that Noll had hung up.

Noll was right after him and gripped Rotch's wrist just as the ax came from the cleats. He kicked Rotch in the hollow of the knees and brought him to the ground, then threw the ax behind a pile of split wood and made ready for a feint at the nose to be followed by a smash in the stomach and a rap on the point of the jaw. According to his program this should end the battle, but Rotch closed with him and tried to knee him in the groin. Noll read this in Rotch's eyes just in time to draw back, whereupon Rotch tried to kick him in the same place. He hunched away from that, too, and caught Rotch's extended foot in his hand. While Rotch hopped Noll said:

"You're getting personal, eh? Well, sit down and think it over."

With a quick hoist he threw Rotch's foot up in the air and tipped his man over on his back Still gripping the foot Noll whirled Rotch over on his face and bent the leg back till it gave a convincing force to his remarks:

"Shall I break this leg off and brain you with it, or will you keep it and walk out of here?"

Rotch bit the sawdust a little before he spat out his surrender.

"Cross your heart?" Noll laughed.

"Damn you!"

"Well, then, will you accept one leg in lieu of a month's notice?"

"Yes, you——"

"Tut! tut! Naughty!"

Noll released his foot and helped him to rise, saying:

"Now go wash up and pack up while I get your money; and just to show you there are no hard feelings I'll take you to the station free, gratis, for nothing."

Rotch was tempted to renew the fight, but Noll said:

"Better call it a day I've got three other stunts as good as that last one—or better."

"All right," said Rotch, "I resign."

"And I accept."

Noll was glad the battle was over. His head was a hive of bees, his arms were heavy and aching, and his legs felt like masses of well chewed chewing gum.

He was bloody, muddy, and reeking with sweat and rain and dirt, sawdust, and a miscellany of other accumulations. As Rotch turned to go to his quarters Noll moved for the house.

His mother and Eliza shrieked with horror at the sight of him:

"What on earth?"

"You've been run over by a train?"

"I don't think so. I'll tell you about it later. Keep your distance. Unclean! Unclean!"

He went to his room, bathed, changed his clothes, and took from his wallet all the money he had. It was not enough. He went to his mother.

"I'll have to borrow a little cash."

"What for?"

"Where's your purse?"

"What for?"

"I'll tell you later."

She fetched him her purse and he stared at the bills with a greedy eye, then scolded her:

"You hoarder! You enemy of your country! But thank heaven for your crime."

He took out enough to make up the needed sum and went from the house to Rotch's quarters, where he found him packing an old bag with his own things and a few others. Noll removed these with appropriate sarcasms that Rotch did not try to match.

"Where's my money?"

"I'll give it to you at the station."

"If you don't I won't go."

"Gosh, what a blood curdling threat."

Rotch began to laugh on the way down: "You're not so worse for a swell. That was a elegant lickin' you gave me. One of the best I ever had."

"I wish you many more of the same," said Noll. "And to show you how sorry I am to lose you I'll pay your ticket to wherever you want to go—within reason."

"I guess I'll go home to mamma."

"Is she within reason?"

"Skaneateles."

"Well—O, all right. I won't haggle. Your mother has never done me any harm, but she may like you better than I do."

Rotch laughed:

"Put her there, boy. You're a swell guy and I'd like to see the farm after you've run it a while. I can laugh at that when I got nothin' else to do."

HE wrung Noll's hand and climbed on the train laughing. Noll laughed, too, till on the way home he thought of his mother and all he had to tell her.

He went into the living room and stretched himself on the sofa saying:

"I might as well be killed for a sheep as a lamb. I've had a busy day."

"And what have you done, my dear?"

"I've had a knockdown and dragout with Rotch, fired him, and paid him and shipped him home to his mamma."

"But who will take care of the farm?"

"Stefan and I."

"But Stefan belongs to the Waynes."

"Mr. Wayne gave his full consent."

"When did you see him?"

"A while ago. We had a long talk. He's one swell hombre, or is it hambre? One of 'em means hunger. We've become the best of friends. He's a noble man and I think it's a shame you don't appreciate him."

Mrs. Treadgold studied Noll to see if he were trying to be ironical or humorous. She decided that he was serious. She sank into a chair with a gasp.

"You've made friends with Wayne? Did he give you any money?"

"He hasn't got any. I haven't got any. So we're merging the two farms with Stefan as manager."

"Why, I—I can hardly believe you're a son of mine. I just can't believe it!"

"Aren't you getting your biology a bit mixed? That's what alleged fathers say, not mothers. Or do you suppose somebody substituted somebody else for me—or me for somebody else—in the hospital when you weren't looking? It's been done. I'm probably not the real heir to the Treadgold misfortunes. I wonder whose money I've been spending? What if he should turn up and demand it? I wonder who the deuce I am? What right have you to be ordering me about, strange woman?"

"Be serious."

"What could be more serious than to be somebody else and not even know who you are except that you are not your mother's son?"

"Hush!"

"You said yourself that you doubted it."

There was just enough possibility in the nonsense to make it terrifying. After all, a mother cannot always be much more certain that a child is her own than her husband can. It was maddening. Mrs. Treadgold tried never to think of maddening theories. There were enough maddening facts. Noll pleaded:

"And now if I could have a little nap before I take up my duties."

HE fell asleep at once and his mother let him sleep on and on till the early night closed in. When he awoke he could hear the noisy animals clamoring for help. Noll telephoned to the Wayne farm, managed to reach Stefan, and told him the news of Rotch. Stefan's first command was:

"Then who put those cattles and horse and chicken to bed?"

"Nobody. They're too many for me."

"Then I goin' come right over and feex those poor peoples up for the night yet. You goin' help me."

Soon after he was at the door and calling Noll away from his dinner. Noll's mother was disgusted, but Noll was jubilant:

"I'm a farmer now. You wouldn't worry if I danced all night. This isn't half as stupid."

As the prisoners of civilization, the domesticated animals had lost most of their ability to take care of themselves and they gave Stefan and Noll an ovation of lowing, booing, whinnying, cackling, quacking, grunting gratitude for the rescue from thirst, hunger, bad bedding, draughts, and lack of shelter Noll learned much from this object lesson of the danger and the cruelty of shiftlessness and neglect; also he learned that the farm has no vacation time; its year was three hundred and sixty-five days at least, its day twenty-four hours.

Stefan believed in farming as the noblest of careers, but he never wearied of expressing his disrespect for the practitioners. He thought even less of them than of the politicians.

"Those farmers they are sheep. They grow wool and let other people clip. They take what they get. They go where they are drove All go same way and let any little dog say where. Sheep is worst cowards and worst gamblers there is. A sheep will jomp any place any other sheep jomps. He don't wait to see what happened to that sheep. He jost jomp. All the farmers plant same crop, all freeze, starve, never learn nothink."

He found Noll ignorant and inexpert, but he liked his grit and his gut and his humble willingness to be told. Stefan's people had lived close to the ground for centuries. They had known the cruelty of life always and had cherished no ambition for wealth. They had learned to trust in small fields with various crops so that when some inevitably failed there might be others to succeed. Stefan believed that the farmer should compel his farm to support himself and his family. He foresaw a late spring and a bad summer and bent his wisdom to the chance of famine ahead so that Dicey and Noll should be sure at least of beef, poultry, pork, vegetables, and fruits and milk enough to keep them from hunger There might be something left over for sale or barter, but at best not much on small holdings of such poor soil.

He was amazed at Noll's interest in pigs, of all things. Stefan loved pigs and believed in them, knew them. He agreed with Noll that the Wayne-Treadgold farms should specialize in pork.

Stefan knew that if everybody on earth could feed himself and his family the panic would vanish—if only the politicians would cease to play the wolf. He reserved his fiercest contempt for the politicians. They were to him as helpful to the farmer as cutworms, tent caterpillars, grasshoppers, fungi, the scale, the foot and mouth disease, glanders, and the other collectors of tolls.

Noll remembered what Wayne had told him about politics, the uncovered cesspool in the American scene, the one that must be cleaned up and drained before there could be any financial or social health The shabby bosses mocked the American while they mulcted him; they rode on his back and picked his pockets. The criminals, the gangsters, racketeers, second story workers, con men, swindlers, robbed and ran away with small sums; but the political pirates rode high in honor and were paid for their treason and their unceasing thievery. Their corruption infected the courts, the police, the legislature till there was no refuge for the peon, the tax peon, who called himself a citizen.

Every dollar Noll was to get from now on was to be earned with sweat and every fourth dollar—every fourth drop of sweat—went to the control of the political machines. It sickened him to sweat for the comfort of these greasy fingered loafers. Noll was ignorant and emotional enough to declare that he would go into politics himself and run the rats back to their sewer.

THE picture of Noll leading a political crusade was amusing to Stefan, but he did not laugh aloud.

Now that the two farms were under his supervision Noll had constant occasion to call on him for information. It was inevitable that he should encounter Dicey, who was also an apprentice of Stefan's in agriculture.

At the first meeting of Noll and Dicey she dazed him by substituting for her usual aggressive or railing tone one of almost affectionate timidity.

"Noll, I owe you an apology, a humble one."

He was prepared for almost anything but this and answered in the traditional spirit:

"You owe me a million apologies. Why pick on one?"

"My father told me how good you were to him. It has helped him enormously. He feels that he has one friend on earth—not much of a one, but one. He said it hurt him to have you and me forever fighting. He wants me to be a sister to you. Will you accept me?"

"As an apology for a sister? All right."

"And I'll try to atone for my rotten temper."

"Say! Have you got religion or something? Or is it the boy mayor's influence?"

"The boy mayor? I don't follow you."

"You followed him to the movies and he looked as if he were about to bite you any minute."

"Ugh! Don't mention the animal!"

"Really? That's better. I wondered what could have brought you so low. I thought perhaps he knew where the body was hidden."

"He thought he did. But he knows better. I nearly turned him over to Gilhooley and Toby. Ugh."

He could picture what she meant and it nauseated him. Yet her nausea redeemed her in his eyes.

"I'm glad to hear it. It's a terrible thing to lose respect for your dearest enemy, and the boy mayor nearly lost you mine."

"Watch out for your own high standing with me. I've seen you with Alberta and the way she poured molasses over you! And how you took it!"

"When you get molasses poured over you what can you do but take it? You've been pouring acid all over me for years and look at my scars."

"How are we going to get along as brother and sister?" she asked anxiously.

"Perfectly, I should say. Most of the brothers and sisters I have known have fought all their lives, except where the sisters had the brothers tamed and turned into errand boys."

"I can see you running errands for me!"

"I think we'll have to just pretend when your father is around."

THE next time he saw her was very early on a frosty morning, when he had to ask Stefan urgent questions about an ailing sow. As he approached the cow barn he heard Dicey's voice in a note of wrath:

"Get off my foot, damn you!"

He wondered why Stefan should be standing on Dicey's foot and drew near cautiously.

He saw Dicey seated on a three legged stool, her knees beneath a cow, her right hand snatching frantically at an unresponsive spigot. She was so earnestly engaged in her lesson that she did not hear Noll's footsteps, and he stood back unseen and watched while Stefan explained the pumping exercises and the technique of keeping the white spurts continuous and straight. What kept Stefan's face straight was the stupidity of his adored pupil and the waste of what little milk she elicited, for it never hit the pail. One particularly wild shot brought a snort from Noll. Dicey whirled so quickly that she would have tipped over backward on the wobbly stool if Stefan had not steadied her. Noll bowed low:

"Have I the honor of addressing Marie Antoinette?"

Stefan said: "Thees cow name Rosey."

Dicey said: "I'm just learning to sneak up on a cow and extract a milk shake while she's not looking."

"But she is looking. And she's laughing."

"Come on in and show me how it should be done, Narcissus."

"I should never dream of being so familiar with a lady."

"I dare you."

"Go on, sister, and give Sis Cow another laugh."

She arose and threw the stool at him and got him.

Stefan coaxed her back to her task, and when Noll had gone promised her a treat:

"Thees afternoon I goin' give Meester Noll first lesson in plowink to get ready for next sprinkg. You come over and you have some fon."

That afternoon Dicey crossed the boundary wall, stole through the thicket and found a hiding place near a garden patch alongside a small peach orchard, just in time to see Stefan run a model furrow for Noll to imitate He had found a piece of soft, unfrosted soil, and it was beautiful to see the horse forge ahead straight to his goal while the share turned the earth aside like a long wave curling away from the sharp prow of a yacht.

"What could be prettier? Or easier?" said Noll. "When I have mastered this simple primitive weapon I'll get me a real plow with a tractor and run a dozen furrows at once. We've got to modernize and mechanize these old Assyrian methods."

He was so confident and so eager that he could hardly permit Stefan to shift the plow for the next furrow and explain the handling of the lines, the handles, his own feet and weight.

When Noll was ready he clucked to the horse and——! He had never dreamed that there was so much adventure possible to a simple follower of the plow. His first furrow, departing instantly from the side of Stefan's, ran so wild a course that Noll was alternately almost split apart and shot to his knees and elbows. The handles leaped and clubbed him and he yanked the bewildered horse in among the peach trees, where the plow turned over, with Noll on the ground in no little peril of being sliced by the blade. Stefan ran to the horse's head and the lad Adam righted the plow.

Dicey had emitted only one yelp of laughter before she was so frightened that she ran screaming to Noll's rescue. From a window where she was watching there came another scream from Noll's mother.

Noll was in a fury of shame, dirty and bruised, with his sleeves full of earth and his respect for farmers increased. Dicey was flattering.

"I think it's mighty clever of you to be able to write your autograph like that. But I think you are a little too vigorous. I only made my cow laugh, but you gave your horse the scare of a life Any one could tell by a glance at that furrow that you're a mighty fine polo player."

They were actually laughing together without bitterness, though their humor was growing as primitive as their problems.

Noll worked on with positive savagery. He toiled so hard during the day and was so weary every night that his mother could hardly get a word out of him that did not concern some aspect of his new passion.

A LONG week of mean weather wore her out and she began to moan over her incarceration and to long for the lighted city nights, the theater, the opera, the dinners she had once given to sumptuous companions. Nate had gone to town to fend for himself but Mrs. Treadgold lingered, determined to marry Noll to Alberta. She made no progress with him though Alberta made it more and more manifest that she was willing.

It was a strange and whimsical winter, so long delayed that lilacs bloomed in New York in February and it seemed that next spring would follow the prolonged last fall with no interlude of snow. The only winter was in the finances of the whole world. The nations met together in committees, trying to devise some means of salvation and unable to agree on any one project.

The world war was come again but the peoples were all allied against one vast invisible, intangible, irresistible enemy. It was no longer a panic. The mad stampedes were over. Mankind was one herd of exhausted cattle caught in a blizzard, huddled together in a miserable helpless drift toward—what? Everybody waited for a chinook to come out of the sky and end the long freeze.

While Noll fought with his ignorance and schooled himself against the coming of the earth's New Year's day of spring, watching the hard ground for signs of awakening, there came to him a light reminder of a time that seemed to belong to another existence, though it was hardly half a year ago.

HE had gone to the village to trade a few dozen eggs he had accumulated above the family needs for some hardware he needed. In lieu of cash the tradespeople had largely reverted to barter. He found at the post-office a letter from Lord Mulgrave.

Dear Treadgold:

You will be amused, I fancy to learn that I have gained my heart's desire, in part, at least. I've got a job playing a cowboy!—with an English moving picture company over here!!! Don't fail to see me if they show us over there in the States. The ranch atmosphere will give you as good a laugh as your American cinemas of British life give us. How good an actor I shall be I shall soon know. It seems a bit silly to me now

My sister Aurelia would ask to be remembered, I am sure, if she knew of my writing She got a job in a very haughty hat shop Bond street and is doing very well. We have not yet found a job for my mother appropriate to her age and infirmities, but we have hopes.

That while peacock is still waiting for you if the tenantry have not eaten him. We have not yet let the dear old castle.

By the way, you recall perhaps my quotation from the Russian: The hammer that breaks glass makes steel. You must have had no end of hammering. What is it doing to you?

Again by the way: Have you married your Dicey yet? Don't forget, the first boy is to be named John, after me.

Write me, won't you, sometime when you have no other way of killing time.

I see by the papers that Uncle Shylock is having even more misery than our little old John Bull He has more room for it

Had you thought of going into the movies? Why not? My sister reminds me that our scullery maid called you "cruel handsome." You gave her a half sovereign. Don't you wish you had it again?

Yours for few and better pictures.

MULGRAVE.

As Noll climbed into his rattletrap flivver and sent it clanking and spitting up the hill, he remembered his last view of Mulgrave Towers when he swung his great English car around the driveway and called that Eden his own.

When he reached the house he found Alberta Skipway there. She was holding Mrs. Treadgold's hands, trying to quiet the older woman's sobs. At the sight of Noll, his mother started to run from room. Noll took her in his arms and asked her what was the matter. She said:

"Alberta can tell you. I want to be alone."

He turned to Alberta in wonderment. She said:

"Noll, you're killing your mother."

Fat Jane becomes Slim Jane on 3 Full Meals a Day

ME BEING SO FAT MAKES ME A WALL-FLOWER
WHY DON'T YOU GET THIN THEN -EVER HEAR OF JAD SALTS?
I LIKE TO EAT TOO MUCH
WELL THIS JAD WAY YOU EAT MORE THAN EVER, JANE
A FEW WEEKS LATER
JANE, YOU ARE WONDERFUL! WHAT HAVE YOU DONE?
-THAT'S MY SECRET-YOU SPELL IT -JAD

Modern science now makes the fat persons dream of bliss come true. Grow thin, yet eat your fill! Lose as much as seven full pounds a week! And look—pounds lighter than you really are THE VERY FIRST DAY.

Do Just Two Simple Things:

Take a teaspoonful of ordinary Jad Salts in a glass of water before breakfast every morning; make two small changes in diet. That is all.

Your first glass of the Jad Salts often rips off as much as three pounds of weight—the body's mosture weight—in 24 hours. And makes you look pounds lighter as well—for it almost instantly banishes all puffiness and bloat from the face. The system is cleared, too, of toxins and depleting poisons.

You never know a hungry moment. The little changes in eating that you make are explained in a little folder you find inside the package of Jad Salts you get.

4 to 7 Pounds Gone in Week!

If normally overweight, you can lose as much as a pound a day this way; never be hungry and feel better than you have for years. Jad Salts keeps you fit and active; the dietary change rips off the fat swiftly. The grace and personal charm only a slender person has return.

Try this way. Just ask for ordinary Jad Salts at any drug store. The JAD SALTS—remember—is urged as a poison-banishing agent to banish unhealthy bloating and to eliminate bodily moisture—not as a reducing one.

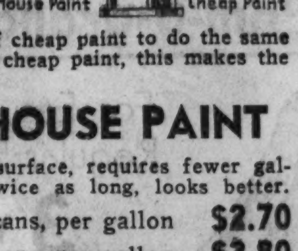
Weigh These Figures

before you let cheap paint prices fool you!



Don't be misled by low price per gallon when you buy paint. Price per gallon means nothing. It's cost on the job that counts. It takes approximately six gallons of SWP prepared House Paint to do the average six room house, two good coats that will wear two or three times as long as cheap paint. Cost of paint, approximately $16.30. It takes from 10 to 12 gallons of cheap paint to do the same house. At the average price of cheap paint, this makes the cost from $18.90 to $22.00.

Fine Showing of New Films During April

Mae Tinee Chooses Half Dozen Most Outstanding; Lists Best Actors.

APRIL'S SIX BEST MOVIES.

BE MINE TONIGHT	CITY OF SONG
THE WORKING MAN	KING KONG
MUSSOLINI SPEAKS	SECRETS

BEST PERFORMANCES IN HONORABLE MENTION PICTURES

Warren William, Allen Jenkins in "Mind Reader"; Lionel Atwill, Fay Wray, Glenda Farrell, and Frank McHugh in "Mystery of the Wax Museum"; Mae Clarke in "Parole Girl"; Maurice Chevalier and Baby Weinbrener in "A Bedtime Story"; Joan Crawford, Gary Cooper, Franchot Tone, and Roscoe Karns in "Today We Live"; Richard Barthelmess and Sally Eilers in "Central Airport"; Ralph Morgan, Alexander Kirkland, and Betty Jane Graham in "Humanity"; Ramon Novarro, Myrna Loy, and Louise Closser Hale in "The Barbarian"; Lionel Barrymore and Gregory Ratoff in "Sweepings."

By MAE TINEE.

GOOD MORNING!

April was as generous with good movies as she was with her sunshine and her showers!

"BE MINE TONIGHT," from the English studios, was "a melodious and charming musical comedy. It boasts more story than most productions of the kind, is characterized by some perfectly glorious scenery and some really fine music. Jan Kiepura, the Polish opera star . . . has a golden voice that permeates the picture like color—like perfume. . . . Adept acting, fine photography that shows at its most ravishing the scenery of the Swiss-Italian mountains, excellent sound, and amusing dialogue and situations have been pleasingly welded together by expert direction. . . ."

"THE WORKING MAN" brought us George Arliss in his most intriguing vehicle since "The Millionaire." . . . "Amusing narrative . . . a green and grassy field for his droll genius to play in. . . . George Arliss as we love to see and applaud him. . . ."

"MUSSOLINI SPEAKS"—"More than a compilation of news reels . . . a glorious adventure caught by the camera. . . . Starting with views of Mussolini's birthplace the picture offers a panorama of his activities up to the present time. . . . He is WILL personified. He exudes concentration. . . . The Italian Hope makes the most AWFUL, the most FOOLISH, the most endearingly UGLY faces as he talks and rests. Entirely unconsciously. . . . Lowell Thomas lectures most entertainingly along with the film. . . . Italians, of course, will go for this cinema in a big way. . . . Should think Americans would, too, being as how we are in something of the same economic boat Benito Mussolini steered so sanely and safely through turbulent seas of national chaos. . . ."

"CITY OF SONG." Here was another delightful foreign movie. Cried what is writing: "O, but the scenery in this is enchanting! Naples, Pompeii, the grottoes of Capri, and vision after vision of shores and waters that make your throat ache with their beauty . . . and with what cunning the director chose his 'shots'! . . . The story is slight but warmly colorful in interpretation. . . . Jan Kiepura's glorious tenor voice rings out on every possible occasion. . . . 'City of Song' has been most deftly directed. It is a picture that will keep you from worrying about inflation for a long, dreamy, beauty-steeped hour."

"KING KONG" ". . . A swell job of hokum. . . . Though you know prehistoric monsters are no more, and realize that King Kong and the strange and awful animals that range the uncharted South Sea island figuring in the first half of the picture are fakes; though you are aware that the myriad weird and terrifying effects with which this picture teems are but the triumphant triumph of wizard photography, 'King Kong'

OLD MURDER TALE DUG UP AND MADE INTO A MYSTERY DRAMA

By BURNS MANTLE.

NEW YORK.—(Special.)—Forty years ago in Fall River, Mass., Lizzie Borden was accused of hacking her father and her stepmother to death with an ax. In the sensational trial that followed Miss Borden was acquitted for lack of direct evidence. Since then the Borden case has stood as one of the fascinating and unsolvable crimes of the century.

After a good deal of fooling around with one dramatic version and another the Lizzie Borden murder case has reached the stage in a drama called "9 Pine Street," with Lillian Gish as the heroine.

John Colton, who was co-author of "Rain" and author of "The Shanghai Gesture," and Carleton Miles, a man of the theater, have taken an older play written by William Miles and Donald Blackwell and rewritten it as the current opus. At least half a

Two plays; three photoplays

Walter Hampden, eminent romantic actor of the American stage, begins a week's engagement at the Grand Opera House tonight in "Caponsacchi," a poetic drama based on Robert Browning's "The Ring and the Book." Here he is in his first act costume—a young priest disguised as a mountebank.

Ethel Barrymore, now an actress manager, comes to the Harris theater tomorrow night for an engagement in her latest production, a comedy called "An Amazing Career." This play gives her the role of a famous opera singer.

Grave situations produce grave faces. Frank Morgan and Nancy Carroll have plenty to look serious over in "Kiss Before the Mirror." It's the Palace theater's new feature movie.

This scene is from "Looking Forward," the film to which President Roosevelt lent the title of his book. Lewis Stone is the man at the phone. You can see the film at the Roosevelt theater this week.

No reflections could be cast on this reflection of Vivienne Osborne. She's in "The Phantom Broadcast." Majestic.

PUPPET SHOW COMING FROM ROME TO AMUSE CHICAGOANS

THERE will come to Chicago on May 15 an interesting figure in the contemporary theater—an Italian scholar and artist who is at the head of one of the oddest theatrical troupes in the world.

He is Vittorio Podrecca, founder and director of the internationally famous theater known as "The Piccoli."

Sig. Podrecca has developed the marionette art to a degree where it appeals to adults as well as to children, since he makes use of satire, parody, and burlesque. He describes his theater as "a continental variety show for every one from 3 to 93 years."

This marionette master started his theater 18 years ago in Rome in the basement of a royal palace. He found himself famous overnight and received the patronage of the Italian court and society, and finally the general public.

Ten years ago Sig. Podrecca embarked with his company upon a world tour which has taken them to thirty countries. Carrying fourteen tons of theatrical properties, a portable stage, a miniature switchboard, and eight hundred of his wooden actors, he has traveled by sled in Norway, by fishing smack in the Adriatic, by donkey in the Pyrenees, by camel in the Sahara, by train, truck, and airplane in other parts of the world.

His company of twenty-three manipulators and singers have been with him all this time. The manipulators are the ones who stand on a hidden bridge and pull the strings that animate the dolls. The singers provide the vocal chords.

Ghost Theaters of Chicago's Rialto Turn Up Their Lights

Chicago Stage in First Phase of Recovery; New Shows of Spring Open Box Offices at Eight Playhouses; Review of April Plays.

By CHARLES COLLINS.

THE month of April apparently marked the beginning of a reconstruction period for the Chicago stage. Whether the repairs that have been wrought in its damaged structure were permanent or not remains to be seen, but at any rate progress was evident and the area of playgoing activity was widened. Six theaters were in use by "legitimate" productions as the month ended and two others were on the verge of making important contributions to the playbills. This represents a "high" for the theatrical year.

The shows of April, taken as a group, may be said to represent the first wave of an advance movement that has the period of the Century of Progress exposition as its immediate objective. This skirmish line will wither away, of course, but other companies are coming up to hold the positions that have been won. (Pardon my military metaphors; I have just finished reading Guedalla's biography of the duke of Wellington.

Stage Summary for April.

As first fruits of a theoretical new era, these April offerings were not particularly exciting. When I glance over their titles I am not stirred to a pitch of exultation that calls for hosannas and dancing in the streets. In bygone years the entire list would have been catalogued, for reviewing purposes, under the heading, "Various and Sundry." But historians of the theater are no longer overburdened by the richness of their material, and their current motto is, "Small topics gratefully received."

The most important of the April first-nights was that of "Yoshe Kalb," a drama far off the beaten path of theatrical traffic. It made its appeal across the barrier of a foreign language (Yiddish), but its stagecraft was potent and its exotic lure was provocative. In New York, where Yiddish is almost a municipal tongue, it flourished for months; in Chicago, with its racial horizon restricted, it will have a much shorter life. This play, vividly and vitally treated by Maurice Schwartz's Yiddish Art Theater company, has given us reassuring testimony of the stage's power to enthrall the imagination and must be ranked as one of the notable events of the playgoing season.

"On the Make" may be dismissed with deprecatory clicks of the tongue and the observation that bad taste is, in the long run,

MUSIC FESTIVAL MEETS EAGER RESPONSE

By EDWARD MOORE.

THAT the success of a huge undertaking is measured largely by the spirit of its participants was never more plainly indicated than by the letters that have been sent to The Tribune about the coming Chicagoland Music Festival at Soldiers' field, Aug. 19.

It promises to be even more of an event than it has been in past summers, and The Tribune and associated newspapers of the middle west having charge of the undertaking are correspondingly cheered over the response. Phil Maxwell, who receives all correspondence and answers all inquiries sent to The Tribune about it, has relayed some of his letters to this department, and they show a high degree of the "let's go" feeling.

Director Sends Out Letters.

On the top of the pile is a note from Dr. J. Lewis Browne, director of music of the Chicago public schools, enclosing a copy of a letter sent by him to all senior and junior high school bandmasters. In part, it reads:

"May I say a good word for Mr. Maxwell, who has been so phenomenally successful, and should you contemplate taking part this year kindly enter your organization on the page of the brochure provided for that purpose and mail in to Mr. Maxwell direct. My hope is that many shall find it expedient to make such entry."

Teacher Congratulates.

A festival program held late in August, when high schools are not in session, presents its own difficulties for high school bands. Yet the band of the J. Sterling Morton High school of Cicero is officially entered as one of the contestants. It numbers ninety players and its director is John Minnema.

The Rev. D. F. Cunningham, superintendent of the archdiocese of Chicago school board, writes regarding the All-Catholic high school chorus, 1,000 girls' voices, heard in a charming performance at the Auditorium last Sunday under the direction of Arthur C. Becker. Plans for its appearance are under consideration.

Thomas N. MacBurney, secretary of the Chicago Council of Teachers of Singing, sends the official congratulations of the council. Including, as it does, the greatest number of the leading instructors of singing in Chicago, the fact becomes unusually important. The letter reads:

"We have gone on record as favoring this most worthy and laudable undertaking and have voted to support the movement for an even greater festival this

PLANS INSTITUTE TO STUDY TREND OF RELIGIONS

Haskell Foundation Also to Have Lecture Series.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

SHAILER MATHEWS

An institute to consider modern trends of world religions, which will be reminiscent of the 1893 World's Fair parliament of religions, will be held from July 25 to 28 under the auspices of the Haskell Foundation of the University of Chicago. This announcement was made by Dr. A Eustace Haydon.

The institute Dr. Haydon said will be concerned with a critical survey of the impact of modern social, and intellectual forces upon various religions. As executive secretary of the Barrows Haskell lecture committee, Dr. Haydon also announced that two series of Haskell lectures will be given at the university this summer, and that Dean Shailer Mathews of the divinity school has been given the appointment of Barrows lecturer in India and Burma this winter.

Dean Retires Soon.

The Barrows lectureship which calls annually a foremost American scholar to India, where he speaks before the learned groups of that country, is regarded as an evidence of a portion of the distinction won by Dean Mathews in the fields of letters and theology. Dean Mathews retires from the university this summer under the age rule of 70 years. After his return from the orient, Dean Mathews plans to continue his residence in Chicago.

The first of the Haskell lecture series, which will precede the institute, will be given by Dr. Hu Shih, professor of philosophy in the National university of Peiping, China. Dr. Hu Shih's lectures, scheduled for July 12, 14, 17, 19, 21, and 24, will introduce the subject of "Cultural Trends in Modern China." Following the institute, Mr. K. Natarajan, editors of "The Indian Social Reformer," will discuss "Social Movements in Modern India." His first lecture will be given on July 31.

Shows Mutual Understanding.

The 1893 parliament of religions which was held in connection with the Columbian exposition, aroused widespread interest in comparative religion, Dr. Haydon, who is the professor of that subject at the university, pointed out. During the following year, Mrs. Caroline E. Haskell endowed the Haskell lectures on comparative religion, and later that year established the John Henry Barrows lectureship.

Dr. Haydon believes that Haskell institute will be as important as any religious event during A Century of Progress exposition. He said it will make a significant demonstration of the advance of mutual understanding among varying religions of the world.

Among those who will take part in the institute, in adidtion to Dr. Hu Shih and Mr. Natarajan, will be Rabbi Mordecai M. Kaplan of the Jewish Theological seminary of America; Prof. W. E. Hocking of Harvard, chairman of the laymen's foreign missionary inquiry; Prof. Martin Sprengling of Chicago, Prof. Y. Y. Ysu, General Theological seminary, New York; Prof. John A. Ryan of the National Catholic university, Washington, D. C.; Prof. S. L. Joshi of Dartmouth, Rabbi Solomon Goldman, Temple Anshe Emet, Chicago, and Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal area of New York and last year's Barrow's lecturer.

MAY PROCESSION

The annual May procession of all the Cathedral sodalities and societies will be held in the Holy Name cathedral at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The cathedral altar boys will lead the procession. They will be followed by the Boy Scouts, the boys and girls of the Holy Name Cathedral Parish school, the senior and junior sodalities of the Blessed Virgin, the Married Ladies' sodality, the Archconfraternity of the Holy Rosary, the Junior and Senior Holy Name societies, the St. Vincent de Paul society, and the eighth grade girls, who will have charge of crowning the statue of the Blessed Virgin during the services that will follow the procession.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Dr. Theodore G. Soares, for many years on the faculty of the University of Chicago Divinity school, and now connected with the California Institute of Technology and pastor of the Neighborhood church, Pasadena, Cal., will speak before the Chicago Sunday Evening club tonight. His subject will be "A Religious Cartoon." A special feature of the early service will be a music program of spirituals by the Armour Jubilee singers. Dr. Douglas Horton, United Church of Hyde Park, will give the informal Bible talk.

Woodlawn Business Men Will Hear Talk on Golf

Jerry Glynn, golf pro at the Olympia Fields Country club, will speak to the Woodlawn Business Men's association Tuesday noon at the Hayes hotel.

Reliability Is Our Rule and Guide

CHESTERFIELD NAMES GIBBONS TO REPLACE TUFO

Restriction Drive Will Be Launched Tuesday.

A. H. Gibbons has been named by the Chesterfield Improvement association to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Joseph C. Tufo as a delegate to the South Side Federation of Improvement associations, of which he was vice president and chairman of the board. Continuing as Chesterfield delegates are Arthur R. Jensen and Guy A. Skinner, who was elected president of the Chesterfield body in January, succeeding Mr. Tufo.

The association has changed its meeting date from the second Thursday of each month and will assemble at 7:45 o'clock Thursday evening in Tuley park fieldhouse. Principal business on the calendar includes the launching of a restriction campaign and efforts for regular garbage removals.

Restriction to Be Discussed.

Charles D. Gile, member of the new executive committee and chairman of property restrictions and zoning, is to be placed at the head of the restriction work. At present little or no Chesterfield property is restricted. The area to be covered is bounded by 87th and 95th streets, Calumet avenue, and the Illinois Central tracks. There is to be a thorough discussion of the problem during the meeting when a campaign will be mapped.

Further reverberations following the ousting of Mr. Tufo, and the first to come directly from the association, were contained in a statement given to the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE last week by Mrs. C. C. Lively, secretary of the association.

"With the Chesterfield Improvement association, Inc., dying a slow death," her statement said, "the people of the community too kit upon themselves to elect a new president, Mr. Guy Skinner, and reorganize the association.

"Under the splendid leadership of Mr. Skinner the association has more than quadrupled itself and has been progressing by leaps and bounds. All committees are functioning 100 per cent. At last we have a real, live association." Mrs. Lively is the authorized press chairman of the group. Mr. Skinner formerly was vice president.

Head Major Committees.

The six members of the new board head the major committees. In addition to Mr. Gile and Mr. Gibbons these are Frank Habrichter Jr., membership; Julius K. Krumeich, finance and auditing; Mrs. Ethel Thompson, legislation, public safety, lighting, and public utilities; E. H. Altemeier, police protection and schools. In addition, Mrs. B. C. Klein is entertainment chairman, and is assisted by Mrs. Norris Murray.

After accepting "with a feeling of deep regret" the resignation of Joseph C. Tufo of Chesterfield as its vice president and chairman of the board, the South Side Federation of Improvement associations sent him a note of appreciation.

HYDE PARK M. E. CHURCH TO HEAR Y. M. GLEE CLUB

The Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. boys' glee club, which went on a tour during spring vacation, will present a program at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the Hyde Park Methodist Episcopal church, 54th street and Blackstone avenue. This program is sponsored by the recently organized promotional council of the church whose purpose, plainly stated, is to increase church attendance and membership.

Members of the council are Kearney Harmas, G. A. Patterson, Rollo Magemeyer, J. H. Kettles, Howard Lowe, Vernon W. Uker, Dwight Shobe, Lyle Emmack, Guy Sharpe, Sam Price and Philip Sutherland. Dr. George H. Parkinson, minister of the church, is an honorary member of the council.

The boys' glee club program Friday is to be a varied one, with dancing, whistling, and violin numbers supplementing the singing. Everett and Victor Walker, who play seven mouth organs at a time, will entertain. Others are Julian Lowenstein, whistler and violinist; Morris Meyers, tap dancer, and Leslie Wavrinek, pianist, who plays all accompaniment.

Soloists are to include Dick Brewer, Craig Calkins, Russell Kemp, Walter Olson, Ralph McKirahan, Grany Gleeson, Jay Nichols, Jack Seymour, Edwin Alger, Basil Ward and George Plumb. The boys range from 9 to 14 years of age and are under the direction of Willard G. Maltby, assistant boys' work secretary of the "Y."

ORIENTAL REVUE TO BE PRESENTED BY MERCY GIRLS

The Mercy High school glee club will go oriental for its 8th annual operetta and revue, "Sho-Glo," which will be presented tomorrow evening in Mercy auditorium, 8100 Indiana avenue. Eighty girls will sing and dance in the production.

An American electric sign maker [Miss Rita McGuane] would like to sell his product to a Chinese tearoom manager [Miss Marion Einhorn], but he has difficulties convincing his prospect. The romantic web involves the sign maker's daughter [Miss Kathleen Sullivan] and his salesman [Miss Rita Devaney]. More of this atmosphere is lent by the flirtations of air pilots and reporters with dainty Chinese maidens.

Other officers of the glee club taking leads beside Miss Sullivan and Miss Devaney are Miss Rosemary Enright and Miss Kathleen Ryan. Also in principal rôles are Miss Jo McGrath, Miss Edith McWhinny, Miss Claudia Urbanek, and Miss Josephine Dunworth, the latter being the American consul.

Miss Mary Synon is dramatic director and Miss Madeline Leonard is in charge of the dances.

Hesperus Sea Scouts.

Sea Scout officers of the south shore will meet at 7:45 o'clock Thursday evening at headquarters of the Sea Scout ship Hesperus at 6451 Woodlawn avenue.

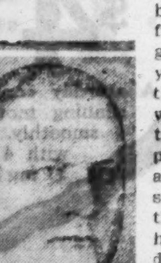
WHO'S WHO ON SOUTH SIDE

Walter F. Lovell, recently made president of the West Chatham Neighborhood club founded the organization six years ago when the community was open country and street pavings, sewers and lights were still comforts of the future. He has lived in the district for nine years and owns his own home at 104 West 80th street.



WALTER F. LOVELL.

He is a native south sider, born 42 years ago in the vicinity of 51st street and Wentworth avenue, and an alumnus of Parkman and Englewood High school. His real estate business is located at 210 East 79th street.

Civic activities keep Mr. Lovell busy, for in addition to the West Chatham Neighborhood club, he is a member of the City club of Chicago, the Chatham Lions club, a director of the South Park Manor Improvement association, and a delegate to the South Side Federation of Improvement Clubs.

Mr. Lovell was formerly a semi-professional baseball player, is a golfer, bowler, fisherman and enthusiastic swimmer. He is a member of Oak Hills Golf club where he has worked up an average of 90, and treasurer of the Builders' Tee club. Indoor sports have their place, too—he is one of the best pinochle players at the South Side Swedish club, and likes to dance. Mr. Lovell is married and has two children, William, 11 years old, and Betty, 9, both at Hookway school.

KIDS TO EXHIBIT PETS AND HOBBIES AT KEYMEN SHOW

Award Night Program Due Saturday.

Kids, the chance to show off your secret passion—whether it be pet or hobby—is here again! The Keymen of Englewood will hold their third annual hobby and pet show this week at the Englewood Y. M. C. A. The show is open to all south side boys and girls between 8 and 18. Arthur Swanson, 7146 South Maplewood avenue, is general chairman.

FRED BAER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Entries close Tuesday evening, and blanks may be obtained either at grammar schools in the district or from the "Y," 66th street and Union avenue. The exhibits will be moved in on Wednesday and arranged Thursday. Judging will be done Thursday evening and the show will open at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. It will continue until 10 o'clock that evening and from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. Saturday.

Special Exhibits Division.

A sixth division, "special exhibits," has been added this year to give older hobby riders a chance to show the youngsters what they collect. This arose from last year's show, when Frank C. Rathje brought in his metal statuary, James F. McFarland showed the helmets, swords, and bayonets he collected while overseas, and Fred Baer contributed the two story doll house he built for his daughter.

Mr. Rathje is president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company, Mr. McFarland is executive secretary of the "Y," and Mr. Baer is president of the Keymen.

One of the divisions, collections, will have one of last year's winners back for more honors. He is William Bull, 16, of 6730 Peoria street. Buttons are his specialty. Rocks and stamps are expected to be other popular classes in this division.

Handicraft and Arts Section.

Then there will be handicraft—woodwork, sewing, plane and boat modeling, etc. The arts section will attract drawings, cartoons, paintings, and stories.

The performance division makes a place for singing, dancing, and instrumental music and declamation. All entering will compete at 7 o'clock Friday evening. The best talent will be picked to entertain on the award night program, which will begin at 8 o'clock Saturday.

Judging of pets will take place between 2 and 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon and young masters and mistresses will be asked to return that evening with the best performers. Other criteria for pet judging: Thoroughbred, best groomed, most useful, most unusual, most interesting, most beautiful, and oldest.

Ribbons are to be awarded the various winners in an estimated thirty classes within the five regular divisions. Recognition also will be given to the special exhibits.

The show is believed by its sponsors to be the largest of its kind in the city. More than 300 different boys and girls are expected to take part, representing an increase of 20 per cent over last year.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

IT'S worse than a jigsaw puzzle, this business of packing up and heading home after five months in Florida. Kenneth F. Beers sends a snapshot along to prove it—a sedan, family size, and in front of it, a pile of baggage, twice that size, recognizable as two small trunks, four satchels, two washtubs, a sack of potatoes or such like, radio, golf bags, dust pan, oil can, knapsack—well, anyway, he and the missus are relieved to be back home at 6433 Stewart avenue again, with all the duds in their proper places.

Bert Grove, exchange editor of Lindblom's Weekly, writes in about the model of the state and federal exhibits at A Century of Progress which two Lindblomites have made, the first of its kind. It is on the quarter-inch scale, measuring about 9 by 4 feet, and Bert thinks Our Town should hear about it.

MEMBERS of the Washington Heights Methodist Episcopal church have cast their eyes on the plight of the school teachers and unanimously passed a resolution urging immediate cash payment to teachers at least of a part of their salaries, and rigid prosecution of tax slackers. They're sending it to the mayor and to the press for their best attention.

Here's a tip to Our Towners! Mrs. F. R. Schroeder, 6723 Emerald avenue, is sending letters to all her visitors during the world's fair of 1893, inviting them to visit her again this summer during A Century of Progress exposition. One of them, Mrs. C. D. Anderson of Los Angeles, already has accepted, and was so delighted she had to tell Our Town about it.

ENLIST WOMEN IN MAKING PLANS FOR FAIR GUESTS

Various Districts Map Details for Summer.

The business of selling Hyde Park to the world as the ideal stopping place for World's Fair visitors moved forward last week as plans were whipped in shape by the local committee. At the same time the Roseland-Pullman Century of Progress group prepared to expand so that women of the community will have an important part in preparations.

All women's organizations of Greater Pullman have been asked to send representatives to a special meeting at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening in South End Chamber of Commerce headquarters, 11145 Michigan avenue. Bartholomew O'Toole, chairman of the local group, will outline his suggestions for participation of the women and ask their coöperation.

Triple Selling Program.

Hyde Park's plan, as outlined by J. V. Parker, chairman of the local committee, involves a triple selling program. First, a four page folder will go out to civic bodies over the country. This will tell the advantages of Hyde Park—its proximity to the exposition grounds, its transportation facilities, its ambitious hotel organization, its rooming facilities, its restaurants, its merchandising sufficiency.

The latter two points will be stressed more, however, in a second folder to be placed in all rooming houses listed by the committee.

"We know very well," said Mr. Parker, "that visitors are not coming here to buy dry goods, hardware, drug articles, and what not, but we also know that people are apt to need things while they are with us. To direct them to our local merchants for these is our object."

Screen Vacant Store Windows.

The third part of the program concerns Hyde Park's doing a little preening. Visible effects of the ravages of depression are being wiped out as much as possible. No vacant store windows will greet visitors to Hyde Park, arrangements being made with owners to fill these with displays of various merchants. Mr. Parker feels that the apartments and hotels will take it as a matter of personal pride to appear at their best. The same also will apply to landlords with rooms to rent. Vacant lots and other potential eyesores are to be leveled and kept clean, partly through idle men's work relief. Further, an appeal is being made to merchants and home owners to paint up.

Reliability—equal to that placed by a stranger in a church or a Y. M. C. A.—is being sought after by the committee. The 55th Street Business Men's association is sponsoring all Fair activities and its history will be outlined on the folder to be mailed out over the country.

A renting bureau will be opened soon, and a thorough inspection of all rooms will be made before they are listed, Mr. Parker said. Another point being made by Hyde Park is that rooms may be obtained there at any price visitors desire. Ward B. James, managing director of Hotels Windermere and president of the Jackson Park Hotel association, has offered to coöperate with the committee in directing to it visitors desiring less expensive quarters.

Y. M. C. A. Makes Plans.

The Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. is making elaborate plans for a full house, already having booked from 150 to 200 boys each week between June 12 and Sept. 1. Facilities are being expanded, in case the visitors decide to take any time off from sight seeing.

Mr. Parker's committee includes J. Gail Strader, Harry Brown, Arthur Winters, R. O. Byerrum, Robert T. Braithwaite, and Louis J. Harris, president of the Hyde Park Kiwanis club.

Any householders of the district wishing to list rooms are asked to make their requests to the South End Chamber of Commerce, asking that a representative be sent to inspect the rooms.

'HIGH SPOT' HOUR IS ALL THAT ITS NAME IMPLIES

W-G-N Builds New Show in Dull Season.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

DEL OWEN.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

While many stations are losing their biggest programs for the summer, W-G-N has developed a new one that gets better each week. It's the "High Spot of the Air" heard at 8:30 Tuesday evenings. The show features Arthur Wright, young tenor "discovered" at one of Hal Kemp's Monday night revues recently; Virginia Clark, a charming hostess; Natalie Alt, a singer of distinction, the Chicagoans quartet, and the W-G-N Symphony, a really fine unit under the direction of Del Owen. Arthur Wright has a high, clear tenor voice that is at its best on such a ballad as "Diane." I wouldn't be surprised if he turned out to be another Donald Novis. And if you didn't hear Miss Alt sing "Quaker Girl" last Tuesday, you missed something.

Kemp's Monday night show is getting good and doing others good. In addition to Arthur Wright it has helped Ella Logan, an oxyacetylene singer, as torch singers go, to land a CBS commercial, and Wade Booth onto both networks. Booth was in fine form Tuesday on the musical end of the "Lives at Stake" program, which has been rebuilt, now featuring Hal Stokes' orchestra [with a fine string section], Charles Sears, tenor, and the blonde-blue trio, the Neil sisters. It's a program worth writing home about. Incidentally, Little Ella Logan leaves shortly for the Cocoanut Grove, Los Angeles, where she will be heard with Abe Lyman.

The movies are going radio again. Hal Kemp takes his band of precision artists to the Chicago theater for the week of May 19. Earl Hines and his Grand Terrace air band are there now and Borrah Minnevitch will be there the following week. Morton Downey will be at the Palace that week. Gus Van, who has made quite a radio name for himself since his partner, Schenk, died, is there now, and Singin' Sam is coming to the Chicago.

Six weeks is all that Guy Lombardo and his band will give to Chicago. They will arrive a week from next Friday and will be heard nightly over WBBM-CBS at 7:45 o'clock, 9:45 and after midnight. . . . Ben Bernie returns in a fortnight to the College inn and a fair spot. Buddy Rogers' orchestra will alternate with Bernie and Tom Gerun's orchestra will work for the same interests locally. . . . Johnny Hamp and his Kentucky serenaders will open at the La Salle hangar, nee Roof garden, on May 18. . . . When Mark Fisher opens the Beach walk May 17, Linda Lee, lately featured with Paul Ash, will be heard as vocalist. . . . Lucia Garcia, tenor, heard with Earl Burtnett last season, will relieve Mark as vocalist.

Ivan Eppinoff is back on the airways from the College Inn, having replaced Frank Libuse and the Levant band. . . . Charlie Straight is dispensing superior rhythm from the Auditorium hotel over WBBM. . . . Paul Ash is back in town and is heard from the Music Box on the south side.

Probably the biggest radio show ever assembled at a loop theater is slated for the Oriental which becomes a two-a-day house on May 19. Paul Whiteman and his circus will provide music; the Boswells will dispense their harmony, Jack Pearl and Burns and Allen will battle for the comedy title, and there'll be a ballet. That show will cost money. Whiteman is to return to the air soon on a new sponsored series, with motor interests paying the bills.

Ralph Ginsburg and his Palmer House ensemble are reaching out these days. At 1:30 o'clock Mondays they are heard over a network of 48 Columbia stations. . . . Wendell Hall sings over a CBS hookup Monday nights at 9:45, the spot formerly occupied by Myrt and Marge. Wendell will sing his latest hit, "Dancing in 3.2 Time," on W-G-N at 1:15 today. . . . "Stamp Adventurers club," inaugurated the past week on CBS, dramatizing the life stories of the men whose faces grace stamps, sounds like an intriguing feature for youngsters. . . . Doris Robbins ["Good News," "Whoopee"], singer with Ben Pollack's orchestra, is the wife of Mel Jennssen of the Casa Loma orchestra, CBS reports.

With so many commercials going off the air some of the finest entertainers, who seem to be hard to sell to sponsors, are providing real treats these May nights. Nino Martini, young Italian tenor, and Howard Barlow's orchestra are the first to come to mind.

There simply is nothing on the airways quite like the choral singing of Ace Brigode's orchestra. It's Ace high! Fred Waring's also deserves cheers.

Though baseball broadcasts do not intrigue this observer, he has no sympathy with the view that the Elsons and Tottens should get off the air for the Philharmonic Symphony broadcasts. The revenue from baseball broadcasts helps to make possible such broadcasts as the late great Beethoven Cycle of the N. Y. Philharmonic. They cost money.

Everett Marshall, Metropolitan opera baritone, who originated "That's Why Darkies Are Born" in George White's "Scandals" a couple of years ago, will be the feature singer on a two a week program to begin at 10:15 p. m., Monday, May 15, on N-B-C. Al Mitchell's orchestra will be heard with him.

We hope to hear more from Oritz Tirade, Mexico's fine baritone, who made his American radio premiere recently on WMAQ-NBC.

"Lonely Gondolier" Finds Company

Clyde McCoy, W-G-N dance maestro, who uses "The Lonely Gondolier" for his theme song, decided to try out the Venetian gondolas down at the World's Fair lagoon the other day. He took Miss Marjorie Nesser with him and, as you can see, she warded off possibility of loneliness. The gondolier is Giuseppe Cassadora, who will be a boatman at the fair.

Old Waltz Program

When Clyde McCoy opens his "Music Box" at 9:15 Tuesday evening over W-G-N, he will forget his "Sugar Blues" for the moment and turn to waltzes for 15 minutes. Included on this old waltz program will be several medleys, the first, "Missouri Waltz," "Alice Blue Gown," and "I Love You Truly"; the second, Strauss' immortal "Beautiful Blue Danube" waltz and Franz Lehar's perennial favorite, "The Merry Widow" waltz; the third, "Three o'Clock in the Morning," "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles." Other numbers will be "Take Me Back to the Garden of Love," with Bud Prentiss as featured vocalist, and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," with trumpet solo by McCoy. Next week at this hour Clyde will present an all collegiate program.

JANE FROMAN TO SING TONIGHT WITH LOPEZ BAND

Jane Froman, beautiful star of the air waves, will be heard again over NBC tonight at 9:15, when she appears with Vincent Lopez and his Society orchestra. Miss Froman will sing "I've Got a Right to Sing the Blues," "Soft Lights and Sweet Music," and "Rocking Chair."

CRUSINBERRY TO RETELL STORY OF SHUTOUT GAME

Two pitchers battled through nine innings without either allowing a hit or run to be scored and then one team managed to break through, score two runs and win a baseball game that has been listed as one of the greatest contests in the history of major league baseball. That game was played May 2, 1917, between the Chicago Cubs, with Big Jim Vaughn pitching, and the Cincinnati Reds with Fred Toney hurling. In the tenth inning Cincinnati scored two runs and won the game.

The dramatic story of this great baseball game will be retold on the "Headlines of Other Days" program on W-G-N at 9:10 o'clock tonight. Bob Elson, who broadcasts baseball for W-G-N every day, will re-read the news story from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of May 3, 1917. Following Elson's presentation of the story, James A. Crusinberry, author of THE TRIBUNE baseball story of that day, who for many years followed the major league Chicago teams in their championship races, will be presented to tell his eye-witness account of the contest. Crusinberry in turn will present Jim Vaughn, the Chicago pitching hero of the contests.

ROOSEVELT TO TALK OVER W-G-N AT 9:45 TONIGHT

President to Give Account of Stewardship.

President Roosevelt at 9:45 o'clock tonight, Chicago daylight time, will give an account of his accomplishments since March 4 over W-G-N through the facilities of the Columbia broadcasting system. Local NBC outlets will also carry the broadcast, which is scheduled to run 15 minutes. The President will speak from the old diplomatic room of the White House. In addition to giving an account of his stewardship, he will also tell what he hopes to accomplish before the special session of congress adjourns.

Representatives of all faiths join in paying tribute to mothers in W-G-N's Midday Service program this week, and the spirit and emphasis of their addresses will be in accord with the message of Mother's day, which will be observed on May 14. Those who will speak are: Monday, Dr. Felix Levy, rabbi, Emanuel congregation; Tuesday, Father James J. Mertz of Loyola university; Wednesday, Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago; Thursday, Amelia Sears, member of the board of county commissioners; Friday, Dr. Herbert W. Virgin, pastor of the North Shore Baptist church; Saturday, Dr. Edward C. Pugh, minister of the Hebron Welsh Presbyterian church.

Francis X. Bushman's informal chats about the movie stars for the coming week will bring listeners stories of Jean Harlow, Robert Montgomery, Marlene Dietrich, William Powell, Ruby Keeler, and Claudette Colbert. Five thousand letters a week are received by Mr. Bushman on this program heard at 10:15 o'clock each week day morning on W-G-N.

Whiting Williams, author, lecturer and industrial consultant, will be the guest speaker at the Rotary club luncheon at the Hotel Sherman next Tuesday. Mr. Williams' talk will be broadcast by W-G-N starting at 1 p. m. His subject will be "What's on the Workers' Mind."

HEART TO HEART CLUB WILL SOLVE LOVE PROBLEMS

"The Heart to Heart Club," a new type of summer program, will be inaugurated on W-G-N at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. The program is built around the many problems of love and life. Several of these problems will be presented in dramatic form every Monday evening and all of the problems will be answered by Miss Ethel King, an expert on affairs of the heart.

Listeners to this program will be invited to send in their love problems.

In addition to Miss King and Pierre Andre, who will announce the program and present the questions to Miss King, a cast of artists have been signed to present the dramatic episodes of the program. The W-G-N concert orchestra also will be heard on the program.

EVELYN RENEE.
[Seymour Photo.]

Popular songs of the World's Fair of 1893 and songs of the hour will be remembered as hit songs of A Century of Progress of 1933 will be featured on the Saturday afternoon programs by Evelyn Renee, popular W-G-N songstress. Miss Renee is heard at 2 p. m. every Saturday afternoon with Leonard Salvo at the organ. Next Saturday she will feature that great hit song of the old fair "After the Ball" and today's popular "Night And Day." In addition to the world's fair numbers, Miss Renee will present two other modern tunes on each of her programs.

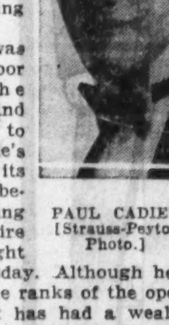
PAUL CADIEUX, WITH COLE'S ORCHESTRA, TO JOIN METRO OPERA



PAUL CADIEUX.

Paul Cadieux, internationally known romantic tenor, who sings with Richard Cole and his Empire orchestra nightly over W-G-N from the night club at the Palmer house, is under contract to the New York Metropolitan Opera company for the coming season.

Cadieux was added to the floor show at the Palmer house and also engaged to sing with Cole's orchestra on its broadcast just before the opening of the Empire room as a night club last Thursday. Although he is a newcomer to the ranks of the operatic tenors, Cadieux has had a wealth of previous stage experience. He played leading parts in road companies of "The Desert Song" and "The Vagabond King." He also appeared in the New York company of "Fifty Million Frenchmen," the last edition of "Artists and Models" as well as "The Little Racketeer." He has just completed a nation-wide tour of the R-K-O theaters.

Cadieux alternates in singing with Cole's orchestra on the air with Judith Barron, who came to the Empire club from the Central Park Casino in New York.

SOUTH PARK BOYS TO MATCH SKILL IN KITE TOURNEY

Washington Meadow to Be Site on Saturday.

The art and ingenuity of south side youngsters in the business of kite making and kite flying will be put to test Saturday morning in the annual south park tournament on the Washington park meadow. The tourney will begin at 9 o'clock, with four sectional preliminaries. Preliminary winners will fight it out in the center of the meadow at 11 o'clock. All kites must be home made and flown by the maker.

Kids from Tuley, Grand Crossing, Palmer, Hamilton, and Bessemer playgrounds will assemble in the southwest quarter of the field. Preliminaries for Ogden, Calumet, Russell, and Trumbull parks will be in the southeast section.

In the Northeast Corner.

The northeast corner will draw contestants from Sherman, Gage, Davis, McKinley, and Mark White playgrounds. Flying it out in the northwest sector for places in the finals will be boys from Cornell, Armour, Hardin, and Fuller parks.

Four events will be held by the young "kiters"—artistic, novelty, 100 yard dash, message sending. Art and workmanship will count in judging which are the most artistic creations. Kites may be crude and yet rate in the novelty event, newness of design counting. These events will be judged both with the craft on the ground and in the air.

The dash consists of getting 100 yards of string out fastest, while speed in running a message up the cord will determine the winners of the message sending contest.

Playground ball prowess will be tested during the next two weeks at all of the 19 parks in the system. Hundreds of boys will go through their paces in the five events on the card. These include fungo hitting, circling the bases, throwing for distance, pitching for accuracy, and throwing around the bases.

Ogden a Double Winner.

Ogden park was the junior and senior winner while Tuley athletes took the intermediate title in the girls' track meets, last events on the indoor schedule. Tuley also was runner-up in the senior meet. More than 500 girls took part, the junior events being swamped by 300 entries. Mann park celebrated its entrance to south park competition by copping one first place, Kathryn Sulkowski winning the junior high jump.

Summaries of the junior meet:

Potato race—Won by Irene Shaputis [Fuller]; Mary Dillerd [Ogden], second; Magdaline Bublick [Calumet], third.

High jump—Won by Kathryn Sulkowski [Mann]; Albina Bednar [Gage], second; Agnes Yucus [Davis], third. Height, 4 feet 3 inches.

Broad jump—Won by Ann Dorus [White]; Helen Tacoma [Ogden], second; Irene Vascura [Gage], third; Louise Scinni [Calumet], fourth. Distance, 7 feet 1½ inches.

Point totals: Ogden, 10; Gage, 8; White, 7; Fuller, 7; Mann, 7; Calumet, 4; Davis, 3.

Intermediate summaries:

High jump—Won by Ida Meyers [Hamilton]; Victoria Smith [White], second; Anna Ginoux [White], third; Lillian Gabriel [Fuller], fourth. Height, 4 feet 8½ inches.

Broad jump—Won by Irene Gorney [Palmer]; Irene Dumick [Tuley], second; Gertrude Konopka [Bessemer], third; Rose Demagala [White], fourth. Distance, 7 feet 4½ inches.

Point totals: Tuley, 12; Bessemer, 11; White, 10; Hamilton, 7; Palmer, 7; Fuller, 1.

Senior summaries:

Broad Jump—Won by Catherine Nossem [Tuley]; Mildred Williams [Ogden], second; Rose Kedzuf [Cornell], third; Ruth Cohen [Ogden], fourth. Distance, 7 feet 5¾ inches.

High Jump—Won by Jo Lavery [Armour]; Ethel Murphy [Hamilton], second; Sadie James [Tuley], third; Fay Johnson [McKinley], fourth. Height, 4 feet 10½ inches.

Point totals: Ogden, 13; Tuley, 10; Bessemer, 8; Armour, 7; Hamilton, 5; Cornell, 3; Calumet, 1; McKinley, 1.

Fourteen of the 19 parks were represented by place winners.

Neighborhood Theaters

The Piccadilly has "Pickup" scheduled the first half of the week. This is an adaptation of Vina Delmar's melodrama-romance, bringing with it two knockout pieces of acting. One is by Sylvia Sidney, who is the pickup. The other is by George Raft, taxi driver, in whose cab the girl seeks shelter from unwilling attentions when at sea in the city. Lillian Bond adds considerably as the rich gal who likes to play, who has Raft set to desert his "pickup" for her. Also in the cast are William Harrigan and Robert McWade.

"Sweepings" at Avalon.

Out of the ashes of the Chicago fire rises a great store on State street. Playing the merchant prince in this fictional piece laid in Chicago is Lionel Barrymore. Though scarcely necessary to say it, this fact gives reason enough for giving "Sweepings" the once over at the Avalon this week. Eric Linden, Ninetta Sunderland [Mrs. Walter Huston], Alan Dinehart, William Gargan, Gloria Stuart, and Gregory Ratoff are other players. The prince's family proves a washout as likely successors, dampening the happiness attendant on success—but there is a ray of hope in the youngest son—nice ending?

"White Sister" at Tivoli.

Two of the leading stars of the day, Helen Hayes and Clark Gable, take the leads in the sound revival of "White Sister," which is at the Tivoli. This old war romance, once played by Lillian Gish and Ronald Coleman, appears now rather as a fantasy—but it abounds in acting. The story is of a nurse who takes her vows after the reported death of her soldier lover. Support is by Lewis Stone, Louise Closser Hale, and May Robson.

Lee Tracy in Another Good One.

The curious story of a star Chicago newspaper correspondent who makes news of himself rather than getting it, is told in "Clear All Wires," which is at the Tower. Lee Tracy zips through the leading rôle with customary eclat—nothing feazes that boy! Benita Hume, girl reporter and ever faithful pal; James Gleason, his secretary; Una Merkel, vamp; and C. Henry Gordon, soviet commisar, are others of note. Africa, Moscow, and China are the locales.

Wheeler and Woolsey.

"So This Is Africa" is a Wheeler and Woolsey farce—with Raquel Torres for good measure. Showing at the Maryland, Jeffery, and Grove today and tomorrow, it tells of the adventures of the two lads who have on their hands a herd of lions. Said beasts are just the thing wanted by some movie people who have just returned from Africa with no pictures. So they all get together.

Star Card at The Shore.

The Shore has a star card this week, beginning with "Topaze" today and tomorrow. This features John Barrymore in something quite different from anything he has done previously. He is a mild mannered, imposed upon professor—until—but that might give away the story. Barrymore again covers himself with glory. "The Sign of the Cross" Tuesday brings Charles Laughton, Claudette Colbert, Frederic March, and Elissa Landi in a powerful and splendidly done De Mille production depicting the plight of the Christians in the days of Nero. Barbara Stanwyck, "first lady of the movies," stars in "Ladies They Talk About" on Wednesday and Thursday, while the week winds up with comedy—Keaton and Durante in "What? No Beer?"

42d Street at Kenwood.

Once again we recommend "42d Street" to you. This fine "musical" with "everything" is at the Kenwood today and tomorrow. Stars too numerous to list, swell music, tricky ensembles and photography are some of the ingredients of this movie.

Mary McCoy, Woods Miller to Be Cofeatured Tomorrow

Mary McCoy, soprano, and Woods Miller, baritone, will sing to the accompaniment of Nat Shilkret's orchestra during the presentation of "An Evening in Paris," to be heard over W-G-N and Columbia at 8:30 p. m., tomorrow.

'HIGH SPOT' HOUR IS ALL THAT ITS NAME IMPLIES

W-G-N Builds New Show in Dull Season.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

DEL OWEN.

While many stations are losing their biggest programs for the summer, W-G-N has developed a new one that gets better each week. It's the "High Spot of the Air" heard at 8:30 Tuesday evenings. The show features Arthur Wright, young tenor "discovered" at one of Hal Kemp's Monday night revues recently; Virginia Clark, a charming hostess; Natalie Alt, a singer of distinction, the Chicagoans quartet, and the W-G-N Symphony, a really fine unit under the direction of Del Owen. Arthur Wright has a high, clear tenor voice that is at its best on such a ballad as "Diane." I wouldn't be surprised if he turned out to be another Donald Novis. And if you didn't hear Miss Alt sing "Quaker Girl" last Tuesday, you missed something.

Kemp's Monday night show is getting good and doing others good. In addition to Arthur Wright it has helped Ella Logan, an oxyacetylene singer, as torch singers go, to land a CBS commercial, and Wade Booth onto both networks. Booth was in fine form Tuesday on the musical end of the "Lives at Stake" program, which has been rebuilt, now featuring Hal Stokes' orchestra [with a fine string section], Charles Sears, tenor, and the blonde-blue trio, the Neil sisters. It's a program worth writing home about. Incidentally, Little Ella Logan leaves shortly for the Cocoanut Grove, Los Angeles, where she will be heard with Abe Lyman.

The movies are going radio again. Hal Kemp takes his band of precision artists to the Chicago theater for the week of May 19. Earl Hines and his Grand Terrace air band are there now and Borrah Minnevitch will be there the following week. Morton Downey will be at the Palace that week. Gus Van, who has made quite a radio name for himself since his partner, Schenk, died, is there now, and Singin' Sam is coming to the Chicago.

Six weeks is all that Guy Lombardo and his band will give to Chicago. They will arrive a week from next Friday and will be heard nightly over WBBM-CBS at 7:45 o'clock, 9:45 and after midnight. . . . Ben Bernie returns in a fortnight to the College Inn and a fair spot. Buddy Rogers' orchestra will alternate with Bernie and Tom Gerun's orchestra will work for the same interests locally. . . . Johnny Hamp and his Kentucky serenaders will open at the La Salle hangar, nee Roof garden, on May 18. . . . When Mark Fisher opens the Beach walk May 17, Linda Lee, lately featured with Paul Ash, will be heard as vocalist. . . . Lucia Garcia, tenor, heard with Earl Burtnett last season, will relieve Mark as vocalist.

Ivan Eppinoff is back on the airways from the College Inn, having replaced Frank Libuse and the Levant band. . . . Charlie Straight is dispensing superior rhythm from the Auditorium hotel over WBBM. . . . Paul Ash is back in town and is heard from the Music Box on the south side.

Probably the biggest radio show ever assembled at a loop theater is slated for the Oriental which becomes a two-a-day house on May 19. Paul Whiteman and his circus will provide music; the Boswells will dispense their harmony, Jack Pearl and Burns and Allen will battle for the comedy title, and there'll be a ballet. That show will cost money. Whiteman is to return to the air soon on a new sponsored series, with motor interests paying the bills.

Ralph Ginsburg and his Palmer House ensemble are reaching out these days. At 1:30 o'clock Mondays they are heard over a network of 48 Columbia stations. . . . Wendell Hall sings over a CBS hookup Monday nights at 9:45, the spot formerly occupied by Myrt and Marge. Wendell will sing his latest hit, "Dancing in 3.2 Time," on W-G-N at 1:15 today. . . . "Stamp Adventurers club," inaugurated the past week on CBS, dramatizing the life stories of the men whose faces grace stamps, sounds like an intriguing feature for youngsters. . . . Doris Robbins ["Good News," "Whoopee"], singer with Ben Pollack's orchestra, is the wife of Mel Jennssen of the Casa Loma orchestra, CBS reports.

With so many commercials going off the air some of the finest entertainers, who seem to be hard to sell to sponsors, are providing real treats these May nights. Nino Martini, young Italian tenor, and Howard Barlow's orchestra are the first to come to mind.

There simply is nothing on the airways quite like the choral singing of Ace Brigode's orchestra. It's Ace high! Fred Waring's also deserves cheers.

Though baseball broadcasts do not intrigue this observer, he has no sympathy with the view that the Elsons and Tottens should get off the air for the Philharmonic Symphony broadcasts. The revenue from baseball broadcasts helps to make possible such broadcasts as the late great Beethoven Cycle of the N. Y. Philharmonic. They cost money.

Everett Marshall, Metropolitan opera baritone, who originated "That's Why Darkies Are Born" in George White's "Scandals" a couple of years ago, will be the feature singer on a two a week program to begin at 10:15 p. m., Monday, May 15, on N-B-C. Al Mitchell's orchestra will be heard with him.

We hope to hear more from Oritz Tirade, Mexico's fine baritone, who made his American radio premiere recently on WMAQ-NBC.

"Lonely Gondolier" Finds Company

Clyde McCoy, W-G-N dance maestro, who uses "The Lonely Gondolier" for his theme song, decided to try out the Venetian gondolas down at the World's Fair lagoon the other day. He took Miss Marjorie Nesser with him and, as you can see, she warded off possibility of loneliness. The gondolier is Giuseppe Cassadora, who will be a boatman at the fair.

Old Waltz Program

When Clyde McCoy opens his "Music Box" at 9:15 Tuesday evening over W-G-N, he will forget his "Sugar Blues" for the moment and turn to waltzes for 15 minutes. Included on this old waltz program will be several medleys, the first, "Missouri Waltz," "Alice Blue Gown," and "I Love You Truly"; the second, Strauss' immortal "Beautiful Blue Danube" waltz and Franz Lehar's perennial favorite, "The Merry Widow" waltz; the third, "Three o'Clock in the Morning," "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles." Other numbers will be "Take Me Back to the Garden of Love," with Bud Prentiss as featured vocalist, and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," with trumpet solo by McCoy. Next week at this hour Clyde will present an all collegiate program.

JANE FROMAN TO SING TONIGHT WITH LOPEZ BAND

Jane Froman, beautiful star of the air waves, will be heard again over NBC tonight at 9:15, when she appears with Vincent Lopez and his Society orchestra. Miss Froman will sing "I've Got a Right to Sing the Blues," "Soft Lights and Sweet Music," and "Rocking Chair."

CRUSINBERRY TO RETELL STORY OF SHUTOUT GAME

Two pitchers battled through nine innings without either allowing a hit or run to be scored and then one team managed to break through, score two runs and win a baseball game that has been listed as one of the greatest contests in the history of major league baseball. That game was played May 2, 1917, between the Chicago Cubs, with Big Jim Vaughn pitching, and the Cincinnati Reds with Fred Toney hurling. In the tenth inning Cincinnati scored two runs and won the game.

The dramatic story of this great baseball game will be retold on the "Headlines of Other Days" program on W-G-N at 9:10 o'clock tonight. Bob Elson, who broadcasts baseball for W-G-N every day, will re-read the news story from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of May 3, 1917. Following Elson's presentation of the story, James A. Crusinberry, author of THE TRIBUNE baseball story of that day, who for many years followed the major league Chicago teams in their championship races, will be presented to tell his eye-witness account of the contest. Crusinberry in turn will present Jim Vaughn, the Chicago pitching hero of the contests.

ROOSEVELT TO TALK OVER W-G-N AT 9:45 TONIGHT

President to Give Account of Stewardship.

President Roosevelt at 9:45 o'clock tonight, Chicago daylight time, will give an account of his accomplishments since March 4 over W-G-N through the facilities of the Columbia broadcasting system. Local NBC outlets will also carry the broadcast, which is scheduled to run 15 minutes. The President will speak from the old diplomatic room of the White House. In addition to giving an account of his stewardship, he will also tell what he hopes to accomplish before the special session of congress adjourns.

Representatives of all faiths join in paying tribute to mothers in W-G-N's Midday Service program this week, and the spirit and emphasis of their addresses will be in accord with the message of Mother's day, which will be observed on May 14. Those who will speak are: Monday, Dr. Felix Levy, rabbi, Emanuel congregation; Tuesday, Father James J. Mertz of Loyola university; Wednesday, Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago; Thursday, Amelia Sears, member of the board of county commissioners; Friday, Dr. Herbert W. Virgin, pastor of the North Shore Baptist church; Saturday, Dr. Edward C. Pugh, minister of the Hebron Welsh Presbyterian church.

Francis X. Bushman's informal chats about the movie stars for the coming week will bring listeners stories of Jean Harlow, Robert Montgomery, Marlene Dietrich, William Powell, Ruby Keeler, and Claudette Colbert. Five thousand letters a week are received by Mr. Bushman on this program heard at 10:15 o'clock each week day morning on W-G-N.

Whiting Williams, author, lecturer and industrial consultant, will be the guest speaker at the Rotary club luncheon at the Hotel Sherman next Tuesday. Mr. Williams' talk will be broadcast by W-G-N starting at 1 p. m. His subject will be "What's on the Workers' Mind."

HEART TO HEART CLUB WILL SOLVE LOVE PROBLEMS

"The Heart to Heart Club," a new type of summer program, will be inaugurated on W-G-N at 8 o'clock tomorrow night. The program is built around the many problems of love and life. Several of these problems will be presented in dramatic form every Monday evening and all of the problems will be answered by Miss Ethel King, an expert on affairs of the heart.

Listeners to this program will be invited to send in their love problems.

In addition to Miss King and Pierre Andre, who will announce the program and present the questions to Miss King, a cast of artists have been signed to present the dramatic episodes of the program. The W-G-N concert orchestra also will be heard on the program.

EVELYN RENEE.
[Seymour Photo.]

Popular songs of the World's Fair of 1893 and songs of the hour will be remembered as hit songs of A Century of Progress of 1933 will be featured on the Saturday afternoon programs by Evelyn Renee, popular W-G-N songstress. Miss Renee is heard at 2 p. m. every Saturday afternoon with Leonard Salvo at the organ. Next Saturday she will feature that great hit song of the old fair "After the Ball" and today's popular "Night And Day." In addition to the world's fair numbers, Miss Renee will present two other modern tunes on each of her programs.

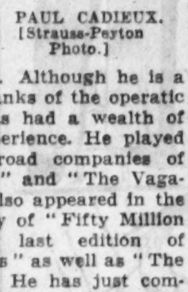
PAUL CADIEUX, WITH COLE'S ORCHESTRA, TO JOIN METRO OPERA



PAUL CADIEUX.

Paul Cadieux, internationally known romantic tenor, who sings with Richard Cole and his Empire orchestra nightly over W-G-N from the night club at the Palmer house, is under contract to the New York Metropolitan Opera company for the coming season.

Cadieux was added to the floor show at the Palmer house and also engaged to sing with Cole's orchestra on its broadcast just before the opening of the Empire room as a night club last Thursday. Although he is a newcomer to the ranks of the operatic tenors, Cadieux has had a wealth of previous stage experience. He played leading parts in road companies of "The Desert Song" and "The Vagabond King." He also appeared in the New York company of "Fifty Million Frenchmen," the last edition of "Artists and Models" as well as "The Little Racketeer." He has just completed a nation-wide tour of the R-K-O theaters.

Cadieux alternates in singing with Cole's orchestra on the air with Judith Barron, who came to the Empire club from the Central Park Casino in New York.

SOUTH PARK BOYS TO MATCH SKILL IN KITE TOURNEY

Washington Meadow to Be Site on Saturday.

The art and ingenuity of south side youngsters in the business of kite making and kite flying will be put to test Saturday morning in the annual south park tournament on the Washington park meadow. The tourney will begin at 9 o'clock, with four sectional preliminaries. Preliminary winners will fight it out in the center of the meadow at 11 o'clock. All kites must be home made and flown by the maker.

Kids from Tuley, Grand Crossing, Palmer, Hamilton, and Bessemer playgrounds will assemble in the southwest quarter of the field. Preliminaries for Ogden, Calumet, Russell, and Trumbull parks will be in the southeast section.

In the Northeast Corner.

The northeast corner will draw contestants from Sherman, Gage, Davis, McKinley, and Mark White playgrounds. Flying it out in the northwest sector for places in the finals will be boys from Cornell, Armour, Hardin, and Fuller parks.

Four events will be held by the young "kiters"—artistic, novelty, 100 yard dash, message sending. Art and workmanship will count in judging which are the most artistic creations. Kites may be crude and yet rate in the novelty event, newness of design counting. These events will be judged both with the craft on the ground and in the air.

The dash consists of getting 100 yards of string out fastest, while speed in running a message up the cord will determine the winners of the message sending contest.

Playground ball prowess will be tested during the next two weeks at all of the 19 parks in the system. Hundreds of boys will go through their paces in the five events on the card. These include fungo hitting, circling the bases, throwing for distance, pitching for accuracy, and throwing around the bases.

Ogden a Double Winner.

Ogden park was the junior and senior winner while Tuley athletes took the intermediate title in the girls' track meets, last events on the indoor schedule. Tuley also was runner-up in the senior meet. More than 500 girls took part, the junior events being swamped by 300 entries. Mann park celebrated its entrance to south park competition by copping one first place, Kathryn Sulkowski winning the junior high jump.

Summaries of the junior meet:

Potato race—Won by Irene Shaputis [Fuller]; Mary Dillerd [Ogden], second; Magdaline Bublick [Calumet], third.

High jump—Won by Kathryn Sulkowski [Mann]; Albina Bednar [Gage], second; Agnes Yucus [Davis], third. Height, 4 feet 3 inches.

Broad jump—Won by Ann Dorus [White]; Helen Tacoma [Ogden], second; Irene Vascura [Gage], third; Louise Scinni [Calumet], fourth. Distance, 7 feet 1½ inches.

Point totals: Ogden, 10; Gage, 8; White, 7; Fuller, 7; Mann, 7; Calumet, 4; Davis, 3.

Intermediate summaries:

High jump—Won by Ida Meyers [Hamilton]; Victoria Smith [White], second; Anna Ginoux [White], third; Lillian Gabriel [Fuller], fourth. Height, 4 feet 8½ inches.

Broad jump—Won by Irene Gorney [Palmer]; Irene Dumick [Tuley], second; Gertrude Konopka [Bessemer], third; Rose Demagala [White], fourth. Distance, 7 feet 4½ inches.

Point totals: Tuley, 12; Bessemer, 11; White, 10; Hamilton, 7; Palmer, 7; Fuller, 1.

Senior summaries:

Broad Jump—Won by Catherine Nossem [Tuley]; Mildred Williams [Ogden], second; Rose Kedzuf [Cornell], third; Ruth Cohen [Ogden], fourth. Distance, 7 feet 5¾ inches.

High Jump—Won by Jo Lavery [Armour]; Ethel Murphy [Hamilton], second; Sadie James [Tuley], third; Fay Johnson [McKinley], fourth. Height, 4 feet 10½ inches.

Point totals: Ogden, 13; Tuley, 10; Bessemer, 8; Armour, 7; Hamilton, 5; Cornell, 3; Calumet, 1; McKinley, 1.

Fourteen of the 19 parks were represented by place winners.

Neighborhood Theaters

The Piccadilly has "Pickup" scheduled the first half of the week. This is an adaptation of Vina Delmar's melodrama-romance, bringing with it two knockout pieces of acting. One is by Sylvia Sidney, who is the pickup. The other is by George Raft, taxi driver, in whose cab the girl seeks shelter from unwilling attentions when at sea in the city. Lillian Bond adds considerably as the rich gal who likes to play, who has Raft set to desert his "pickup" for her. Also in the cast are William Harrigan and Robert McWade.

"Sweepings" at Avalon.

Out of the ashes of the Chicago fire rises a great store on State street. Playing the merchant prince in this fictional piece laid in Chicago is Lionel Barrymore. Though scarcely necessary to say it, this fact gives reason enough for giving "Sweepings" the once over at the Avalon this week. Eric Linden, Ninetta Sunderland [Mrs. Walter Huston], Alan Dinehart, William Gargan, Gloria Stuart, and Gregory Ratoff are other players. The prince's family proves a washout as likely successors, dampening the happiness attendant on success—but there is a ray of hope in the youngest son—nice ending?

"White Sister" at Tivoli.

Two of the leading stars of the day, Helen Hayes and Clark Gable, take the leads in the sound revival of "White Sister," which is at the Tivoli. This old war romance, once played by Lillian Gish and Ronald Coleman, appears now rather as a fantasy—but it abounds in acting. The story is of a nurse who takes her vows after the reported death of her soldier lover. Support is by Lewis Stone, Louise Closser Hale, and May Robson.

Lee Tracy in Another Good One.

The curious story of a star Chicago newspaper correspondent who makes news of himself rather than getting it, is told in "Clear All Wires," which is at the Tower. Lee Tracy zips through the leading rôle with customary eclat—nothing feazes that boy! Benita Hume, girl reporter and ever faithful pal; James Gleason, his secretary; Una Merkel, vamp; and C. Henry Gordon, soviet commisar, are others of note. Africa, Moscow, and China are the locales.

Wheeler and Woolsey.

"So This Is Africa" is a Wheeler and Woolsey farce—with Raquel Torres for good measure. Showing at the Maryland, Jeffery, and Grove today and tomorrow, it tells of the adventures of the two lads who have on their hands a herd of lions. Said beasts are just the thing wanted by some movie people who have just returned from Africa with no pictures. So they all get together.

Star Card at The Shore.

The Shore has a star card this week, beginning with "Topaze" today and tomorrow. This features John Barrymore in something quite different from anything he has done previously. He is a mild mannered, imposed upon professor—until—but that might give away the story. Barrymore again covers himself with glory. "The Sign of the Cross" Tuesday brings Charles Laughton, Claudette Colbert, Frederic March, and Elissa Landi in a powerful and splendidly done De Mille production depicting the plight of the Christians in the days of Nero. Barbara Stanwyck, "first lady of the movies," stars in "Ladies They Talk About" on Wednesday and Thursday, while the week winds up with comedy—Keaton and Durante in "What? No Beer?"

42d Street at Kenwood.

Once again we recommend "42d Street" to you. This fine "musical" with "everything" is at the Kenwood today and tomorrow. Stars too numerous to list, swell music, tricky ensembles and photography are some of the ingredients of this movie.

Mary McCoy, Woods Miller to Be Cofeatured Tomorrow

Mary McCoy, soprano, and Woods Miller, baritone, will sing to the accompaniment of Nat Shilkret's orchestra during the presentation of "An Evening in Paris," to be heard over W-G-N and Columbia at 8:30 p. m., tomorrow.

the box-office's worst enemy. "Shuffle Along of 1933" is a Negro song-and-dance affair, neither as good as the best or as dull as the worst in its kind, but deserving an extra cheer or [illegible] because it has brought the Illinois theater out of the doldrums. "Riddle Me This" may be heartily recommended to people who like ingenious stories about almost insoluble crimes, and its chief actors, Roger Pryor and John Gallaudet, can be praised for their brisk, merry, and persuasive deportment as leaders of a scratch cast.

The latter play also deserves attention as a rescuer; it has placed the Princess theater back on the map of the Rialto after two years and a half of disuse. If the Princess is, to you, a forgotten playhouse, or else is regarded by you as almost inaccessible, please note that it is only half a block south of the Federal building, of whose location there has never been any civic doubt. I have been a pewholder at the Princess ever since John Barrymore got his start in life there as a clown in a musical comedy called "A Stubborn Cinderella," and have never suffered the slightest hardship in reaching its portals.

Sex Life of New York Sophistocrats.

The April survey reaches its conclusion with "When Ladies Meet," a suave, sleekly dressed comedy in which Rachel Crothers pleasantly discusses the sex habits of New Yorkers, forgiving the female of the species and impeaching the male. I have been informed that in my first-night review of this bright bit of feminist chatter, impeccably acted, I did the high-minded heroine wrong. I stated that her adultery was an accomplished fact, whereas it is merely contemplated with earnest intent. I excuse myself for this error in reporting because Miss Crothers' characters talk about adultery so lightly, loosely, and persistently that I concluded they were all members of the same club.

"When Ladies Meet" came as the last play on the Chicago program of the American Theater society. Its predecessors on that subscription schedule were "Reunion in Vienna" and "The Good Earth," which were satisfactory Theater Guild affairs, and "There's Always Juliet" and "Whistling in the Dark," which were trivialities of the commercial stage.

Theater Guild's Plans for Next Season.

The erratic conduct of the society's bookings and the fact that in other cities the organization was unable to fulfill its promises had given rise to rumors of its approaching dissolution. However, the Theater Guild, which sends its plays on tour through this system of subscription audiences, has formally announced its intention to continue.

The American Theater society will operate next season in five cities instead of twelve—Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Washington. Six plays will be offered to the subscribers—three by the Theater Guild and three by the allied managers. Subscribers may reserve tickets for either the Guild's section of the schedule or the other, or both, at reduced prices.

This announcement is another indication that the stage has entered a period of recovery from the blight with which it has been afflicted.

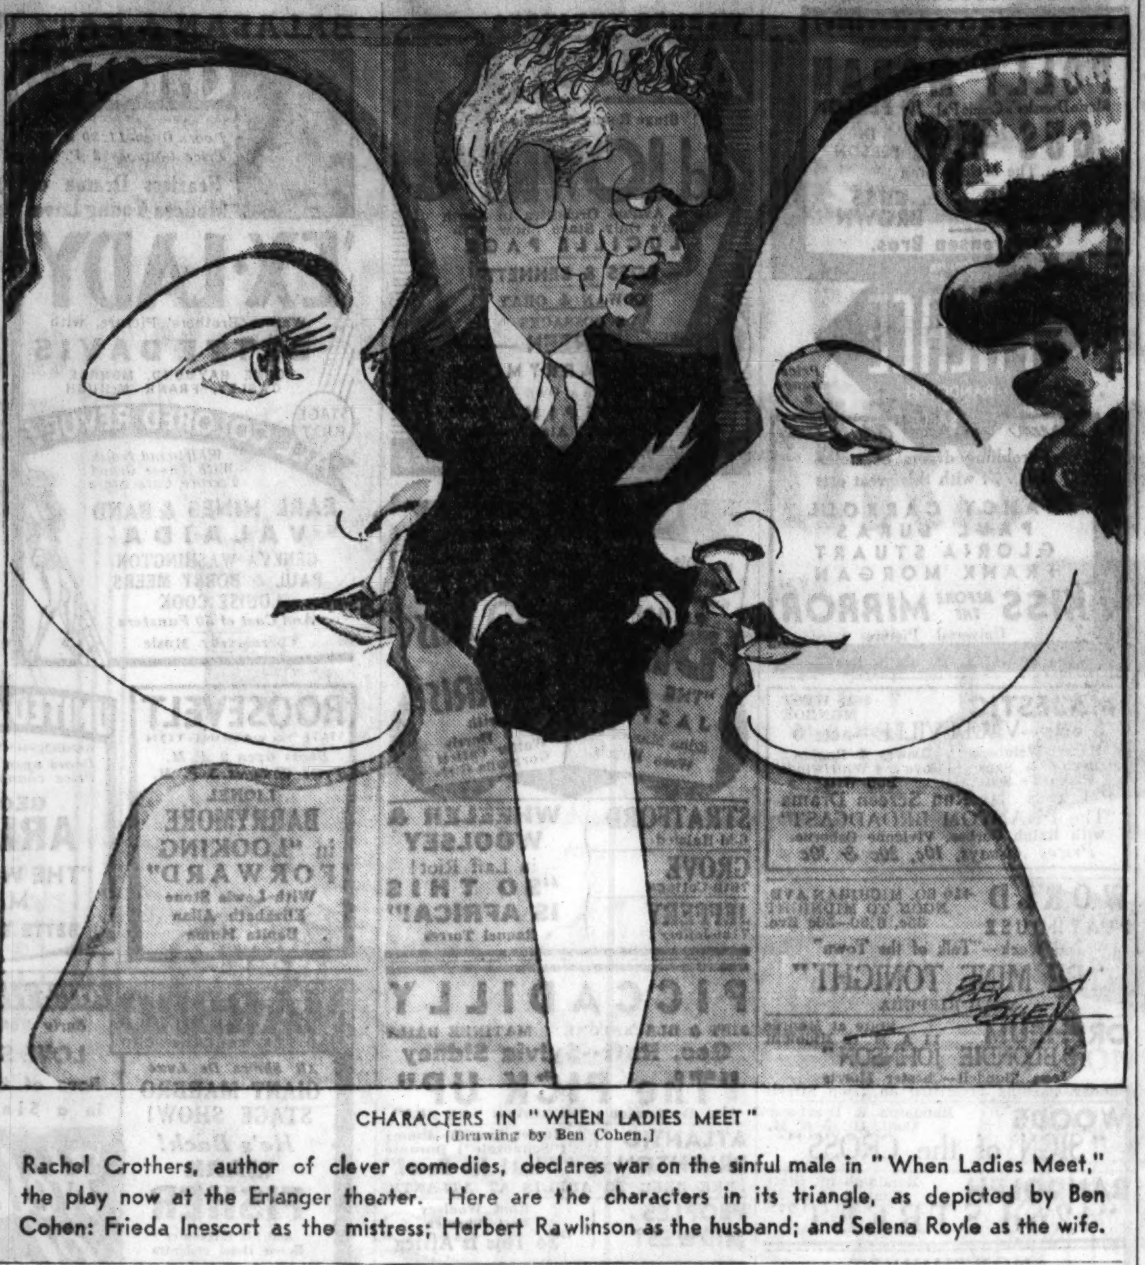
Two Women with Single Thought



CHARACTERS IN "WHEN LADIES MEET"
[Drawing by Ben Cohen.]

Rachel Crothers, author of clever comedies, declares war on the sinful male in "When Ladies Meet," the play now at the Erlanger theater. Here are the characters in its triangle, as depicted by Ben Cohen: Frieda Inescort as the mistress; Herbert Rawlinson as the husband; and Selena Royle as the wife.

Mr. Hampden at the Grand with Two Plays

WALTER HAMPDEN, the eminent actor-manager who is the leading player of classic and romantic drama on the American stage, will begin a week's engagement at the Grand Opera house tonight. He will offer two plays, "Caponsacchi" and "Hamlet." The former will be given on Sunday, Monday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights and Wednesday afternoon. The latter will be offered on Tuesday and Wednesday nights and Saturday afternoon. The night performance will begin at 8:15. The "Caponsacchi" matinée will start at 3 p. m., the "Hamlet" matinée at 2:15.

"Caponsacchi" tells a story of 17th century Italy, when jealousy, envy, hatred, greed and lust ran riot. In this story justice is triumphant in the end, the pope himself, Innocent XII., meting out punishment to the guilty and vindication to the blameless. This is one of the few plays in which the pope is a character.

Arthur Goodrich wrote "Caponsacchi" for Mr. Hampden, basing the action upon Robert Browning's poetic narrative "The Ring and the Book." The story is simple in outline, dealing with a famous murder trial in Rome in 1698. Count Guido Franceschini of Arezzo had murdered his child wife, Pompilia, and her parents. He pleaded in justification that Pompilia had eloped with Caponsacchi, the "warrior-priest," who, to save Pompilia from Guido's brutality, had taken her from Arezzo to her parents in Rome. What made this trial different from all others was that the pope, in order to read the hearts of Guido and Caponsacchi, secreted himself behind the curtains of the trial chamber to listen to their stories unseen.

Mr. Hampden's production of "Hamlet," which he has presented more than 500 times, contains much more of the Shakespearean text than is usually given. He has restored to his prompt-book a number of scenes that have been omitted in the past. They include the three short scenes [played as one] that follow the episode in the queen's closet and the killing of Polonius; the scene in which Horatio receives a letter from Hamlet after his departure for England; and the scene in which Hamlet explains to Horatio how he discovered the plot against him.

Mr. Hampden's company includes John Marquand, William Sauter, Ernest Rowan, Arthur Stenning, P. J. Kelly, Gordon Hart, Reynolds Evans, J. P. Wilson, Suzanne Jackson, Esther Mitchell [the Pompilia], Whitford Kane, C. Norman Hammond, Edwin Cushman, Mabel Moore, and Evelyn Venable [the Ophelia].

"Yoshe Kalb" Star

THE story of Maurice Schwartz, the star of "Yoshe Kalb," the Yiddish drama now in Chicago, begins in Russia, where he was born. His family moved to England and then to New York about 1912. Schwartz's desire for the stage won parental disfavor, so he had to go out and shift for himself. His talent was discovered by Morris Morrison, a German-Yiddish actor, while on tour in this country in Shakespeare and in German classics.

Morrison introduced Schwartz to David Kessler, then the leader of the Yiddish stage, who gave him leading rôles in which he acquitted himself well. In 1918 he struck out for himself and organized the first Yiddish Art theater, under great handicaps in finding suitable actors and plays.

The group now has its own playhouse at 2d avenue and 12th street, New York City, and its fame is secure. During the fourteen years of its existence Schwartz has produced over 100 plays.

Seen at the Garrick

[Maurice Goldberg Photo.]

Associated with Edna Hibbard in the cast of "On the Make," now at the Garrick theater, is this young actress, who has been hailed as a "discovery." She is an attractive ingenue and has the most sympathetic role in this comedy about the "gold-digging" racket.

Barrymore in New Comedy of Diva's Career

ETHEL BARRYMORE, under her own management, will come to the Harris theater tomorrow night in a new three act comedy, "An Amazing Career," by Victor Wittgenstein and Sheridan Gibney. The play gives her a rôle of musical background. She is first seen as a young artist in London, then ten years later in Berlin as a singer winning recognition, and finally twenty years after as a famous prima donna at the National Opera house in Paris.

Victor Wittgenstein, the play's senior author, is a concert pianist of reputation here and abroad. He has lectured on music extensively in various colleges throughout the United States, and has given poetry and music recitals with Violet Kemble Cooper in the principal cities.

Born in Louisville, Mr. Wittgenstein was educated in Kentucky and abroad. He was the last pupil to whom Edward MacDowell, famous American composer, gave a lesson. He also studied with Busoni, Joseffy and Stepanoff. After his debut in Holland he made a concert tour through Europe, playing with the best known orchestras. After his American debut, at Aeolian hall, he began a series of concert tours through this country.

Sheridan Gibney, the other author, was born in New York City and graduated from Exeter and Amherst. He spent two years traveling abroad before he returned to teach English at Hobart college. His comedy, "The Wiser They Are," was produced by Jed Harris. Several other comedies from his pen have been staged during the last two years.

Miss Barrymore, now her own manager, has engaged an excellent company to support her in "An Amazing Career." It includes David Tearle, Frederic Worlock, Sebastian Braggiotti, Alfred A. Hesse, Josephine Hull, Georgie Drew Mendum, Erna Rowan, Eleanor Powers, Misha Ferenzo, Louis Delgardo and Reed McClelland. The stage settings were designed by Robert Edmond Jones.

Vaudeville Bills

THE vaudeville portions of the programs at the two leading downtown cinema theaters contain a wide variety of entertainment. At the Palace, a famous screen comedienne leads the bill, which is composed of these following acts:

Polly Moran—The rough and ready comedienne of the screen.

Gus Van—The humorist and "character man" of the former vaudeville team of Van and Schenck.

The Diamond Brothers—Knockabout comedians.

Christensen Brothers — The third generation of a dancing family. Wiora Stoney and Elyse Crockett assist.

The Chicago theater's stage program now in performance, consists of an all-colored revue with the following entertainers:

Earl Hines and his orchestra, Valaida, former star of "Rhapsody in Black"; Paul and Bobby Meers, dancers; Geneva Washington, singer of "Raphsody in Black"; Louise Cook, dancer; Billy Mitchell, comedian; the Three Lightning Flashes, dancers; Eunice Wilson, ballad singer; the Three Blazers, dancers, and the Darktown Strutters, ballet.

Old Murder Tale Dug Up, Written in Drama Form

Remember Story of Lizzie Borden and the Ax? It's Plot of New Play.

By Burns Mantle.

Mystery Drama with Most of Mystery Gone.

As it stands the play is a fair to middling murder mystery drama, with most of the mystery and all the fight taken out of it. There is no mystery because the Messrs. Colton and Miles are evidently convinced of Effie's guilt. There is no fight because the trial scene is played off stage and very sketchily described by the neighbors.

What interest it commands is centered largely in the acting of the wraithlike Miss Gish. She is an actress possessed of a prodigious power of suggestion. She walks calmly through the rôle, her pinched little face whitened, her expression determined and set.

It is not hard to believe in her as such a determined young woman as inspired the lines:

Lizzie Borden took an ax,
And gave her mother forty whacks;
And when she saw what she had done,
She gave her father forty-one.

Daughter Mixes Grief with Hatred.

A sad little creature, her mind unbalanced by the grief she felt at the death of her mother, for which she partly blamed the insinuating Mrs. Riggs, who soon after married her father, and the hatred for both her father and stepmother she mixed with that grief. There is no sordid suggestion that the Borden money, which might be inherited by the stepmother, was involved in this case.

It is not an ax that Miss Effie Holden uses, either. She follows her stepmother upstairs with a flat iron she has been using in the kitchen, probably striking while the iron is hot, as John Anderson has suggested. After that matter is attended to she comes down and greets her father, has words with him and is looking intently at a heavily knotted walking stick in the hatrack when the curtain is lowered.

At the trial it is reported that Effie has no real defense. Some one saw her running from the house. That, she admits, is quite true. She was running to catch a horse car because she had an appointment with her fiancé. And that is all she knows about it.

She is acquitted, it is intimated in the play, largely through the influence of her church. She had always been a great church worker, even as was the original Miss Borden. And it is the Messrs. Colton's and Miles' idea that she had been so under the persuasion of her New England conscience that she was impelled to retire to her home and live out her life in a sort of passive martyrdom.

Twenty Years After the Scene of Murder.

The authors have written a prologue showing Miss Effie twenty years after the murders talking with a young reporter from Boston who has been sent by his editor to ask her if, on this anniversary of her acquittal, she has anything to add to her story, and she sweetly answers that she has not. Whereupon the reporter assures her that he is glad, and that he knows his editor will be glad to hear it. Nothing so perfect as this simple denial of a perfect crime should ever be disturbed.

Lizzie Borden died in 1927, and whatever guilty secret she may have harbored all her lonesome life died with her. The playwrights have put the time of the murder ahead nine years and Effie does not die. She is left a lonesome old woman still shut up in her tomblike home, as Lavinia shut herself in the Mannon house in "Mourning Becomes Electra," still atoning, her neighbors are convinced, for the sin that lies lightly but persistently upon her conscience.

Her Effie is the best performance Miss Gish has given. It has much more force and authority than had her Helena in "Uncle Vanya," and a much more impressive maturity than had her little girl Camille. I think I shall always see her as a little girl actress, dressing up and pretending. She is such a fragile creature, and so direct and simple and immature in her attacks. The newspapers of Lizzie Borden's day spoke of her as a "forget-me-not in the rain." Miss Gish is like that, too.

Roberta Beatty plays the artful Mrs. Riggs, making her quite understandably hateful to Effie. Robert Harrison is the Puritanical father, and Raymond Hackett the young fiancé.

"In Person"

POLLY MORAN.

She is one of the famous comic women of the cinema shows, now on leave of absence from the Hollywood studios and meeting her public face to face across the footlights. Miss Moran is chief entertainer at the Palace theater this week.

'Take a Chance' Ready for Tour; Broadway Stage

NEW YORK, May 6.—[Special.]—"Take a Chance" will have two new principals on June 5 when Ole Olsen and Chic Johnson, a team of vaudeville comedians, will enter the cast. They will replace Jack Haley and Sid Silvers. According to Laurence Schwab, who is coproducer of "Take a Chance" with B. G. De Sylva, Olsen and Johnson have purchased a 50 per cent interest in the approaching tour of the production.

A series of ten new plays will be tested at Parson's theater in Hartford, Conn., beginning May 15, under the auspices of William Caryl, an executive on the staff of the Shuberts. A separate company of Broadway players will be engaged for each production and each engagement will be for one week.

"Ten Minute Alibi," a London success, will be the opening attraction. The second bill will be "The Poor Little Thing," by Marianne Brown Waters.

The rights to Sacha Guitry's latest play, "Chateaux en Espagne ["Castles in Spain"], recently produced in Paris with the author in the cast, and a new play by Jacques Deval, who was represented on the Broadway stage early this season by "Mademoiselle," have been acquired by Martin Herman, general manager for and brother of A. H. Woods. Mr. Herman recently returned from a three months' trip abroad, during which he visited nearly all the European capitals and saw most of the current theatrical offerings.

Seven Broadway attractions will close their engagements tonight. They are "Dinner at Eight," "Both Your Houses," "The Party's Over," "Autumn Crocus," "Alice in Wonderland," "The Best People," and "Riddle Me This." Of the foregoing only "Dinner at Eight" and "Both Your Houses" will be sent on tour.

B'way Openings

New York, May 6.—[Special.]—Five premières are scheduled for Broadway next week. Two of the productions will be revivals. The most important item on the list is a new offering by the Theater Guild. Here are the announcements:

"The Mask and the Face"—Opens tomorrow night at the Guild theater. Here is the fifth production of the Theater Guild, and the last one for the current season. It is a comedy by Luigi Chiarelli, in an adaptation by Somerset Maugham. Judith Anderson is the chief player, and others in the company include Ernest Cossart, Stanley Ridges, Laura Straub, Humphrey Bogart, and Leo G. Carroll.

Studio Expects Girls Will Like Raul Roulien

New Engaging Personality from Brazil Has Lots of Pep and Personality.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

RAUL ROULIEN.

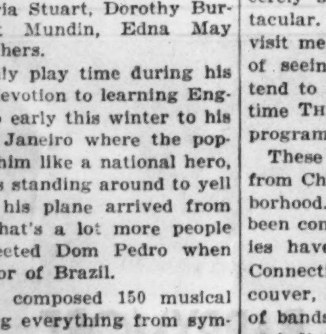
Roulien is a Brazilian, son of Italo-Brazilian parents and is 26 years old. Before he was 24 he was a noted figure in South American countries as a singer, composer of tangoes, and actor of the engaging musical comedy type, such as Maurice Chevalier.

Two years ago he arrived in New York from Brazil unable to speak a word of English. Unacquainted with any one there, he went to the Fox offices without any introduction, requested a movie test and happened to apply to just the right person. He was given his test. During the test he sang. On the strength of it he was awarded a minor contract and the job of singing a Spanish song to Janet Gaynor in "Delicious."

Roulien decided the thing to do was learn English. He went on a strictly English speaking régime. Shunning his best friends here who spoke Portuguese, Spanish, French, and Italian, all of which he had already mastered, he read only American newspapers, attended two or three talking films daily, and spent a small fortune trying to make the telephone operator understand the number he was trying to call. By dint of which he gradually learned English.

Given First Chance in English Starring Role.

Fox played him in a succession of Spanish language pictures and, pleased with the box office return on his films from Latin America and Spain, the studio is now giving him a chance in his first English starring rôle, in "It's Great to Be Alive," with a cast including Gloria Stuart, Dorothy Burgess, Herbert Mundin, Edna May Oliver, and others.



GLORIA STUART.

Roulien's only play time during his two years of devotion to learning English was a trip early this winter to his native Rio de Janeiro where the populace greeted him like a national hero, 200,000 persons standing around to yell hurrah when his plane arrived from the north. That's a lot more people than ever greeted Dom Pedro when he was emperor of Brazil.

Roulien has composed 150 musical pieces including everything from symphonies to dance music. His tango "Adios Mis Farras" sold 1,700,000 records and 500,000 sheet music copies.

He's a smiling black haired youth whose over average height is concealed by a slight roundness of figure, with pep both as a dancer and tangoist. In disposition he's the kind of genial fellow whom everybody singles out of a group to ask first: "Got a cigaret? Say, can you lend me a match, too?"

Fox thinks the American girls will like him and is spending a lot of money to try to prove it. The film Roulien is just completing was first made by him in a Spanish version, and when it ran more than six weeks in Madrid the studio decided it was worth a try in English. They are using 100 chorus girls in his picture. Sammy Lee is directing the dances, Al Werker is directing the picture, and William Kernell is responsible for the music. John Stone, a veteran of the foreign language talkie department, said Hollywood is supervising the film carefully, for there's a small fortune at stake in this effort to put over a new foreign star.

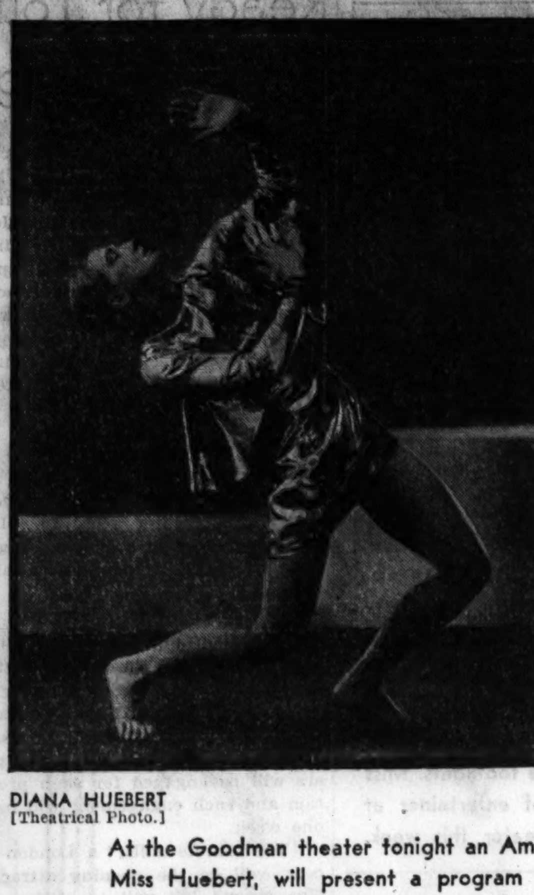
Dr. Beebe to Leave on New Expedition.

An arrangement for screen showing of the strange sights to be found 3,000 feet beneath the ocean surface probably will follow the visit of Dr. William Beebe, "bathosphere" scientist, to the Hollywood studios last week. Dr. Beebe was with W. S. Van Dyke, explorer and film director at M-G-M studio. He said he expected to descend 3,000 feet beneath the surface in an expedition starting shortly from New York and Philadelphia on the yacht of Edwin Chance of Philadelphia. They will stop at Pearl island near Panama and then on to Bermuda. Dr. Beebe dangles half a mile down in a steel spheroid with no contact with the surface but a slender steel cable.

Dorothy Burgess says she's the only bad woman left on the screen. "They've all reformed except me. The last one to turn decent was Myrna Loy and, before her, Jean Harlow. I guess I just got off to a bad start with that mean Mexican girl in 'Old Arizona.'

Willy Pogany, famous artist, entertained with an at home this week on the occasion of his completion of a portrait of Dorothy Dwan of siren fame, now married and a mother. Many Hollywood celebrities crowded his studio apartment.

Of the Dance



DIANA HUEBERT

At the Goodman theater tonight an American artist, Miss Huebert, will present a program of new and significant forms of the dance, which, she explains, runs through the traditional to the modern. Within the last year she has created a new individual cycle.

Plans for New Music Festival Are Taking Form

By Edward Moore.

year by as active a coöperation as we can establish.

"The council congratulates THE TRIBUNE for its idealism and courage in this great undertaking and wishes it the magnificent success it deserves."

City Editor of Staats-Herold Pledges Co-operation.

Joe J. Ross, city editor of the Staats-Herold, is another to pledge cooperation. "Naturally, we will be very glad to coöperate with you to make the Music Festival a success," he says, and later, "If we can help you in any way to bring about the participation of the German singing societies please let us know."

The next letter shows the point of view of one who was not a participant in past programs, but attended the festival and enjoyed it:

"Would you kindly advise me on what date THE TRIBUNE is putting on its annual program at Soldiers' field? I cannot at this moment recall what it is called, but I refer to the numerous bands, group singing, etc., that was held one evening last summer which I was fortunate enough to see for the first time. I can sincerely say that it was, indeed, spectacular. I am having my parents visit me this summer for the purpose of seeing the World's Fair, and intend to have them come at about the time THE TRIBUNE again puts on this program. S. J. KRESGE."

These are specimen letters received from Chicago and its immediate neighborhood. They have by no means been confined to that district. Inquiries have come from as far east as Connecticut and as far west as Vancouver, B. C. Entries are coming in of bands, of drum corps, of choruses, of individual soloists. There is every indication that there will be more than in any of the past seasons, which were measured literally by thousands. Address your inqairies to Phil Maxwell in care of this newspaper.

The date is Saturday, Aug. 19.

School Children to Figure in the Exposition.

Dr. Browne, in addition to giving a helping hand to the Chicagoland Music Festival, is engaged in seeing to it that Chicago's school children are in the foreground musically for the edification of visitors to the World's Fair.

Three hundred and seventy-five junior high school choristers have been practicing for the last six weeks for the presentation on May 19 in Orchestra hall of Gabriel Pierné's elaborate and difficult work, "The Children's Crusade," in which they will appear with the Apollo Musical club under the direction of Edgar Nelson.

The presentation is to be repeated, if all goes well, at the Century of Progress exposition. In addition, Richard Atwater has written a set of lyrics descriptive of Chicago, for which Dr. Browne has written the music, to be presented during the Fair. "Songs of Chicago Town: A Lyric Garland," they are called, and Lyon & Healy, Inc., are the publishers.

The lyrics are seven in number and are written for two and three part choruses. Here is one of them:

City of the lake, city of the bridges,
City of trees and towers,
How have you grown in a hundred years alone,
By what magic powers?
City of the ships, city of the river,
City of stone and steel;
City of lights that sparkle in the night,
What does your proud name reveal?

C! stands for your million Children,
H! is for your youthful Heart;
I! proudly peals for your Ideals,
C! is for the Courage of your art.
A! is for the Always you shall stand here,
G! is for the Glory of your crown—
O! is what we cry, at your beauty 'gainst the sky.
That's our Chicago Town!

HISTORIETTE

DAVID MANNERS is an English chap. He was born Rauf de R. Acklom, is a cousin of Lady Diana Manners, and therefore claims relationship with the dukes of Rutland. Halifax, N. S., witnessed his advent into this vale of tears. He attended school and completed a course in the faculty of forestry at the University of Toronto.

DAVID MANNERS.

The stage called him, however, and for three years he played in stock. Then he came over to New York, joined the Theater Guild and was cast in "He Who Gets Slapped"; appeared variously in "Dancing Mothers," "The Witch," and "The Rivals"—dropping his own name so far as the stage was concerned, and became known professionally as Michael Dawn.

He was with Eva Le Gallienne and her Civic Repertory company for a season. Then the pictures took him over. "Journey's End" was his first big movie. He had the rôle of Artie in "Mother's Cry." Other films in which you have enjoyed him are "Last Flight," "The Greeks Had a Word for Them," "Lady with a Past," "A Bill of Divorcement," "Crooner," "They Call It Sin," "The Death Kiss," and "The Mummy." He is tall, dark, and fond of outdoor life.

"SECRETS" blew into town at Eastertide and brought "Little Mary" back to us. I thought of her "A new Mary who is still the old Mary. The beloved little girl—'America's Sweetheart'—grown up into a woman whose brown eyes and tender mouth retain their winsome smile; whose fair hair frames a face as lovely in maturity as in childhood. . . . Acting, like appearance, has taken on warmth and color. . . . I think that 'Little Mary' has become just the sort of 'Big Mary' her multitudinous adorers would have her. . . . VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Agreed: He's a Good Actor.

Dear Miss Tinée: For a number of years I've been watching the work of a young actor on the screen and wondering why more people don't recognize his greatness. I mean that fine, talented artist, George E. Stone. His work in "Cimarron" as Sol Levy, the little down trodden Jew, was a work of great beauty. Then again in "Front Page," "Taxi," "Little Cæsar," and "Five Star Final" he again walked off with the honor—through no malicious intent but simply because he acted as well as he could.

Are you going to leave such a blazing artist go unnoticed? He's a far greater actor than many a leading man in Hollywood. Watch out for that fine person, George E. Stone.

Sincerely,
WEBSTER H. SCHAEFER.

Editor's note: You're right. He does deserve a hand.

Chicago Music Friends Plan Concert Series

First Will Be Given June 7; Later Ones to Be Held on Exposition Grounds.

By Cousin Eve.

THE Chicago Friends of Music are doing the popular thing. They are giving a series of Chicago Symphony concerts at the Auditorium theater, popular concerts at popular prices. The first will be held Wednesday evening, June 7, and that most popular artist, Claire Dux, is announced as the soloist. Of the concerts which will follow during the course of the Fair, a series will be given directly in the grounds in hot weather, in the courtyard of the Hall of Science, I believe. Several guest conductors are contemplated, along with our own distinguished leader, Frederick Stock.

Mrs. Frederic Upham, chairman of the Friends, has taken a week off. She is at present making the rounds of the gardens of Virginia, stately gardens of the past, with Mrs. Randolph Ortmann, formerly of Chicago, now of Greenwood, Va. Still continuing on this committee of the Friends of Music are Mr. and Mrs. John Carpenter, Mrs. Charles Swift, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Mrs. Athur Meeker, Mrs. Joseph Cudahy, Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. Charles Howard, who publicizes, and several more.

Two Important Weddings.

A wedding or two: Anne, daughter of the Walter Shuttlers, and Norris Love; Marjorie Horton and Winston Elting, all names known in Chicago's history. The latter wedding next Saturday will draw the pretty world to Lake Forest. At the Church of the Holy Spirit at half after four that much admired young beauty, Marjorie Horton, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Rinaker, will marry Winston, second son of Victor Elting.

A reception follows at the Rinaker residence, 645 College road. A small wedding, I imagine, it will be a lovely one with six bridesmaids or seven. The bride's good looks are of such a delicate, ethereal quality (she is an ashen blonde with dark eyes and lashes) that I fancy nobody will regret for this ceremonial.

Parties for them are already starting, about three a day. On Monday the groom's aunt, Mrs. Thomas Grover (his mother's sister) had a large lunch at the Arts club, abounding in Winstons and Eltings, a family affair. Lilacs and pink stocks were bunched everywhere.

The night before the wedding a gay dinner for forty at the Rinakers, whose house is large and ample. Marrieds are included, among them Donald and Mrs. McPherson, James and Mrs. Forgan, and the Wayne-Chatfield-Taylors, the Laird Bells. Dancing, of course.

Visitors from Abroad.

Coming soon, one of that ever increasing number of British economists, Sir Josiah Stamp. He will reach our shores (Lake Michigan) in time to help open the Fair. One of his sons, young Dr. Stamp of London, is married to the former Frances Bosworth of Evanston. Sir Josiah is president of the Midland bank and was, I hear, instrumental in having that big shot among trains, the Royal Scot, brought over to pair off with the jewel studded train loaned by the president of Mexico. Sir Josiah will also deliver an oration here before the Commercial or the Bankers' club soon after his arrival.

Cards are being sent out this week by two Austrian barons, cousins, who are starting with a bang a new venture. On the evening of May 19 they open, with the assistance of a clever

Prim Senate Ladies Relax: They Take Up Smoking

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—There's a new deal over at the Senate Ladies' club. The gals are allowed to smoke their after-luncheon cigaret.

And maybe that isn't news.

For the Senate Ladies' club is just as prim as its Cranfordlike name indicates. It is composed of the wives of the senators, with the spouse of the Vice President for presiding officer. Women who may have smoked like chimneys on Monday and on Wednesday have gone to the club luncheon of a Tuesday with their smokes hidden carefully in the bottom of their handbags.

Then along came Mrs. Garner, who, by the way, does not smoke. But she knew a lot of women who did; saw them lighting up at other luncheons; thought it a little foolish not to have them act natural at their own club. So the other Tuesday morning she telephoned a few of the members; asked them if they smoked; suggested they bring along their cigarets.

They did. After luncheon they lighted up. Mrs. Smith Wildman Brookhart, whose husband was defeated for reëlection out in Iowa, but who still had guest privileges, took one horrified look at the matches, said a few plain things about women who smoke, in general, and about senatorial wives who smoke, in particular.

Mrs. Brookhart, so the story goes, was so vehement in her protest that she quite terrified Mrs. Homer T. Bone, wife of the new Democratic senator from the state of Washington, who had her hand all poised to take an offered cigaret, thought better of it, and quickly withdrew her hand. There was a lot of uncertainty and uneasiness among many of the members.

Which moved Mrs. Garner to remark, when somebody asked her if cigarets were to be permitted at all subsequent meetings:

"Certainly, then we won't act so silly when somebody starts to smoke."

- I have long maintained that Washington is the sanctuary of the vanishing visiting card. Back home you purchase a pack of a hundred and the cards last you—well, when was the last time you bought some? But here, where everybody has to call on everybody of higher social rank (and you'd be surprised how many people are of higher social rank), the card game is tremendous.

Just the other day Albert Brewood, giving a talk on "The Engraving Industry," announced:

"It is certain that Washington uses more engraving than any other city of its size in the world and probably more than any city twice its size."

The reason?

Mr. Brewood says:

"This is because Washington is the center of social and official

Easterners Are Ready for Trek to the Country

Newport, Southampton, Watch Hill, Greenwich Lure Annual Visitors.

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Now is May, with lilacs and violets abloom, and dogwood ready to turn the countryside white and pink. Therefore, with great good sense, society this last week has been busied with packing its lares and penates (though how to pack the latter, one can't explain), and getting set for the hegira to its country homes.

Every year now notables are spending more and more time in the countryside. Frankly, the bucolic existence has become exceedingly fashionable. No longer does one have to bother about summer seclusion during the dull period in town, for every one leaps at a bid to a country home, and Fridays to Mondays are quite the thing.

There has been a movement back to nature and society has gone pell-mell into it. Nice, loungy tweeds and baggy trousers; neighborhood meets and local charitable fairs and fêtes. It is the old country life of La Belle Angleterre come into its own again. Even in staid, stupid Newport community activities form quite the greater part of the colony's social round.

Youthful in Spirit.

Frankly, it's fun. People seem to be much more youthful in spirit than heretofore. From Greenwich to Tuxedo Park and from Southampton through all of Long island to Montauk and across to Watch hill there is visiting and entertaining the whole summer long. We like it.

But don't think for a moment town is forg[illegible] or abandoned. All our summer spots are so lo-

Plan Mothers' Aid Breakfast for May 10th

Gala Program of Playlet, Dances and Music Will Mark the Occasion.

By Ruth DeYoung.

THIS is the story of the Mothers' Aid of the Chicago Lying-in hospital and dispensary, a romantic story with a strong love motif. Today we have chosen to tell it because the aid is to hold its annual Mothers' day breakfast at high noon Wednesday at the Standard club.

MRS. HARRY B. KEMPNER.
[Webster Photo.]

One of the important events of the year, the breakfast will be celebrated with a gala program . . . a playlet by members of the junior auxiliary, dances by Helen Strauss Aaron, and songs by Fannie Cole Sample. Mrs. Harry B. Kempner, who this month will be asked to serve another two year term as president of the aid, will be the hostess.

Mothers' Aid Now Numbers Over 1,200 Women.

Twenty-eight years ago Mothers' Aid was eight women devoted to one man, some needles and thread, and a sense of duty. Today it is more than 1,200 women supplying energy and thousands of dollars for better obstetrics without blare of trumpets and palaver.

The man to whom these eight women were devoted 28 years ago was Dr. Joseph B. De Lee, then a young doctor but already well known in his profession as a perfectionist and idealist. He was a perfectionist in the field of obstetrics, which means the technique that lowers the death rate of mothers and babies. He was an idealist in his dreams of bringing this accomplishment to the greatest number of women in all living quarters of the world.

That original group of devotees styled themselves the Ruth Sewing circle. They made the bandages and surgical dressings and layettes necessary to less fortunate women and babes. Soon there developed widespread interest in the project. The membership increased rapidly and commensurate with it plans were devised for raising funds. The Memorial Flower fund was established. Then a little later the Nursery, the Memorial, the Yahrzeit, the Happy Day, and the My Mother funds.

Twenty years ago when the Chicago Lying-in hospital, of which Dr. De Lee was the founder, needed a septic pavilion this society of Jewish women provided it at a cost of $85,000. When the new lying-in hospital on the University of Chicago campus was projected [this makes the aid an affiliate of the university] Mothers' Aid was told that $800,000 would be required for a septic pavilion in connection with it. Again the aid provided the money.

Makes $1,000 Contribution to Hospital Monthly.

Now as a direct contribution Mothers' Aid is giving $1,000 a month to the hospital to provide the pavilion with anything from a washing machine to a quartz light. Yet all this lavish giving is not as significant as the tireless energy the members have given and continue to give to this work. Three days each week groups gather in the Edna B. Corsant hall of the hospital to make hospital supplies. The aid publishes a health magazine that is full of good counsel for mothers.

The mothers also have brought up their daughters to share in the work. Now there is the Junior auxiliary, with Miss Katherine Frank as the president. It has made possible the outservice department of the hospital. Mrs. Max Bernard, Mrs. Clarence Loewenstein, and Mrs. Leo R. Salomon are the three vice presidents of the aid. Mrs. Melvin L. Katz is the recording secretary, Mrs. Harry M. Goldstein corresponding secretary, Mrs. Max H. Sachs financial secretary, and Mrs. Robert M. Altman treasurer. Mrs. Ernest Freund is president of the hospital board.

Tag Day Tomorrow for Aged and Adult Charities.

Tag day tomorrow will bring out a band of several hundred workers for the Chicago Federation of Aged and Adult Charities. Proceeds of the day will go to the support of 49 organizations that maintain homes for persons otherwise helpless and homeless. Without these institutions the residents would become county charges. Every tagger will be a volunteer worker just as every other officer of the organization. The contents of every box will be given to the home whose label it bears. The tag day slogan is "If you have anything give something." Mrs. A. H. Brumback is the president of the federation.

OLD-FASHIONED GOWNS AT A LONG ISLAND WEDDING

Mrs. Benjamin Davis Williams Jr. and Miss Margaret Noyes in the old-fashioned gowns they wore at the former's marriage on April 25 in Sea Cliff, L. I. Mrs. Williams is the former Miss Isobel Pirie, daughter of Samuel Carson Pirie of Sea Cliff and granddaughter of John T. Pirie, pioneer Chicago merchant. In this picture she is wearing her mother's wedding gown. Miss Noyes, who lives in Evanston and was the only attendant, wore a green organdy gown that had been in Mrs. Pirie's trousseau. The bride's three brothers, John T., Lockwood, and S. Carson Pirie Jr., all of Chicago, were ushers.

life in our country and because the embassies and legations are located here."

● The diplomats, however, may be cutting down on their engraving bill. They are trimming their sails on every other item. The most recent thing to stir them to economy is the good old custom of bestowing a gift on a departing ambassador or minister. The rest of the corps have usually chipped in and bought a present. But, what with revolutions and changes of governments back home, the rotation of diplomats is pretty speedy these days.

It's not only farewell presents. There is also the silver vase that must be sent to the diplomatic daughter when she weds. There is the wreath that goes to the funeral of a celebrated American official. It all costs money—money that most of the diplomats haven't got. So there is a general feeling that perhaps, after all, a nice, cheerful letter on engraved, crested stationery would be just as loving.

Which swings up around the circle, so that the engraving bill probably will continue to be large at the embassies and legations.

● Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Gann are spending many quiet evenings at home this season. They love to work cross-word puzzles.

Pope Blesses Clean Speech.

VATICAN CITY.—(AP)—Pope Pius conferred his blessing on an "anti-blasphemy" medal to be issued in connection with the holy year. It will be distributed from Verona by the "central committee against blasphemy."

SAUCE for the GOOSE

By D—— D——.

UP at Lake Geneva three of the most hospitable estates are to be opened this summer to "paying guests," we understand. Will there be as many guests when they have to pay for their summer outings as there have been in years past, when hospitality was dispensed freely with no obligation on the part of a guest but to be pleasant and agreeable and to write a "bread and butter" note after he or she left?

● The best reason for being late at a dinner party was given lately by a young bachelor. He had been detained by two men—"Haig and Haig."

● What a difference it makes whether the man of color is on the stage or sitting next to one in a box! At the performance of "Emperor Jones" at the Auditorium Tuesday night a smartly dressed young couple, white, were shown into a box in which they had two seats, and when they discovered that another occupant was a large man of dark color they rushed out and insisted upon having their seats exchanged, which was done. "Emperor Jones," you know, is the story of a Pullman porter's rise to fame and subsequent fall and, although Lawrence Tibbett's dark color is a disguise, there were numerous Negroes taking part in the opera.

● Apopos of "Emperor Jones," there never was a more curious crowd in the old theater than the one that stood on the sidelines watching the socialities and celebrities promenade in the foyer during the intermission Tuesday night. Mrs. Winterbotham Buchanan and Texas Guinan shared the interest of the crowd, Mrs. Buchanan because of her backless white gown and La Guinan because of her spectacular golden hair and long, artificial eyelashes. Speculation was rife as to the identities of these two and society reporters were kept busy answering the questions of the curious ones.

● Times do change! "Don't say Marjorie kissed you," admonished a mother to her 8 year old son; "it sounds better for a boy to say he kissed a girl." "But, Mommy," John explained, "I didn't kiss her. She got two boys to hold me while she kissed me. I like her, but I didn't want to kiss her." Unless our memory fails us, it wasn't thus when we were young!

● Next time you are calling in Hinsdale motor by the Edward Warren Everetts' stunning English house on South Sixth avenue and turn your attention to the red brick of which it is built. This used to provide a footing for victorias and dapple grays in State street.

Mrs. Everett, who took a course at the Art institute in English architecture and then made a special trip to the British isles before the house was started, couldn't find after her study and investigation the suitable kind of building material. At last she discovered it in a pile of discarded State street paving brick.

● If and when Miss Sarah Carr takes her nuptial vows, she will have a kitchen papered with her favorite recipes. When the late Mrs. William Vaughan Moody wrote her cook book she gave Miss Carr the proof and she has carefully preserved it especially for this purpose.

● There are an interesting pair of black and white crayon portraits on a console table in Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard's Astor street apartment. And thereby hangs a tale.

A letter from an artist came to Mrs. Hibbard some six weeks ago at her indispensable Oak street "Conveniences," requesting a double carriage for his wife, who had been "supplemented" with twins. In sympathy Mrs. Hibbard supplied the carriage, then proceeded to look up the artist, only to discover him a man of rare ability, temporarily in straitened circumstances. Once he had been the Turkish court artist. Here he had painted Claudio Muzio and John Charles Thomas, as well as half a dozen more opera stars.

Since the baby buggy episode he has "done" a dozen prominent Chicagoans.

● Another story from "Conveniences" . . . an aftermath of the dog fashion show. A wailing gentleman's voice requested a year's subscription to a dog magazine the other day over the wire.

Said the gentleman: "My German shepherd dog has been poisoned and I can't live without him. The publishers of this dog journal tell me they will buy me another if I sell six subscriptions to their magazine. In the name of heaven, if you are as interested in dumb brutes as you appear to be, won't you buy a subscription?"

● A well known car dealer has had several cars stolen while parked in front of his house and the last one stolen belonged to his son-in-law. It was later found intact with the exception of the wheels, which were a very particular shade of green to match the trimming on the sedan and which had been removed. Two weeks later a racketeer drove into the dealer's garage for a minor repair and the son-in-law recognized his stolen wheels on the car. He asked the customer where he had got the wheels and was told that they had been taken off a car parked up on —— street. The son-in-law said rather apologetically that they were off his car and the racketeer was quite surprised and said: "Sorry, Mr. X, if I had known that I wouldn't have taken them, even though I was crazy about the color. From now on we won't bother you any more."

cated that they are not too far away from New York. Newport may be farther away than Southampton, but it is easier to get from the Rhode Island spot to town than from the Long Island one. And one can be in Newport all day and yet dine in town. Flying is popular with society, as well.

Summer, one might say, has arrived in New York. The roofs are open. Pierre's is wide to the breezes, and on Thursday the loveliest of all, the St. Regis roof, opened with, among others present who looked over the parapets to the lights and shadows of Central park far below, Mr. and Mrs. Fenton B. Turck Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. Culbert Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Pattison, Mrs. Busch Greenough, Mrs. Cheever Porter, and Mrs. Edwin Shuttleworth Jr.

Races at Belmont Are Eagerly Awaited.

Then, too, town has the racing season to depend on. The equine beauties came to Jamaica yesterday, but society will come into its own on the 27th, when the spring meet of the Westchester Racing association is held at lovely Belmont. That is the one event of the year when, given proper weather, the turnout, both in notables and fashions, vies with anything Europe can produce. There may be greater crowds at Ascot and at the Derby, but they cannot compare for smartness and distinction.

It is the one meet that New York can boast of without fear of contradiction. The beautiful old Manice house that is the clubhouse of the Turf and Field, set in the midst of lawns and ancient trees, elms, and cedars of Lebanon; sunlight coming through the windows; every one laughing and happy in the most beautiful of frocks; champagne on the tables and bubbling in glasses.

And this year, with optimism in the hearts of every one and the market rising with the thermometer, the meet will be gayer than ever.

Most Gotham Notables Sure to Attend.

All the notables of great Gotham put in a daily attendance during the Belmont meet. This year it will be twelve days in duration, until June 10. Among the boxholders are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Chicagoans in Residence on French Riviera

By May Birkhead.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The beauty of the French Riviera, its general salubrity, its abundance of sunshine, now recognized as a prime factor in health, its picturesque indentations, its semi-tropical vegetation and its outlook over the sapphire Mediterranean have steadily enlarged the colony of permanent dwellers who began to come there in increasing numbers just after the world war. The Riviera visitor knows the particularly inviting stretch which includes Beaulieu and Cap Ferrat.

In this neighborhood, King Leopold II. of Belgium had for years his impressive estate with its magnificent gardens, and nearby the aged duke of Connaught, brother of Edward VII., still spends his winters. It was inevitable that, sooner or later, Chicago should have a considerable representation in this favored spot and in fact quite a colnoy has within the last year or so been settling near Cap Ferrat.

The Sherfessees Are Latest Recruits.

Among the latest recruits are Mr. and Mrs. Forsythe Sherfessee [the former Mrs. Arthur Ryerson], who are giving up the apartment they have had for several years in Paris and are transplanting their penates, as it were, to this region. At Villefranche, where American warships are often to be seen anchored in the harbor, Mrs. Emilius Dudley has taken a small house with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. Blodgett Harvey.

The Herman Gades, who have resumed their regular Sunday receptions at the Château du Mesnil-St. Denis, had among their guests recently Mrs. Clyde Carr of Lake Forest, Mrs. Dorr Bradley, Mrs. Hugh McBirney, and Mrs. Winterbotham.

Wilhelms in Paris for Short Stay.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Wilhelm are here for a long stay. They have taken an apartment at the Hotel Majestic until the middle of May, when they leave on a motor through France.

James Hume and his bride, the former Marion McFadden, daughter of Mrs. Parmalee McFadden of Chicago, have just sailed for America after spending a part of their honeymoon here. Several of their Paris friends had planned to entertain them, but Mrs. Hume developed a bad cold about the time they arrived from Rome and had to cancel many of their engagements. After spending Easter in Rome, they made a stop at Como before coming on to Paris.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE SOCIAL SET

THEY TAKE TO BICYCLING IN KENILWORTH

Mrs. Ward Vilas and Mrs. Thomas F. Molyneaux, next door neighbors in Kenilworth, may be seen any Sunday morning riding their bicycles on the sidewalks near their homes. Special costumes for 1933 cycling are due to become as popular as were the ones of the nineties, the fashion experts predict, but Mrs. Vilas and Mrs. Molyneaux find regular clothes comfortable and convenient for their exercise.

young set, a Bavarian Schnitzelbank at 1023 Rush street. Sounds really like a new night club. I forgot to say that the co-partners are Baron von Ungarn Sternberg and Baron B. R. Maydell. The former was living in China with his mother after the great war and was brought back to Chicago by Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn.

Baroness von Sternberg is a charming person and lived for a time in Lake Forest. She frequented court circles during the reign of Franz Josef, which means sixteen generations of noble quarterings, at least. Many are engaging places for this festa, May 19.

French Princess Will Lecture in Chicago.

A great influx of distinguished foreigners this coming year. Among them that conspicuous French princess Elizabeth de Gramont, once married to the Duc de Clermont-Tonnerre. Her two recent books of memoirs are very highly geared insights into aristocratic society and social life on the great estates of France. Divorced from the Duc de Clermont-Tonnerre, she now styles herself Duchesse de Gramont, and will lecture here in mid-November. Hers will be fourth in the new series of Town Hall mornings in the Drake ballroom.

A very clever worldling, the duchesse is the owner of that delightful Château de Passy in the Rue Raynouard, an enchanting situation overlooking the Seine and parts of Paris. A pavilion of the château is now leased by Mrs. Hall Winterbotham. May Birkhead, Paris correspondent of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, wrote last week that Mrs. Winterbotham's lease was about to end, to her great regret.

Mme. de Gramont's subject is, I believe, to be on the great families of France.

Mrs. Eleanor Patterson passed through town last week in her private car, stopping only to dine with cousins. With her was her daughter, Felicia Gizicka, a lovely, tall, slender young blonde, half Polish, but rather more Slav than American, full of charm, very natural, like her mother.

Countess Felicia's father was Count Joseph Gizicki, member of the Polish great world, with estates in the Ukraine, now confiscated by the soviets. Years ago he took his young bride to these estates, and she has since made her life there vivid in a dashing novel or two. Tall, red haired, with temperament and chic, not to mention brains, she soon was the adored of all her husband's cousins and his aunts, not to mention the uncles. To this day Mrs. Patterson keeps up her Polish tradition, writes to her far distant relations, and they still adore her. Count Gizicki died years ago.

Lammot Belins in Warsaw Residence.

Here Mr. and Mrs. Lammot Belin of Washington come upon the scene. Friends of young Felicia and Mrs. Patterson, they were last fall appointed to the Polish post by President Hoover. Congress not being in session, Lammot Belin, a nephew of the Du Ponts, decided not to wait for such a minor detail as ratification, confirmation by the senate, and what not. With his wife and tons of luggage he tore over to Warsaw to await the good news there.

They leased a beautiful palace, Matejki 5, belonging to Countess Tyszkiewicz, and settled into immediate popularity and social success. Their house, a part of a huge building, royal in size, was famous for its splendid entrance—a grand hall hung with, among other things, golden saddles and stirrups and saddle cloths from Turkish wars. This Tyszkiewicz family, by the way, has a cousin in Chicago, Augustus S. Peabody, whose aunt married into the Polish aristocracy many years ago.

The Belins became the success of the Warsaw season; their dinners were brilliant and towards the end of the carnival they gave a tiny ball, most reussi. Warsaw is a difficult place socially. One is either in it or not in it. The Belins were in it, but time passed and never word of confirmation from Washington.

Countess Gizicka Guest in Polish Circles.

Felicia Gizicka arrived in Warsaw six months ago and was there for the carnival, which is the Polish gay season, lasting from New Year's until Lent. Several balls a night, opera, dinners, the palaces of the nobility lighted and full of guests. Asked to visit the Belins, she also made the rounds of all her father's relations, of whom there are many, and had the most huge success. They found her absolutely charming, and house parties were made up for her in the country, with winter sports, riding, shoots.

And the loveliest of all Polish country houses was opened for a party in her honor, Lancut [pronounced Wynset], the famous estate of Count Alfred Potocki. Count Alfred is an attractive bachelor, rather English, of 40 or so, blond, not tall, one of the wealthiest men and the greatest parti in Poland, or Europe, for that matter Why he has never married is a mystery. A very interesting man, with an historic and great title, his prestige is exceptional in Europe as he is related to several of the still reigning royal houses. At the present moment he is traveling in California with Mrs. Patterson and her daughter for a fortnight.

Hostess at Precedent Upsetting Dinner.

Mrs. Patterson gave the dinner lately in Washington that took the grand prize for upsetting precedents. There were sixty persons of the literary, journalistic, political world, Alexander Woollcott being guest of honor.

Four sub-hostesses were invited to receive people as they arrived and see that they found their places at a dozen small, flower-banked tables scattered in the great dining room. At the last moment Mrs. Patterson descended the stair on the arm of her honored guest. Wearing black lace, a white wig, and a Tosca staff, she was most stunning. Mrs. George Kaufman, wife of the playwright, was with her.

A very gay party, every table had its notables, among them Senators Capper and Huey Long. At the salad course it appeared that Senator Long is one of those senators who delights to mix his own salad. Calling for bowls and lettuce heads and oil and chives, he was soon shouting for sauces and condiments, "Hey, you! What kind of a dump is this—no tabasco—get some, quick," to the trembling footman. And with his own hands deftly shaking the lettuce and applying one thing and another, with the whole company watching him.

After dinner, guests assembled in the drawing room were diverted by the Duncan sisters. At ten o'clock a line of ambassadors began to arrive, and the smart world of Washington. It was here again that Mrs. Patterson reversed precedent. Usually the smart world and the diplomatic are dined, and the world of politics, books, the drama, etc., comes in later for the cabaret and dancing. But it was an amusing party and held in that splendid Du Pont circle house given to her daughter by Mrs. R. W. Patterson.

Entertaining Evening at the Arts Club.

The Arts club put on a good party last week when the Playwrights' theater gave three plays. Dinners were given before by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer, who were entertaining for Dr and Mrs. Glenn Frank of Madison, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, and Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh.

The club walls were covered by the collections of member artists, very interesting. Alice Gerstenberg's play, "Sentience," staged by herself, came first. Its players were three young members, Mrs. Byron Harvey as Dahlia, and Guy Whitney and Ernst Von Ammon. The story of the play is fantastic. Dahlia, a young fiancée, enters the living room of her prospective husband with him. He is a widower and she is jealous of his dead wife. They quarrel; he goes out. Then the chairs begin to talk loudly and tell her things; in fact, they spill the beans. Being sentient, Dahlia learns much that happened with these innocent looking chairs and tables as witnesses. Then she becomes reconciled to her suitor.

Very well done play. It was Chaucer's ancient idea "that fields have eyes and the wood hath ears." Very well played by Kathleen Harvey, who is quite a witch at acting, and the two men supporting.

Gerald Frank Cited as an Able Actor.

"Kamysori," a Japanese modern tragedy staged by Helen Walton, was a thriller. Gerald Frank as Kunura a barber, was the protagonist. An excellent actor, he gave everybody the jitters, gooseflesh, or housemaid's knee. Why they don't get him out in Hollywood I can't imagine. The terror he projected into his paranoiac rôle was terrific, and his victim landed almost in Victor Elting's lap in the first row. Clarence Hough, ever a clever actor; Kenneth Foster, Anita Baker, who was charming; Walter Sheppard, and John McCabe were all Japanese citizens in and out of the barber shop.

The third play, "La Giara," by Pirandello, was a masterpiece of writing and beautifully staged by Henrietta Fetzer. Sicily in October, a yard in a farmhouse. Singing peasants, barefooted and brown. It concerns a huge wine jar, new but cracked by a careless muleteer. The owner, Don Lolo, an irritable farmer, gives the job of mending to a humpbacked, ragged tinker. In the end the tinker mends the jar with himself in it.

With tenor songs, guitar music, ancient Sicilian airs by Mauro-Cottone, it was a most artistic production. The actors were Edward Pasmore, Walter Krouse, Horace Bridges, Dunlap Clark, John Van Osch, Emily Goehst, Genevieve Kasper, Jessica Swartz, and Joseph Murphy.

After this play there were light refreshments served from the buffet in the club lounge. Among Miss McCormick's dinner guests was Mrs. Parmalee McFadden, who left this week for New York after turning over her apartment at 219 Lake Shore drive to the new married James Humes, the former Marion McFadden and her husband.

On May 16 the musical artists of the Arts club will be heard in concert. This should be interesting, as many musical people belong, pianists, singers, composers.

Renaissance Society Gives a Dinner.

Tomorrow night a very elaborate dinner for the annual meeting of the Renaissance society. This takes place at International house in the great assembly room. Far as I can make out, not only is the menu very good but it is interspersed by courses of moving pictures, toasts, and a concert of light, or "lichtspiel." Then, a musical program by Charles R. Buckley of the University of Chicago orchestra. There will be some Bach and Cesar Franck and a sonata by John Alden Carpenter. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter expect to be present at this dinner, and many others from the north shore.

Last Sunday night International house had its last student supper, followed by a candle light ceremony. We came into the great assembly room, curtains drawn, students sitting at many tables by wax candle light. The guest of honor, Dr. Stephen Duggan of New York, member of the Carnegie Foundation, eminent in international education, made quite a speech when his turn came. Mostly about student life being less serious in this country than in France, Germany and Italy. Longer hours there, more grind.

Facing the audience from the speakers' table, it was like a strange dream, this sea of heads from forty-two countries. There were shining black faces: brown, tan, sepia, copper colored skins, the fair Nordics, the olive Italians and Spaniards, the rosy Dutch and Belgians, the vivacious Mexicans. Suddenly I saw the handsome, well chiseled features of Baron Tinty of Austria.

Finally Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the board of governors of International house, addressed this extraordinary gathering. He spoke with moderation in a characteristic way, with much understanding of this great college melting pot. He referred to the last seven months since International house was opened by John D. Rockefeller III. as a "shaking down voyage," like a ship which finds itself, making me think of that grand old story of Kipling's with that very title.

There had been a long meeting the day before between the governors and the student council, and Mr. Dewey said at that meeting all responsibility was put back on the students themselves to teach self-government. The council is made up of one member for every seven nationals, and the idea the speaker stressed was that national student groups should try to do things for the community and not to get things for their own group. It was a good talk, highly applauded by the house.

Charming Ceremony of Candle Lighting.

Then came the ceremony of the candles. Bruce Dickson, presiding, called the names of forty-two students, men and girls, each representing a country. They came to the stage, standing shoulder to shoulder, each holding a candle. Finally all lights snapped out and the rite began—America lighted the candle of Australia, and he, answering in the vernacular, spoke his own name and repeated a vow of international good will. Austria's Baron Tinty came next and took light from Australia, and so on.

Came China, jolly, round student, squeaking Chinese. Japan and Korea, standing neighborly; also Germany and France, clubby as anything. Irish Free State and Scotland, lots of applause, also New Zealand, studying for the ministry, and Mexico, dear little duck in spangled skirts, and Esthonia and Cuba and Poland and Peru. All lighted up, all took the oath of friendship, and it was really terribly impressive. I could almost have shed a tear, I don't know why—because, after all, perhaps they are the forerunners of the brotherhood of man.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Dickson, hosts of International house, after this charming party led us to the long living room above. Here we saw the maps to be worked in cross-stitch to hang on the walls of the reception room. A canvas prepared in two hemispheres with heraldic borders will be worked by students of all countries. Mrs. Eugene Thayer has finished her map in cross-stitch and it will soon be framed for the collection. Mrs. Chauncey Borland has done hers, also Mrs. William Bush, while Mrs. Garfield King's map of Malvina Hoffman's trip to the orient is just under way. The idea of making these needlework maps was Mrs. Charles Dewey's and she was greatly delighted with the new spherical maps to be cross-stitched by the students.

Among the interesting people we met that evening were Dr. Spearman of London, a much-in-the-eye psychologist exchange professor. He has just discovered some new kink in his profession and is lecturing at the university. And then a tall, slim, pretty medical student, daughter of China's wealthiest man. She has lived here three years.

Rummage Sale Tea Is Very Gay Party.

A very gay party of last week was the rummage sale tea at the Casino Given by Mrs. Patrick Valentine and Mrs. Charles Dempster, it had much elegance and form. Guests were seated in rows round the room while Sammy Walker played jazz with many smiles. And Mrs. Hardwick Moseley smiled happily all the time she was singing her bluest blues—which, after all, took the curse off all the sorrowful things she was singing about.

Gifts brought were stupendous. The clothesline was simply regal. Mrs. Harry Howard said that soon she wouldn't be able to go to any more white elephant teas because she had given everything already but the beds and living room chairs and a few ancient things in the dining room.

Mrs. Chalmers in a merry mood seized Mrs. Moses Wentworth and made her dance a fox trot, and later a charming Spanish girl, Mme. Cave, did merry fandangos to Sammy's music. Mrs. Dempster and Mrs. Valentine led, from time to time, different groups of ladies to the tea table spread in the fountain room, where Mrs. Frederic Upham and Mrs. Frank Hibbard were pouring coffee and tea. The rummage sale, which helps support the Children's Memorial hospital, sold $250 worth of merchandise the morning after this party.

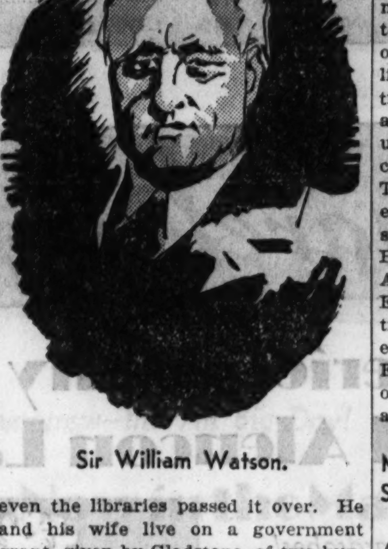
Sir William Watson, Old England's Forgotten Poet, Is Dying in Poverty

Government Annuity Ends with Death and Wife to Be Left Penniless.

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON.—[Special.] — England's most completely forgotten poet, Sir William Watson, is dying in straitened circumstances in Peacehaven, Sussex, at the age of 75.

Of his last volume of poems it is said that not a single copy was sold;



Sir William Watson.

even the libraries passed it over. He and his wife live on a government grant, given by Gladstone, of two hundred pounds a year.

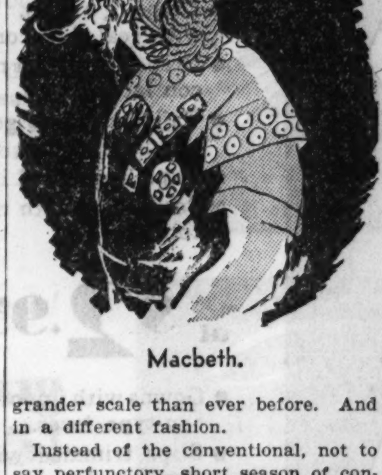
But the grant will lapse with his death and Sir William is worried about his wife, who will be left penniless, and for her sake the poet of chaste elegance and philosophical thought is willing to compromise with the world, the flesh, and the devil. He feels that his poem, "Domine, Quo Vadis," would make a good film, and he has asked Mrs. Ierne Ormsby, who is a poet and an elocutionist [and thus familiar with the stage], to write a scenario of it. This she has done and has hawked it around the film studios. But the producers can't see it. They explain gently that there is no demand for a religious film.

Black despair, I hear, has settled down on the little household in Peacehaven.

If you like the poems of Mathew Arnold you can read the poems of Sir William Watson, but even then they may not move you. The curious thing about his neglect is that no poet of his generation sought more earnestly to seize contemporary themes to "keep up with the procession." One of his first volumes is a series of political sonnets idealizing the aspirations of the Liberal party. Gladstone and England are disturbed over the unfortunate Armenians, and out comes another volume of poems. Tennyson dies, and he writes an elegy; the centenary of Shelley inspires another. He is against the Boer war, but so was Lloyd George. An "Ode on the Coronation of King Edward" gets him nowhere in particular. And now he dreams, apparently in vain, of collaborating with Elstree or Hollywood in a film. His own life must surely be as ironic as anything he has ever written.

Macbeth with Aluminum Scenery, Steel Helmets.

It is a relief to turn to Stratford-on-Avon, where we are getting the annual Shakespearean season on a grander scale than ever before. And in a different fashion.



Macbeth.

Instead of the conventional, not to say perfunctory, short season of conscientiously "costumed" plays, we are to have a lengthy season, lasting until mid-September, with "guest producers" having the complete run of the place.

For example, the town is pouring out to Stratford tomorrow night to see Komisarjevsky's extraordinary production of "Macbeth" with aluminum scenery and the characters wearing green or gray military cloaks with German steel helmets. Even the ghost will be different,—Macbeth's own shadow suddenly cast upon the wall in the banquet hall by a candle in a servant's hand.

Komisarjevsky's idea is to withdraw the play from its usual trappings and present it as an eternal theme. The supernatural will be eliminated; even the witches will be three old hags robbing the bodies on the battlefield.

Those who saw several years ago "Hamlet" produced in modern costume—"Hamlet in plus fours," as the critics dubbed it—will agree that the possibilities in Shakespeare are far from being exhausted by the conventional presentation. So we look forward to this season at Stratford with curiosity and eagerness.

Grand Wedding in the Feudal Tradition.

Dublin recently saw a "grand wedding" in the feudal tradition, when young Viscount Milton, the 23 year old son and heir of Earl Fitzwilliam, married, at St. Patrick's cathedral, Miss Olive Dorothea Plunket, daughter of Dr. Benjamin Plunket, formerly bishop of Meath.

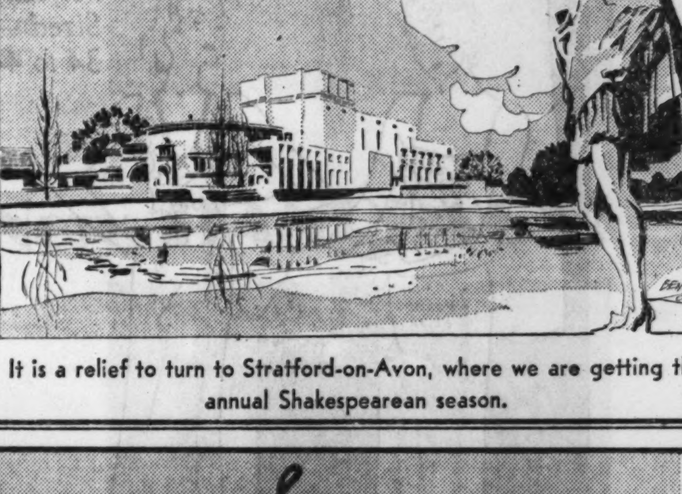
Young Lord Milton chartered two ships to take to the wedding 600 tenants and coal miners from his father's estates in Yorkshire. The ships, anchored off Dublin, served as floating hotels for the guests and at the ceremony a large section of the cathedral was set apart for them. They were also invited to the wedding reception at the earl's beautiful home at St. Anne's, Clontarf, County Dublin. If any of the Yorkshire miners wished to stay over night and visit Dublin, their expenses were paid.

Earl Fitzwilliam is one of the great land and colliery owners of England with immense estates, not only in Yorkshire and Northamptonshire, but in Ireland as well. The family, which has been rich and influential from time immemorial, traces its ancestry back to a natural son of William the Conqueror; the second earl, then one of the wealthiest noblemen in England, was one of Charles James Fox's stanch adherents in the Whig defense of the American colonists. The present earl is, on the whole, a rather retiring figure, fond of travel and with a strong bent toward mining engineering.

King and Queen's Household at Windsor.

The bride chose a plain ice-blue satin wedding gown, embroidered with pearls, and wore a wreath of orange blossoms tinted with blue. She had ten bridesmaids in tulle dresses of pale blue with St. Patrick's blue to tone, and they carried bouquets of pale yellow roses tied with St. Patrick's blue ribbon. The honeymoon is to be spent motoring in France, Italy, and Spain.

The king and queen have a big household with them at Windsor castle. The prince of Wales motors over frequently from his place nearby, while the duke and duchess of York, with their children, the Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, are lingering on for several weeks.



It is a relief to turn to Stratford-on-Avon, where we are getting the annual Shakespearean season.

TOO LONG DON'T WAIT TOO LONG

When Chicago Was Young

Mid-Victorian Days in the Mid-Continent

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, May 28, 1882.

DEAR JULIA: Will slept late this morning and didn't get to church, but I made a special point of being there, as Martha is to have a church wedding, you know. It always seems to me a trifle shabby to ask your minister to perform the ceremonies of the church for you and yet fail in regular attendance. So Martha and I represented the family. Will must go to evening service.

He attended the Commercial club's grand function at the Grand Pacific last evening and as a result is tired and sleepy today. But he says it was a fine occasion and he wouldn't have liked to miss it.

The financial and commercial magnates of Cincinnati and St. Louis met here as guests of the Commercial club of Chicago, and those present were the outstanding men of the three great western cities, of course. It is just the sort of gathering your father would have enjoyed—railroad men, bankers and merchants.

Will sat near some St. Louis men he particularly liked and admired. Next him on one side was Capt. Silas Bent, famous by reason of his polar explorations and also his connection with Commodore Perry and the opening of the Japanese ports to world commerce. We met Capt. and Mrs. Bent one summer at Rye Beach, N. H., and Will was glad to renew his acquaintance with the captain.

If I had known of his coming to Chicago I should have written to ask if Mrs. Bent wouldn't come to us for the period of the convention. She is one of the most charming women I ever knew; gentle and good and devoted to her church—the Episcopal. She was always doing something for the little church—St. Andrew's-by-the-Sea—at Rye Beach.

Another table companion of Will's last evening was C. P. Choutou, representative of an old French family of St. Louis, and a delightful person. Chicago's representatives at the dinner were such men as William T. Baker, A. C. Bartlett, A. A. Carpenter, N. K. Fairbank (who made a fine speech), Marshall Field, C. M. Henderson, George M. Pullman, John Tyrrell, O. W. Potter, and Murry Nelson.

The Rev. Brooke Herford, who leaves us soon for a Boston pastorate, was one of the speakers. Murry Nelson, who was toastmaster, said he didn't know why Dr. Herford was willing to go, unless it was that he had made us so good here there was no need for him to remain longer. We all regret his leaving, for he is able, devoted and popular. Young Oliver and Beatrice, children of the Herfords, are amusing youngsters. Oliver can make a joke or a verse on any subject, while Beatrice is a great mimic.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Blair, whose wedding Martha attended.

May 30—I didn't get this off yesterday and now will stop to put in a line about the wedding of Ruby McCormick and Edward Blair, which we attended last evening at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Dear old Dr. Patterson performed the ceremony, and the church was filled with friends. The bride is a niece of Cyrus H. McCormick, the reaper manufacturer, and being an orphan she has lived with her brother, William G. McCormick on Rush street near us.

The bridesmaids were lovely in white: Ellen Drummond, Kitty King, Susie Skinner, Emma Smith and Lucy and Virginia McCormick. John Farwell, son of our old friends, the John V. Farwells, was groomsman. As you remember, he and Ed Blair were Yale roommates. The ushers were Watson and Chauncey Blair (cousins of the groom), Treat Campbell, Cyrus H. McCormick Jr., Ernest Carter and Jonathan Bulkley.

The dark eyed bride was a vision in her handsome gown and veil.

Martha's gown is approaching completion and we think it will be satisfactory. These are busy days for us, as you know they would be. So glad you are coming to the wedding.

Lovingly,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Spring Brings Raw Alcohol to Finland's Coast

HELSINGFORS.—(AP)—The advent of spring and the consequent movement of ice from Finland's coast has signaled the resumption of alcohol running from northern Germany.

Information reached the coast guard that 11 large bootlegging vessels were bound for the Gulf of Finland, ready to offer raw alcohol at about 12 cents a quart.

Coast guards are preparing a merciless campaign against the smugglers, whose illegal potions are said to be undermining the finances of the government liquor monopoly.

Bagdad Gets Jazz as American Band Flees Turks' Law

ISTANBUL.—(AP)—First Americans to be affected by the new Turkish anti-foreign employment law are five strapping Negroes, producers of jazz.

The new law, reserving solely for Turkish citizens many occupations and professions, including that of musician, goes into full effect June 16.

But Jim Fikes and his jazz orchestra of four, unable to renew their contract at a Pera hotel because of the time limit, took the law by the forelock. They looked eastward for better luck, made a contract with a cabaret in Bagdad, and went jazzily on their way.

Others of the 10,000 foreigners in Turkey who will be thrown out of work are not so cheerful. They figure that there won't be jobs for all 10,000, even in magical Bagdad.

The trades and professions which Mustapha Kemal is monopolizing for his Turks include those of janitor, gardener, milkman, restaurant waiter, cabaret entertainer, grocer, chauffeur, hatmaker, doctor, lawyer, and chemist.

The Cherry Tree

By Eleanor Jewett.

The cherry tree that in our yard
Was brown and green last night
Has suddenly and wonderfully
Been dressed in fragrant white!

I hardly think it can be snow,
And yet from head to feet
Our cherry tree is drenched in white,
All beautiful and sweet.

The secret of our cherry tree
I wish that I might know;
A drift of stars? Of butterflies?
This magic, perfumed snow!

Bridal Party Enters, Leaves Church by Rule

Same Procedure Is Equally Correct for Ceremony in Hotel or at Home.

Miss Bartlett will be pleased to answer etiquette inquiries. If a personal reply is desired, please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

By Helen Bartlett.

BECAUSE it is confusing to state just how the wedding procession should enter a church, stand during the ceremony, and exit, we are reprinting the three little diagrams on this subject.

The diagrams apply, of course, to a church wedding. But the same order of procedure is equally correct for a home wedding or one in a ballroom of a hotel, except that in a home wedding there is no recessional. If the bridal party is smaller, all that is necessary is to eliminate from the diagrams such attendants as are dispensed with in the particular case and you will have the correct order.

Whether a wedding is held in a home or hotel, some sort of improvised altar should be used. That is, some place should be set aside for the minister to stand and should be decorated with at least a palm or bouquets of flowers. Then there should be either pillows or a prayer bench for the bride and groom and their attendants to use in that part of the ceremony where they are obliged to kneel.

To get back to the church wedding. Before the entrance of the bridal procession there are certain things that must be attended to by the ushers. The left side of the church is reserved for the family of the bride and the right for the family of the groom. When a wedding guest arrives at the church door he or she tells the usher whether he or she wishes to be seated on the bride's or the groom's side of the church. If the guest does not state which side, the usher asks the question, and then proceeds up the aisle with the guest and seats him or her accordingly. If a man and woman enter together the usher offers the woman his arm and the man walks on the other side of her or behind her.

Ushers Stretch Ribbons Before Pew Entrance.

After all the guests are seated and the bridal party has arrived and is waiting in the church vestibule two of the ushers stretch white ribbons over the entrance to the pews. Then the organist plays the wedding march and the bridal party enters as indicated in the diagram above.

The families of the bride and groom sit in the front pew, of course, so that it is easy for the bride's father to return to his place after he has taken his daughter to the altar. This seat is always on the left side of the church.

Since the groom's family always sits on the right side of the church—that is, right facing the chancel—when the bridal procession nears the altar the groom should come forward to greet the bride and take her up the altar steps.

The bride's father used to wait slightly behind the bride until the minister said, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" and then stepped forward and gave his daughter away. But now it is often arranged so that he need not wait for this part of the ceremony, but by the very act of taking her to the altar says as much in intent and may return to his place with the rest of the family as soon as he has discharged this duty. All this depends, of course, upon the particular ceremony to be read and the arrangements made with the minister or priest.

The word "obey" is now often struck from the text of the marriage ceremony, and, in fact, it is otherwise modified to suit the feminism of the century.

Best Man Is Intrusted with the Wedding Ring.

The best man is intrusted with the ring and should produce it speedily and surely at the moment the minister needs it. If she is wearing gloves the bride should have removed her left glove and given it to the maid or matron of honor. She should, before the ceremony, put her engagement ring on her right hand until after the wedding, so that when the groom puts the wedding ring on her finger she will not have to delay and fuss about taking off the engagement ring.

After the minister says the words "I now pronounce you man and wife" the groom sometimes turns to the bride to kiss her. A barbarous custom, no doubt, but one which seems to make all the sentimental old ladies cry with joy. A newer and preferred custom is for the groom to kiss the bride when they have reached the vestibule.

The procession is now ready to leave the church, as indicated in the third little diagram. The best man exits the way he came in. It is here that a warning needs to be given to the wedding guests. It is rude to follow the procession out of the church too soon. A decent lapse should be allowed for the bride and her party to reach the vestibule, and it is never polite for the guests to exit noisily from the church.

Guests Leave Church After Bridal Party, Relatives.

It is perfectly polite, of course, to greet friends and to say how lovely was the bride, but all this must be done in a whisper, or at least in a low voice and with no laughter. The family of the bride and that of the groom next proceed out of the church. Then after they have gone the guests may disperse, but always without crowding and confusion.

In the case of a home or hotel wedding where it is impossible to seat all the guests it is needless to say that everybody should stand during the ceremony. White ribbons can be stretched, forming an aisle among the guests, for the bridal party.

In the case of a home ceremony the guests should be sure to stand well back from the improvised altar so that the families can have first place and see the ceremony at close range. It is not rude, but merely expected, that the families of the bride and groom will take their stand nearest the improvised altar.

After the ceremony in a home or hotel the guests should allow a few minutes in which the bride and groom are greeted and kissed by their families and in which a line can form before they go up to offer their congratulations to the groom and best wishes to the bride. NO ONE EVER CONGRATULATES THE BRIDE. The congratulations are supposed to be for the groom alone.

In the case of a church wedding the bridal party and the families have time to greet each other and get in line before the guests arrive for the reception.

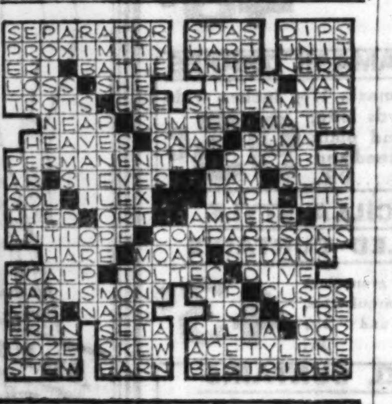
Crossword Answer



TRAVELERS' GUIDE

What's your travel problem? Queries regarding costs, accommodations, etc., of travel by land, air, and sea, and places to go and how to get there, both in this country and abroad, will be answered by this department. Answers of public interest will be published. Address your questions to Travelers' Guide, The Chicago Tribune, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What effect will the much discussed money inflation in this country have on the cost of foreign travel? E. C. B.

As the dollar depreciates on the international market the foreign currency increases, with the result that your dollar buys less abroad. The cost of foreign travel during the last few years has, however, been exceptionally low. If you intend to visit Europe this year and be protected against the possible increase in prices due to the tendency of the foreign exchange market, you should make advance arrangements at once with a reliable travel company.

What is a visa? F. H. G.

A visa is the stamp of the consul of the country to be visited, giving passengers the privilege of entering and leaving the country according to the regulations of the visa in question.

What is the general custom in regard to tipping in Europe? R. M.

Due to the uncertainty of tipping abroad most of the foreign countries with the exception of Great Britain have passed laws requiring hotel keepers and restaurants to add to your bill a service charge, which in most instances amounts to 10 per cent. You will not experience difficulties if you base your gratuities on 10 per cent of the cost of service.

Will you please explain the time system observed aboard ocean steamers? G. E. C.

The seaman's law in most countries requires that a sailor work eight hours each day, on duty four hours and off duty eight hours continuously. The ship's time is, therefore, divided into six periods of four hours each, and each period is divided into eight bells. Eight bells are sounded at noon, 4 p. m., 8 p. m., midnight, 4 a. m., and 8 a. m., and at each half hour interval one bell is sounded. For instance, 1 p. m. is two bells and 3 p. m. is six bells. The period between midnight and 4 a. m. is commonly known as the "dog watch." This name implies that it is the least desirable working period.

Considerable money is saved by buying a round trip ticket and, by making homeward reservations before starting, passengers are assured of good accommodation.

When is the busiest time going to Europe and returning from there? W. H. S.

The busiest sailing period to Europe is between June 1 and July 15, and returning, between Aug. 1 and Sept. 15.

Italy Bars Wine for Children on Health Argument

ROME.—(AP)—In the face of warnings that she is bringing up a generation of teetotalers, Italy has preferred to retain a law prohibiting wine for children in public institutions.

The antis, championing the grape industry, put up a strong argument in the chamber of deputies, but were overridden.

Holding that wine is injurious to minors, Under Secretary Arpinati of the interior department said their health is of prime importance. He pooh-poohed the idea that any considerable section of the public ever would be teetotalers.

Deputy Luigi Capri-Cruciani, for the antis, stressed America's experience to show that beverages of small alcoholic content are desirable. He insisted that moderate use of wine by children is a safeguard against abuse of stronger drinks in later life.

Chicago Artists and Institute Students Called On for Wall Decorations at the Century of Progress

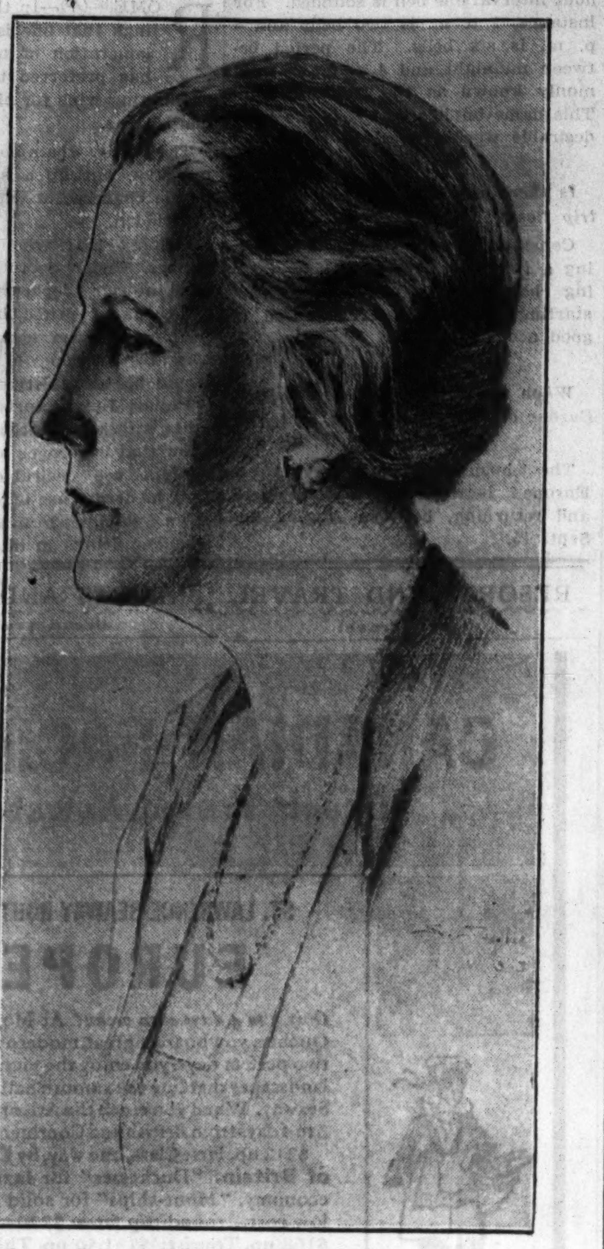
Eleven Professionals, Several Groups of Amateurs to Furnish Line Drawings.

By Eleanor Jewett.

MISAPPREHENSION has grown up stifling common sense about the efforts A Century of Progress is putting forth to decorate the wall spaces in various concessions which have only recently been purchased. Obviously no decorations could be placed on a wall while the ultimate destiny of the space it would inclose was in doubt. Imagine the absurdity of a marine decoration, for example, in a concession ultimately possessed by furriers or hardware merchants. That being so, it was out of the question in many of the buildings to do anything but mark time until the last moment. Now that moment has struck, the spaces are sold, and the question of decoration is a live problem.

Shepard Vogelgesang, supervisor of color and decoration for A Century of Progress, is meeting the difficulty. Some eleven artists, three from New York and the others from Chicago, are submitting ideas for wall decorations. The decorations are not murals; they are simply effects in color and line which will redeem the empty stretches of walls that otherwise would be oppressively blank. There is no money in the proposition and very little honor. The painters who finally do the work will have done it as much for the sake of Chicago as for their own sake.

One artist, not among the tentatively chosen eleven, writes that the painters may expect $3 a day, which must cover their materials as well as their labor. Dudley Crafts Watson, extension lecturer of the Art institute, has given two lectures the proceeds of which it was hoped would be large enough to constitute a fund from which to pay this $3.



"Crayon Conte Portrait of Mrs. Robert J. Dunham," by Salvatore Salla, Chicago painter.

Students of Art at the Institute Will Help.

Another scheme to achieve the decorations is to employ the art students of Chicago. This, too, is being tried. The Art institute school has been invited to do some of the work. Recently Charles Fabens Kelly, head of the Art institute school, and sixteen of the students went to the Exposition grounds to discuss a program for wall paintings on the southeast interior ramp of the Hall of Science, which connects the industrial exhibits with the biology section of Basic Science. The proposal is that the students spend a week in making sketches and deciding what treatment and selection of subjects they can best manage. They will then take another week to develop their ideas and by that time be ready to start on canvases, which would be prepared in the Art institute under Mr. Kelly's supervision. The recently concluded school show at the Art institute furnishes some idea of the ability which will be loosened to grapple with the task. The type of decoration, obviously, must be poster-like and extremely simple, detailed work being lost in the size of the space to be covered.

Another Chicago art school, the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, is being of use to the Fair. Cartoons for the stained glass windows of the Illinois State building, the host house of A Century of Progress Exposition, are being designed by students in the technique and industrial design classes. The history of early Illinois, including dramatic moments in the lives of famous men, will be pictured. Other events: The first locomotive, an early steamboat, and typical scenes of first settler days will be used. As soon as the designs are completed, execution of the windows will begin. Edward Mathews, industrial artist, and Kenneth Foster, decorator of wide European and oriental experience, are directing the work.

Chicago Artists Given Work by Decorator.

From another angle we have the report of William R. Moore, president of the American Institute of Interior Decorators, stating that feeling Chicago artists have had little recognition at A Century of Progress, he determined to incorporate murals in his scheme for the two commissioners' rooms in the United States Government building and engaged Chicago artists to do the work. Arthur L. Beverly is supervising the murals of one room, which are being painted by Miss Nell Snitzer, a former student of the National Academy of Fine Arts, and the Hubert Ropp School of Art, where her work merited several scholarships. The murals in the second room are being executed by Carl Hollem of Chicago, who is painting four panels of figures.

All of this, however, does not touch the root of the matter. Student work, commercial work, and the work of generous minded artists willing to help out a situation which they had no share in bringing about will give color to the buildings. The fact must still remain that A Century of Progress exposition has not invited nor had the talents of Chicago artists employed in its creation. For all that, it is going to be a great show and one that will mean a great deal to us. The artists and sculptors may look to the galleries for representation. The Art institute is including some; more will be represented in all of the galleries; still others will be represented in the Open Air Picture Market in Grant park.

Yet another hasty note brings word that Hilda Goldblatt, whose marine paintings are well known, is completing twelve murals depicting some of the great naval battles for A Century of Progress.

Working, so it is said, an easy going commissioner on the concessions committee of the Fair, Paul von Klieben has succeeded in getting space for an Out-Door Picture Mart. It is a commercial project and does not need particular attention paid it. The report is that each artist represented must pay $2 a week, and in case of sales, 50 per cent of the price for the privilege of a booth in the concession. The Grant Park Picture Market, on the other hand, is open to the artists without charge and will undoubtedly be of the greater significance. It will balance, without in any way encroaching upon the Art institute exhibition and the various gallery exhibits.

The Chicago Academy of Fine Arts is taking into account the great international exhibitions of A Century of Progress in planning the schedule for its summer professional art courses. The work of each class, whether in commercial or industrial design, interior decoration, illustration, stage arts, or dress design will be closely correlated to related fair exhibits, and frequent field trips under professional guidance will be made to study the displays first hand.

News of Interest to Lovers of Art.

Salvatore Salla, who was the official portrait painter to the Chicago Grand Opera company while that existed, has recently done several important and charming portraits. Among them are those of Mrs. John A. Carpenter [the former Mrs. Ellen Waller Borden], Robert J. Dunham, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hibbard, and Miss Marjorie Goodman. The portrait of Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, drawn from life with crayon conté, is reproduced today. An exhibit of portraits and paintings by Mr. Salla is planned for the near future.

The annual spring exhibit of The Ten in the Marshall Field galleries may be mentioned only with delight. It is a surprisingly charming show, filled with sensitive and exquisite work. Among the things not to be missed are "In Furnessville" and "In West Virginia," by Charles Biesel; "Girl with Ducks" and "Stronach," by Gustaf Dalstrom"; "Seated Nude" and "Bouquet," by Frances Foy; the romantic landscapes, by Emile J. Grumieaux; "The Coffee Pot" and "Lagoon," by Frances Strain; "The Blue Colt," by Jean Crawford Adams, and "Outing," by Emil Armin.

The annual exhibition by professional members at the Arts club closes May 13. It is an interesting exhibit, almost utterly at variance with what is in the galleries when the Arts club sponsors an outside show. This is the only time in the year when a Chicago painter may exhibit at the Arts club, whether he be member or not. From this ruling much good has come, for it is to the Arts club that we look for the last word in what is being accomplished in New York and Paris, two sources of their material.

Meanwhile the professional members' exhibition each spring is an experience. This year there is an unusual amount of fine work to be found on the walls. Elisabeth Telling shows two exquisite foreign portraits, beautifully handled. Mary H. Wicker submits the delightful "Cloudy Day in the Market." Josephine L. Reichmann shows "Petunias," a flower study lovely in quality and composition.

Clara MacGowan is definitely successful in her "19 Below, 1933," a frost and snow laden street, and in "Istambul, from Scutari." Mrs. Elizabeth Boynton Millard shows "Petunias," a decorative canvas. Pauline Palmer and Gerald Frank, with Anna Lynch and Anna Lee Stacey, shed more glory on the Tree Studio group of artists by the excellence and beauty of their respective canvases. Thomas Tallmadge does a nice thing in "Seventeen," and Bertha E. Jaques offers a beautiful print, "Persimmons-Japanese."

There are a great many portraits in the exhibit. Among the finest and most interesting are "Portrait of Leon Hermant," by Oskar Gross; "Bishop George Craig Stewart," by Paul Trebilcock; "Dr. Arthur A. Small," by Amy McCormick; "Mrs. Potter Smith," by Buell Mullen; "Frances Foy," by Beatrice S. Levy, and "Nancy Clark" and "David Coolidge," by Cecil Clark Davis.

In sculpture Viola Norman shows the striking head of Carey Orr, TRIBUNE cartoonist, and of "Billy," a little boy. Sylvia Shaw Judson offers a magnificent "Wild Swan" and a small, nicely handled "Nude Study." The "Peter Pan" by Elizabeth Tuttle Holsman, is most attractive.
